U.S. MAY SEND MAN TO MOON BY 1965, EXPERT TELLS CONGRESS

Another NASA Official Says Americans Must Prepare to See Russia Put Man Into Space First.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (UPI)—Congress has been told of a new family of United States space missiles that will surpass anything the Russians have produced so far and might send a man to the moon and back by 1965.

The new missile program, Dr. T. Keith Glennan warned, may boost the civilian space budget from $500,000,000 to more than one billion dollars annually within a year or two. Glennan is head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, NASA deputy director, testified today that Russia is capable of beating the United States in putting a man into space. Dryden was testifying before the Senate Space Committee, which heard Glennan yesterday.

Dryden said "we must prepare the American people for the fact that they are likely to do so, and we must develop some ideas about what the effect of this will be."

He said the Russians will have the edge even if the United States civilian space budget is rapidly pushed up to a billion dollars a year.

Have Rockets Now.

He said the Russians already have rockets sufficiently powerful to place a man-carrying satellite in orbit. He refused to estimate when this would be done by the United States, but indicated it would not be for at least two years.

Dryden said the United States will complete a man-carrying capsule next March, but that numerous test-firings will be necessary before a human passenger can be put aboard.

He testified that the man-in-space program—project Mercury—has the highest possible priority on the civilian side. He said it would have to yield to war missile development "if there were any real conflict."

He said it would be "rather easy" to place a man in orbit if it were not for the problem of returning him safely to earth.

Abe Silverstein, technical director of NASA, added that the projects so far undertaken are "wholly inadequate" for long-range space travel beyond the moon unless the Atomic Energy Commission can produce a nuclear second-stage rocket.

Three Use I.C.B.M.s.

Silverstein, in testimony yesterday, said the new family of rockets includes three based on intercontinental ballistic missiles, such as the Atlas which has been frequently test-fired from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

These are the Atlas-Hustler, which will soon be available and will create satellites weighing up to 3000 pounds; and the Vega and the Centaur, which will be capable of placing in orbit payloads of about 7500 pounds.

The Vega, being built at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., will have as its second stage a modified first stage of the Vanguard earth satellite rocket. The Centaur, using either an Atlas or a Titan ICBM as a booster, will have a super-fueled second stage.

More powerful than these will be the "cluster" boosters—several rockets tied together. The first cluster will have more than 1,000,000 pounds

Frank Costello's Citizenship Revoked; U.S. Can Deport Him

FRANK COSTELLO

The 68-year-old gambler, ailing from a form of throat cancer, is in Atlanta penitentiary serving a five-year prison sentence for tax evasion.

United States District Judge Archie O. Dawson held that Costello had "willfully misrepresented and concealed material facts" in obtaining citizenship Sept. 10, 1925.

The Government claimed that Costello became a citizen fraudulently by concealing his bootlegging operations and a 1915 conviction for carrying a concealed weapon.

The action by the court today paves the way for the government to proceed with its deportation plans. Costello, after his tax evasion conviction, had volunteered to leave for his native Italy if the government would drop its prosecution. His offer was refused and his denaturalization trial began early in January.

By the Associated Press.

The Government had tried once before to denaturalize him. However the case was thrown out by a federal court in 1956 on the ground that the Government evidence was "per-

ALDERMEN VOTE CITY'S SHARE OF MILL CREEK COST

$2,500,000 Appropriated From Bond Issue — $200,000 for Branch Library.

A $2,500,000 appropriation to pay the city's share of costs of the Mill Creek Valley redevelopment project was passed by the Board of Aldermen today.

The money, which will come from 1955 bond issue funds, will be used to make up the difference in costs of acquiring and clearing the Mill Creek area and selling the land to redevelopers.

St. Louis will pay one-third of this loss and the Federal Government the remaining two-thirds. Demolition of the Mill Creek area has begun.

Also appropriated from 1955 bond issue funds was $200,000 to construct a new branch library at Hampton avenue and Eichelberger street.

North-South Artery Bill.

A bill was introduced to provide a continuous route from Blair avenue and O'Fallon street in North St. Louis to Fourteenth street and Geyer avenue in South St. Louis. It is intended to relieve congestion on Twelfth street.

The bill proposes the widening of Fourteenth from Olive street to Washington avenue, opening Fourteenth from Washington to Delmar boulevard, and widening Fourteenth to its intersection with Biddle street.

A cut-off into Blair is proposed at that point. Blair would then be widened until it intersects with O'Fallon.

Bills to authorize acquisition and improvement of an offstreet parking site in the 5900 block of Theodosia avenue, east of Wellston, were introduced.

City officials would be authorized to issue $187,700 in revenue bonds to cover cost of acquiring the property and to spend an additional $68,000 for paving the site, installing park-

LIVING COSTS UP 0.1 PCT., RECORD FOR ANY JANUARY

Rises in Food, Medical Care Offset Declines in Clothing, Some Other Items.

By THOMAS W. OTTENAD
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 — Living costs rose one-tenth of 1 per cent last month, reaching the highest level ever attained in January, the Department of Labor reported today.

Increases in prices of food, medical and personal care and recreation offset slight decreases in costs of wearing apparel, house furnishings and transportation.

Spendable earnings and buying power of factory workers were slightly lower than in December, but both were higher than ever before in January. Dollar earnings were about 6 per cent higher than in January 1958 and purchasing power was up 5 per cent. Earnings will be somewhat lower after inflationary factors are considered.

Index of 123.8.

Ewan Clague, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said the consumer price index last month was 123.8 per cent of the 1947-49 base period.

It was only one-tenth of 1 per cent lower than the record peak of 123.9 established last July and equaled in November. The January level was 1.2 per cent higher than it had been the year before.

Clague said the period since last April has been the longest nine-month period of comparative price stability since the Labor Department index was established on its present basis in 1940. The index has fluctuated within four tenths of 1 per cent during that time.

Union Leader Is Said to Have Ordered Squeeze From Mainland With 'Double Contract' Plan.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Feb. 20 — James R. Hoffa, aroused by rebuffs of the Teamsters organizing efforts here to take over the island, has laid out a new policy of putting on the squeeze from the mainland, the Post-Dispatch was informed reliably today.

In a conference at the Teamsters Union headquarters in Washington Jan. 22, Hoffa laid down the law to Richard Kavner, international organizer operating out of St. Louis who has been informed by the highest officials of the commonwealth and the church here that Teamsters are not welcome, though other unions are.

Hoffa's answer to the failure of the Teamsters organizers to enlist more than about 150 workers for their local here is to pressure employers on the mainland to sign what he terms "double contracts."

This means that mainland employers who have contracts with the Teamsters Union will be compelled by Hoffa to sign agreements covering their branch operations here. Practically all operations here on which Hoffa has sights are satellite industries of mainland interests.

Others at Meeting.

At the January meeting with the general president of the 1,600,000-member union were Jake McCarthy, public relations officer of the union; Kavner and Paul Hall, president of the AFL-CIO Seafarers International Union.

Hall's union had virtually abdicated its position in the organizing effort here among truck drivers and warehousemen.

Kavner reported to Hoffa that "things are tough in Puerto Rico. Public opinion is against us."

Hoffa turned angrily on Kavner and denounced Frank Chavez, Teamsters Union organizer imported here from the west coast of the mainland. Hoffa said to Kavner that if "Chavez can't do nothing in Puerto Rico and you can't do nothing then I don't need you and you can give me back my . . . charter."

Hoffa told Kavner and Hall that he had been on the island last July and had decided it was a pushover for the Teamsters.

Hall complained that he had spent a great deal of his union's money trying to organize the island but could get nowhere. He told Hoffa that despite heavy spending and considerable effort he had been able to get only 200 members.

Hoffa Thoroughly Aroused.

Hoffa, by this time thoroughly aroused, pointed to Hall and said, "This s.o.b. here has been spending all that money down there and getting nowhere. I told him to put his money together with mine and he didn't do it. I told him to follow my advice and he didn't. Now there is no way out except mine."

Following this remark, Hoffa unfolded his so-called "double contract" plan.

Kavner, prior to the meeting in Washington, had been on the island attempting to persuade government and church authorities to approve the Teamster invasion of the island. He and John J. O'Rourke, a Teamster leader from New York and, like Kavner an associate of John (Johnny Dio) Dioguardi, convicted labor extortionist in New York, have failed to induce the authorities here to give them a clean bill of health so that they then could go to employers and demand contracts.

Gov. Luis Munoz Marin, Secretary of Labor Fernando Sierra and Roman Catholic Bishop James P. Davis, head of the San Juan diocese, all prolabor, have expressed disapproval of the Teamsters and opposition to their objectives.

The Teamsters Union and the International Longshoremen's Association are involved in a joint effort here to shut down the operations of three trucking companies which have refused to sign contracts with the Teamsters. The National Labor Relations Board has asked the United States District Court for an injunction against the joint boycott by the two unions.

The NLRB charges in its injunction suit that the ILA and the Teamsters are engaged in a secondary boycott in violation of the Taft-Hartley law.

By United Press International.

The AFL-CIO executive council, which is meeting in San Juan, granted Carpenters Union president Maurice A. Hutcheson practically unlimited time to explain his alleged profiteering form an Indiana highway scandal.

The 14-member council accepted from Hutcheson a letter denying that union funds were involved in the highway case and tabled it until he appears before the council to explain.

BECK CONVICTED IN TAX CASE, IN JAIL OVERNIGHT

Then Is Freed on Bond Pending Sentencing — Found Guilty on Six Counts.

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 20 (AP)—Convicted of cheating on his income tax, Dave Beck, 64-year-old former labor leader, spent time behind bars for the first time in his life last night.

The millionaire former president of the Teamsters Union was found guilty on all four counts of income tax evasion—covering $240,607 for the years 1950-53—and two counts of filing false returns. He could receive up to a five-year sentence and a $10,000 fine on each count.

Bck was released from jail under $25,000 bond today pending his sentencing next Friday. United States District Judge George H. Boldt held an appeal bond hearing at Seattle and decided to continue Beck's previous bond until the sentencing.

Beck's lawyers said the verdict would be appealed "all the way."

The one-time laundry truck driver, who prided himself on not smoking or drinking, appeared more shaken at having to spend the night in jail than by the verdict.

'Guilty' Six Times.

The portly Beck, clad nattily in a blue suit and polka-dot tie, gripped the edge of a table but showed little emotion as the clerk drawled "guilty" six times yesterday afternoon. He was later heard to remark to a friend that he just could not understand why he had to remain in jail.

His $25,000 bail was revoked when he was found guilty.

His quarters in the federal section of the city jail were a world apart from his lavish home in the so-called "Beck compound" on the shores of Lake Washington in Seattle.

His tumble from the top was hard and fast.

Just three years ago he was a millionaire business man, international president of the Teamsters Union — considered the largest in the country—and a vice president of the AFL-CIO. The self-made man who had left high school before graduation once had served as president of the University of Washington Board of Regents.

Previous Conviction.

Today he is under the shadow of two convictions. Beck was sentenced to not more than 15 years in prison after a 1957 conviction for grand larceny in the embezzlement of $1900 from the sale of a union-owned Cadiliac. The State Supreme Court is scheduled to hear his appeal next March.

Beck's big trouble began when he appeared before the Senate rackets committee in 1957 and invoked the Fifth

U.S. Chief of State Is Winding Up Visit—Variety of Topics Discussed.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ACAPULCO, Mexico, Feb. 20 — President Eisenhower concludes his two-day visit with President Adolfo Lopez Mateos of Mexico today amid reports that the meeting at this Pacific coast resort has been successful from the viewpoint of cementing relations between the two countries.

It was Mr. Eisenhower's turn to act as host today. The two Presidents and a small group had luncheon at the $5,000,000 Pierre Marques Hotel, where Mr. Eisenhower is staying.

They renewed their informal conversations on mutual topics in the afternoon.

Talks "Successful."

After a luncheon and cruise on Lopez Mateos's yacht, the Sotavento, in Acapulco harbor yesterday, Mr. Eisenhower's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, told reporters the discussion had been "amicable and very successful." Hagerty said the matters touched on by the two Presidents included markets for Mexican cotton and coffee; restrictions by the United States on lead and zinc imports from Mexico and the proposed Diablo dam on the Rio Grande, a $100,000,000 multiple-purpose facility that has been discussed for the last 10 years. No conclusions were reached, Hagerty said. Hagerty said other world affairs also were reviewed. He declined to be more specific. He said the conversation was general among the American and Mexican officials on board the yatch and was not confined to the two Chief Executives.

United States officials included the President's brother, Dr. Milton Eisenhower; United States Ambassador to Mexico Robert C. Hill; Roy R. Rubottom Jr., assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs; Hagerty and Lt. Col. Vernon Walters, the President's interpreter.

The Mexican group included Manuel Tello, minister of foreign affairs; Antonio Carrillo Flores, Mexican ambassador to Washington, and Justo Sierra, co-ordinator of information services.

Eden Among Guests.

Last night Lopez Mateos was host at a dinner at El Mirador hotel, which is built on the side of a cliff. One of the guests was Sir Anthony Eden, former British Prime Minister, who has been at Acapulco for the last month working on notes for a book.

Mr. Eisenhower saw a program of folk dances presented out of doors in the warm night air, and watched divers spring from the cliffside in front of the hotel and plunge into a small tidal pool 120 feet below.

After the performance 13 divers lined up outside the hotel and the President and Lopez Mateos shook hands

COLD, DRY WEATHER EXPECTED TO CONTINUE THROUGH NEXT 5 DAYS

COLD, dry weather will continue in the St. Louis area tomorrow through Wednesday, the Weather Bureau said today in its extended forecase.

The five-day forecast: Fair and continued cold over the weekend; increasing cloudiness and a little warmer early next week; temperatures will average 8 to 10 degress below normal; normal highs are in upper 40s; normal lows in middle 40s.

PRESIDENT TO QUIT GREETING V.I.P.S AT AIRPORT IN WINTER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP)—President Eisenhower is going to cut down on his custom of meeting presidents and kings at the airport when they come to Washington on state visits.

Half the year, he will greet them at the airport; half the year, he won't.

Diplomatic officials said the reason for the change is that Mr. Eisenhower was deeply disappointed when bad weather partially spoiled the reception of President Frondizi of Argentina last month. Only a very few people braved the cold and wet to see and applaud them as they drove from the airport to the White House.

Acting Secretary of State Christian Herter sent notes yesterday to 86 diplomatic missions notifying them of the change. The President will receive heads of state between May 1 and Sept. 30, and the new practice will become effective Oct. 1.

MOVE IN NEVADA TO ANNEX PIECE OF CALIFORNIA

CARSON CITY, Nev., Feb. 20 (AP) — The Nevada Assembly has adopted a resolution demanding that California cede to Nevada 40,000 square miles of territory east of the Sierra ridge. The resolution is now up for action in the Nevada Senate.

The demand originated with Assemblyman Don Crawford of Washoe county (Reno), who contends that California failed to comply with acquisition technicalities two generations ago.

The territory Crawford wants annexed to Nevada includes King's Canyon National Park, Lake Tahoe and Squaw Valley, site of the 1960 winter Olympics. Crawford also wants California to hand over all taxes collected on the land in the past century.

In Sacramento, California's capital, the typical reaction today was, "Is Nevada kidding?" Crawford says he isn't, but the Nevada Senate is not expected to take the matter seriously.

California is putting up $8,000,000 toward the expenses of the Olympics. One California official quipped: "Aw, give them the 40,000 square miles—if they can pay for the Olympics."

Divers Not Permitted in Tank With Shark--It's Afraid of People

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20 (AP) — The Young Women's Christian Association asked: "Would the aquarium permit underwater swimmers to enter the tank and feed the shark?" It wanted to show off skin-diving techniques to get publicity for its adult classes in that and other subjects.

"No," the aquarium people replied. They said the shark, which is not used to swimming around with people, would get so frightened, it would dash toward the glass wall and bash its brains out.

RED RADIO SAYS 'IT ALL BOILS DOWN TO SAME INVARIABLE NO'

LONDON, Feb. 20 (UPI)—The Moscow radio denounced today the Western Big Three replies to Soviet proposals on Germany as devoid of "any constructive suggestion" for a settlement of the East-West dispute.

The attack came on the eve of the departure of British Prime Minister Macmillan for Moscow. Macmillan told the House of Commons last night that the trip was being undertaken in hopes of breaking "the ice" in the cold war.

It was announced that Macmillan would leave by plane Saturday morning. He is scheduled to arrive in Moscow four hours later.

Follows Blunt Warning.

The Moscow radio attack followed by three days a speech by Soviet Premier Khrushchev in which he warned that any attempt by the West to shoot its way into Berlin would mean war.

On Monday, the United States, Britain and France delivered similar notes to Moscow proposing a Big Four foreign ministers conference on Berlin, Germany and European security. The notes suggested the West and East Germans sit in as "advisers."

The Soviet government had proposed a 28-nation conference to conclude a peace treaty with Germany. The participants would include all World War II allies.

The Western powers also expressed determination in their notes to maintain the right of free access to West Berlin. Russia has said it would turn over its control functions to the Communist East German regime, which the Western powers do not recognize.

Notes Taken as Rejection.

It claimed the notes "do not contain a single more or less constructive suggestion capable of facilitating settlement of the questions either of Berlin or Germany."

"It all boils down to the same invariable 'no' that the West has been giving us all the time," Moscow said. "It categorically rejects the Soviet proposal to demilitarize West Berlin and make it a free city."

It said the replies indicated that the United States is "not seriously interested" in reaching an agreement.

"It looks as if they still prefer to wage their power politics and cold war against the socialist world," the Moscow radio said.

There has been as yet no formal reply by Moscow to the latest Western notes. None is expected at least until Macmillan completes his 10-day visit which will include formal talks with Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders.

Macmillan will be accompanied by Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and other high government officials.

Macmillan's Address.

In his speech in the House of Commons, Macmillan stressed he was not going to Moscow to negotiate with the Russians.

He said the purpose of his trip was to "get some feeling of the general situation" between East and West. He said he might follow up his Moscow trip with visits to Paris, Bonn and perhaps Washington.

These trips, he said, would be made "with a view to the formulation of Western Allied policy."

High officials in Washington said Secretary of State John Foster Dulles responded favorably to the idea of a Macmillan visit to Washington for talks with President Eisenhower.

Macmillan stressed the necessity for co-ordinated Allied policy in his address to Commons winding up a foreign affairs debate. He said it is absolutely necessary that the Western alliance stand firmly together and not allow itself to be divided.

Says NATO Must Survive.

He said that any proposals for the easing of East-West tensions "must be consistent with the survival of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization." He said nothing must be done which would result in the withdrawal of American or Canadian forces from Europe.

"Within that," he added,

MANSFIELD FOR CONGRESSIONAL BACKING OF U.S. GERMAN POLICY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP) —Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem.), Montana, voiced support today for a resolution to give complete congressional backing to the Administration's policy on the German crisis.

Mansfield, assistant majority leader of the Senate, said his own call last week for direct talks between East and West Germany was only a suggestion for broadening the scope of negotiations.

He said he was not suggesting "any retreat whatsoever" from the Administration position of standing fast in Berlin, and did not offer his proposal as a substitute for Western negotiations with Russia on the German crisis.

Warning By Javits.

Mansfield sought to clarify his position after Senator Jacob K. Javits (Rep.), New York, contended in the Senate yesterday that to force West Germany to negotiate with Red East Germany on unification would mean "selling freedom down the river."

Javits spoke in favor of a resolution he introduced to put the Senate on record as supporting continuance of the Administration policy of seeking four-power negotiations — the United States, Britain, France and Russia—with the West and East Germans as advisers.

Javits's resolution, in effect a reply to Mansfield's speech, proposed support of "whatever measures may be required to maintain access to West Berlin from West Germany." It called for sending seven Senators to West Berlin to express the Senate's "spirit of understanding and support of the trials of the people of West Berlin in the present crisis."

Second Resolution.

Senator Thomas J. Dodd (Dem.), Connecticut, offered a second resolution, which Javits also joined in sponsoring, to express agreement with the position of President Eisenhower and Secretary of States John Foster Dulles and to avoid any wrong impression the country is divided on the German unification question.

"Such a wrong impression may discourage our Allies and give encouragement to Communist hopes of wearing down free world resolve to the point of accepting a German settlement that would lead to free world disaster," Dodd told the Senate.

Mansfield agreed that "there is complete support for the President and Secretary Dulles," but added that the search for ways to unify Germany other than by free all-German elections should never be abandoned.

He said State Department people see no possibility of holding such elections within the foreseeable future, and added:

"The question is whether we should wait a decade to bring the issue to a head or seek some other ways and means of unifying Germany without abandoning our present course."

Dulles Begins X-Ray Treatment For Recurring Intestinal Cancer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP) —Secretary of State John Foster Dulles began X-ray treatments for cancer at Walter Reed Army Hospital today. The treatments will continue for three or four weeks daily except Sunday, it was announced.

Doctors reported that as far as can be determined now Dulles's cancer is confined within the abdomen.

Recurrence of cancer in the intestines, for which Dulles underwent surgery in 1956, was discovered a week ago in an operation for repair of a hernia.

The one-minute X-ray bombardment was directed into the lower abdomen, press officer Lincoln White said at the State Department. It was "well tolerated" by Dulles, he added, meaning that at least in the initial stage of reaction Dulles was not made ill.

Some patients are nauseated or have other ill effects from heavy X-ray treatment.

White issued a bulletin after conferring with Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, commandant at Walter Reed. The bulletin said:

"The Secretary continues to progress satisfactorily. His temperature, pulse, respiration and blood pressure are normal. He had a comfortable night. His spirits are high.

"The sutures were removed this morning. The operative wound is clean (free of infection).

"He had his first radiation treatment at 10:30 this morning. The initial treatment was for about one minute. Treatment was administered by the Walter Reed radiologists, Col. John Isherwood and Col. Harry Berman.

"Treatment was well tolerated. Radiation treatments will continue daily with the exception of Sunday."

Beck Convicted

Amendment more than 150 times. He said then he could probably clear everything up with a few minutes in the court of law.

Beck did not take the stand here. Following the long Government case in the three-month trial, the defense rested after calling only one witness —an accountant. His lawyers said Beck wanted to take the stand but was advised against it by his counsel, who did not think the Government had a case.

10 Ballots Taken.

The jury of eight men and four women returned their verdict a day after receiving the case.

Foreman Warren Hale said most of the jurors' discussion centered about the indictments covering the returns. He said only 10 ballots were taken. The first vote came out eight for conviction, three for acquittal and one blank.

The Government based its case on Beck's alleged pocketing of expense money and misuse of union funds. It presented 115 witnesses.

The defense held that any money Beck received from the union was in the form of loans and, therefore, not taxable.

Beck had consolation of a sort. The Teamsters Union said his $50,000 a year pension was from a trust fund and would not be affected by any court decision.

POLICE INQUIRY INTO DEATH OF MRS. BIDDLE

Same Inspector Heads Investigation of the 'Lacaze Case' in Paris.

PARIS, Feb. 20 (UPI) — A "discreet and unofficial" police investigation of the death of American heiress Margaret Biddle has been in progress for a month, the district attorney's office said today.

A spokesman said State Prosecutor Andre Toutfait put Inspector George Clot on the case four weeks ago, about the time the leftist weekly Express hinted that Mrs. Biddle's death might be linked with the "Lacaze case."

Clot is also handling the police investigation of the case against French industrialist Jean Lacaze, who has been accused of hiring agents to kill or defame Jean P. Guillaume, his wealthy sister's adopted son.

Mrs. Biddle's death was accepted as having been the result of a stroke when it occurred June 8, 1956. Hints that it was linked with the Lacaze case stem largely from the fact that she went to the opera the previous night with Lacaze's sister, Mrs. Jean Walter and Mr. Maurice Lacour.

Fa al Auto Accident.

Lacour and Mrs. Walter also were on the scene the following year, when Mrs. Walter's husband was killed in an automobile accident.

Walter was the majority stockholder in the Zellidja lead mines, a Moroccan property in which Mrs. Biddle had a 4 per cent interest.

Since Walter's death, Lacaze has been managing the mines for his sister. His alleged plots against Guillaume are supposed to have been intended to prevent his inheriting the mines from his foster mother.

Official sources say Clot's investigation of Mrs. Biddle's death is more likely to uncover details of Lacaze's financial dealings than any sensational evidence of foul play.

They said the American heiress's body was embalmed before it was buried in suburban Fontainebleau, making it difficult at this late date to determine just how she died.

The first evidence of official interest in Mrs. Biddle's death was the announcement yesterday by Paris attorney Jean L. Tixier-Vignacourt, who says he represents the Biddle heirs, that he would ask for exhumation of her remains.

The attorney refused today to comment further on the case.

Alone When She Died.

Such facts as are known about the Biddle death indicate that Mrs. Biddle was alone in her apartment, except for her servants, at the time she died.

She had appeared to be in good health and spirits during her evening at the opera, and she put herself to bed without disturbing the sleeping servants when she returned home.

Before dawn the following morning, she rang for her maid, who found her gasping for breath. The maid summoned a doctor, but Mrs. Biddle was dead by the time he arrived.

The doctor said death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage.

Mrs. Biddle inherited her $85,000,000 fortune from her father, mining magnate William Boyce Thompson. She was married twice—first to a Polish nobleman and then to Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, prewar United States Ambassador to Poland. Both marriages ended in divorce.

Will Accept Bolivar Statue.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (UPI) — President Eisenhower will accept a statue of Simon Bolivar on behalf of the United States Feb. 27, Interior Secretary Fred A Seaton announced yesterday. The statue, which was erected here two years ago, is a gift from Venezuela.

General Assembly Convenes, To Consider Cameroons Action

2 Parts of Former German Colony Under Trusteeship—Cannot Change Status With World Agency OK.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Feb 20 (AP)—The United Nations General Assembly met today to tackle a puzzle created by the impending birth of two new nations in west Africa.

The questions to be decided are these:

1. Will the U. N. give its blessing to the plan to establish an independent government in the French Cameroons next Jan. 1?

2. What shall be the future of the British Cameroons after Dec. 1, 1960, when neighboring Nigeria attains independence?

The two parts of the former German tolony are under U.N. trusteeship and cannot change their status without approval of the world organization.

The French Cameroons, which has more than 3,000,000 people in an area the size of Texas, is certain to get the go-ahead before the Assembly ends its session in two or three weeks. The Soviet Union and some African countries are expected to contend that new elections are necessary, but a substantial majority is lined up in favor of independence on schedule.

The 14-nation Trusteeship Council has recommended creation Jan. 1.

The British Cameroons have more than 1,000,000 people and an area the size of Indiana. Its future is complicated by divided sentiment within the territory. The northern region wants to becomes a part of the new country of Nigeria; the southern part is undecided.

The British now administer the trust territory along with Nigeria. Therefore, some other provision must be made for the Cameroons before Nigeria attains independence.

The Assembly delegates will hear the views of Cameroonian leaders. About 15 of these leaders, including prime ministers and former prime ministers, are on hand.

One proposal is to divide the British Cameroons, with the northern region joining Nigeria.

The feeling is that the future of the southern region will have to be decided by a plebiscite. The territorial legislature and the British authorities are already agreed that this probably will be necessary. Just what would be the choice in such a plebiscite is far from clear.

There is some sentiment for uniting with the French Cameroons, some for federating with Nigeria as a self-governing area and some for remaining under at least a limited U.N. trusteeship for the present.

The Trusteeship Council tossed the whole issue of the British Cameroons to the Assembly without recommendation. The Assembly may postpone action until its regular session in September. This was suggested by a four-man visiting mission which made a study of the problem recently.

NEAR-COLLISION IN AIR REPORTED, FOURTH OF WEEK

Airliner Pilot Says He Had to Dodge Air Force Plane — FAA Investigating.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP) —A Capital Airlines plane reported another near-miss with an Air Force plane today.

A spokesman for Capital said the pilot of one of its constellations—on an Atlanta-bound flight from Charleston, W.Va.—reported it had to take evasive action to avoid an Air Force C-123 cargo plane over Kentucky.

The incident—the fourth of its kind this week—reportedly occurred about 10:58 a.m. at about 8000 feet in the vicinity of Daley, Ky., near the Tennessee line. Capitol said none of the 27 passengers or five crew members was injured.

Another Capital airliner with 37 passengers aboard reported it had a near-miss with a military B-47 jet bomber near Charlotte, N.C., yesterday. The pilot said the airliner dived to avoid the bomber. Passengers were shaken up, but none was hurt.

About the same time, an American Airlines plane reported narrowly missing a Navy trainer near Indianapolis. There were 23 passengers aboard.

Last Tuesday Eastern Air Lines reported one of its planes had to dodge a B-47 near Chattanooga, Tenn. Three of its 17 passengers were hospitalized.

In the three near-misses this week prior to today 77 passengers were involved.

The Federal Aviation Agency was investigating.

Meanwhile the Air Force called for "more reliable facilities" for all air traffic control.

By United Press International.

Senator A. S. Monroney (Dem.), Oklahoma, said that he was asking F.A.A. Administrator Elwood R. Quesada "what steps are being taken to fix the blame and what action will be taken with respect to the pilots involved, whether civil or military."

CANADA SEEKS NUCLEAR WARHEADS FOR MISSILES FROM U.S., SCRAPS JET

OTTAWA, Feb. 20 (UPI). PRIME MINISTER DIEFENBAKER announced today that Canada was scrapping the C-105 Arrow jet interceptor and asking the United States for nuclear warheads for the Bomarc and Lacrosse guided missiles. He said these will be Canada's future No. 1 defense.

The Prime Minister said negotiations already had started with the United States. He emphasized Canada would not manufacture nuclear weapons, but only store them.

This was the first official statement that Canada was seeking nuclear weapons. United States Strategic Air Command bombers carrying nuclear bombs have flown over Canada, but only with the prior permission of the Canadian government.

Diefenbacker said the speedy Arrow was being abandoned because the future threat would be from intercontinental ballistic missiles and not from bombers.

NATO TO GET BRITISH LONG-RANGE 'V-BOMBERS'

LONDON, Feb. 20 (UPI)— The North Atlantic Treaty Organization soon will get a British "V-bomber" force which will enable it for the first time to deliver atomic weapons to the heart of Russia.

George Ward, British secretary of state for air, announced today that NATO Commander Gen. Lauris Norstad had accepted a British offer of the Royal Air Force bombers.

SUSPECTED OF THEFT FROM TORNADO-DAMAGED BUILDING

A man who said he was Jimmy McLittle, 4200 block of Washington boulevard, was held by police today in the theft of two television sets and a stove from a tornado-damaged building at 4244 Washington.

Police said the stove belonged to Mrs. Georgia Stale and the television sets to Arthur Bugg and Mrs. Gernie Brock. McLittle was booked suspected of burglary.

TYPE B FLU SHOWS UP IN U.S.; EPIDEMIC IN EUROPE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP) —The Public Health Service today said Type B influenza, the kind that has been epidemic in some European countries, is showing up in this country. The United States has not had a major outbreak of type B flu since 1945.

A spokesman said the type B flu that has been reported is milder than the Asian and A types.

SNIFFS LEAD DOCTOR TO JAIL

LONDON, Feb. 20 (AP)—A young doctor accused of taking whiffs of anesthetic during an operation was jailed for 12 months today because his strange addiction caused the death of a 2-year-old boy.

Dr. William Peter Gray pleaded guilty of manslaughter in the death of Keith Goold. The child died after a hernia operation five months ago at which Gray was an anesthetist.

FTC CITES COIN MACHINE FIRM HERE FOR AD CLAIMS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 — Allied Merchandising, Inc., a cigarette vending machine distributing firm at 7307 Olive boulevard, University City, was charged by the Federal Trade Commission today with making false offers of employment and exaggerated claims of earnings in its sales campaigns.

Also named in the complaint were Peter A. Krane, identified as president of the concern; William Dardick, vice president, and Vern F. Hawkins, secretary-treasurer.

The complaint alleged that false claims were made in newspaper advertisements and that the purpose of the advertising was to attract prospective purchasers of machines and not to offer employment, despite such headings as "Wanted, Male or Female, Full or Part Time." A hearing is scheduled to be held before an FTC examiner in St. Louis on April 15.

MASSACHUSETTS TAX WITHHOLDING GOES IN EFFECT

BOSTON, Feb. 20 (AP)—Beginning this week, and continuing hereafter, nearly everybody in Massachusetts with a job will collect a smaller pay check.

That is because a newly enacted state withholding of personal income taxes went into effect Feb. 15.

But it will affect more than those who work for wages and salaries.

Each quarter, it will reach into the pockets of the self-employed and those living on unearned incomes. Such persons are faced with the problem of estimating how much they will earn, or whether the stock they own will pay any dividends in the year ahead—and how much. If they guess too high, it will be many months before they can get the money back. Adjustments on overpayments must come after income tax returns for 1959 are filed next year.

In the meantime, there are other complications.

The withholding provision is retroactive to Jan. 1. Therefore, there will be double withholding deductions on each pay day until the taxes in arrears are made up.

On April 15, income taxpayers with taxes already being deducted from their pay must pay their Massachusetts income tax for last year.

11 COUNTY CITIES TO PUT UNIFORM TORNADO ALARM PLANS IN EFFECT

System Calls for Use of Air Raid, Police Car Sirens — Others Expected to Join Program.

Plans to put into effect a uniform tornado warning system, using air raid and police car sirens, were approved last night by officals of 11 St. Louis county muicipalities.

Four other county municipalities and St. Louis county, whose councils have not yet acted on the plan, indicated they would join the warning network.

The seven-point program, known as the St. Louis County Mutual Natural Disaster Organization, was adopted at a meeting of county mayors and police and fire chiefs at the Glendale City Hall.

Those cities whose councils have approved participation are Glendale, Shrewsbury, Oakland, Crestwood, Rock Hill, Kirkwood, Webster Groves, Richmond Heights, Ladue, Creve Coeur and Warson Woods.

Other cities which have shown an interest in the plan but whose councils have not yet acted include Clayton, Maplewood, Brentwood, and University City.

Possible City Plan.

St. Louis had an observer from its Civil Defense staff present at the meeting but without authority to commit the city. Mayor Raymond R. Tucker and Civil Defense Director Francis P. Hardway are to meet Tuesday to discuss a possible plan for a city tornado warning system.

The program adopted last night calls for the sounding of a uniform and simultaneous signal on the air raid siren system where one exists, and on cruising police automobiles in areas not served by the civil defense sirens.

The only signal approved for this purpose by federal Civil Defense authorities is the present air raid "take cover" signal, which consists of a three-minute, up-and-down wailing sound.

Education Program.

Another feature is a public education program telling people what to do when the siren sounds. The first step in such cases would be to turn on the radio. At least three radio stations are on the air here continuously.

The second step would be to put into effect the safety rules promulgated by the United States Weather Bureau. These in general instruct persons to go to the southwest corner of a basement or, if there is no basement, to take cover under heavy furniture near an inside wall. At all events, stay away from windows and do not go outside. Motorists are advised to leave their cars and lie face down, preferably in a depression.

The all-clear would be given by radio after an advisory from the Weather Bureau. The sirens would be used at any hour, even though many persons might already have their radios and television sets on.

Other Features.

Other aspects of the plan include co-operation with school authorities, uniform methods of handling weather warnings at local headquarters and mutual disaster aid among communities.

Only the Weather Bureau at Lambert-St. Louis Field could originate the warning. It would be issued over the bureau's teletype system to radio stations and other organizations receiving this service.

Meteorologist George Brancato explained that a tornado warning is issued by the bureau only if the characteristic funnel-shaped cloud has been sighted in the vicinity or if atmospheric conditions are verging on tornado production. This warning is distinguished from tornado or severe thunderstorm forecasts which alert the public to the possibility of tornado activity. Sirens will be sounded only if an actual tornado warning is issued.

Used in Glendale.

Lester Saenger, director of Glendale's civil defense unit, noted that objectors to a public warning system had pointed out that "crying wolf" too often would lull the public into carelessness. He countered this argument by stating that Glendale's tornado warning system had been used only twice last year.

"We believe it is better to wake people up when these conditions of extreme danger exist, rather than let them sleep and be blown out of their homes,'" he said.

Further meetings are to be held to determine how the various siren systems are to be co-ordinated and to centralize responsibility for sounding the alarm.

County Supervisor James H. J. McNary expressed the opinion the plan as set forth last night was a good one. He authorized County Civil Defense Director George Kleine to assure the meeting of the co-operation of St. Louis county, as to its unincorporated areas, and he predicted official approval by the County Council when the matter is presented to it.

Population of the areas represented at last night's meeting is 460,198. The county's total population is about 625,000, Saenger said.

Radar Detection.

Professor Edward M. Brooks of St. Louis University's Institute of Technology told the meeting that the best position for radar used in detecting funnel clouds in St. Louis county would be 50 to 60 miles south and west of the St. Louis area.

The tell-tale "hook" echo of a tornado, as seen on the radar screen, is always to be found on the southern edge of the storm-cloud mass, Brooks said. Radar located south of the storm would not have to search through the entire mass of the disturbance and thus would have a better chance of detecting a tornado, he said.

A different view was taken by Brancato, who said the more powerful radar scheduled for installation at Lambert-St. Louis Field would be adequate for tornado warning in this area.

"Radar is only one of the tools useful in detecting tornadoes," he said. "It is helpful in estimating the intensity of the energy present in an approaching thunderstorm, but the final determination of a tornado is still a matter of trained human judgment."

Missouri Civil Defense Director Dean Lupkey called it an "unfortunate thing" that the state civil defense law does not currently include provision for natural disaster. He said legislation amending the law to this end was pending and he hoped for favorable consideration during the current session of the Legislature.

Robert Hyland, general manager of Radio Station KMOX, explained the Conelrad radio system as it would be employed in the event of natural disaster, and offered Conelrad receivers to all communities participating in the plan.

Goldfine's Son Is Fined.

PELHAM, N.Y., Feb. 20 (UPI)—Solomon Goldfine, 32 years old, son of Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine, was fined $100 in police court here last night for driving while his license was revoked.

Post-Dispatch Turns Over Check For $98,880 in Tornado Gifts

(List of contributors Page 6-A)

A check for contributions totaling $98,880 to the Post-Dispatch, KSD and KSD-TV Tornado Relief Fund was turned over to the Red Cross today.

Patricia Winschief, 12 years old, who twice went without lunch to contribute to the fund, represented all the donors in handing the check to G. Chadbourne Taylor, chairman of the St. Louis Bi-State Chapter of the Red Cross.

Meanwhile, the fund rose to $107,725 as $1345 was received this morning. Previously $7500 had been turned over to the Red Cross. Donations arriving henceforth will be forwarded to the Red Cross periodically.

Patricia, a seventh-grade pupil at St. Gabriel School, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Winschief, 6640 Winnebago street. She was chosen to represent the donors because she was the only contributor to send money on two occasions. Her first contribution was 15 cents; a few days later she sent 25 cents.

Her parents said Patricia's gifts were made without their knowledge. "We're very proud," her mother said.

"I heard about the tornado victims, and I felt sorry for them," Patricia said, explaining why she had contributed. "I thought I would go without lunch for a couple of days and it wouldn't hurt me. The first day, I didn't think that was very much to send, and I thought I'd send some more."

In accepting the check, Taylor thanked Patricia and all other donors. He said that an auditor from the national Red Cross staff is here to keep track of all funds spent on tornado relief, and a separate accounting of these funds will be made.

In addition to the Post-Dispatch fund, the Red Cross has received $95,211 in gifts sent directly to the Bi-State Chapter thus far, with some contributions not yet tabulated. The chapter announced last Sunday that it was discontinuing the drive because enough money was then in sight to meet all needs.

The Red Cross announced today that 678 families now have applied for rehabilitation aid as a result of the disaster. The funds turned over today, which began with a $5000 donation by the Post-Dispatch, will be put to immediate use, Taylor said. Recipients of the money need not repay the Red Cross.

The Red Cross will continue to register tornado victims seeking aid tomorrow from 8:30 a.m. to noon at Samaritan Temple Methodist Church, 4234 Washington boulevard; Bricklayers Union Hall, 4020 Page boulevard, and at the chapter headquarters, 4901 Washington.

A depot for free distribution of clothing and furniture to storm sufferers has been established at 2719 Lafayette avenue by the Volunteers of America, the Rev. George Duckworth, officer in charge, announced today. Arrangements have been made to deliver furniture to those who apply for it.

The organization, a non-denominational group, expects to have about 10 tons of clothing to distribute, the Rev. Mr. Duckworth said.

COUNTY CITES 404 FOR DRIVING WITH ONE HEADLIGHT

A campaign by St. Louis county police against motorists with one burned-out headlight on their automobiles has resulted in 404 arrests since Jan. 1, the County Traffic Bureau reported yesterday.

Two hundred fifty-four drivers were given tickets in January and 150 have been arrested so far this month for failure to have both headlights in good working order.

The safety campaign was ordered by Police Superintendent Raymond W. Hensley after he noticed that so few such arrests were being made. There were only three in December. Fine for the offense is $1.

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT STRIKE DEADLINE IS SET BY GUILD

A strike deadline for editorial, advertising and business department employes of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat has been set for tonight, it was announced by the executive committee of the St. Louis Newspaper Guild today.

The committee, which was authorized by the newspaper's Guild unit last Saturday to call a strike in support of contract demands, set the deadline at a meeting last night. Negotiations with management, at offices of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, continued last night and today, but were broken off shortly after noon without a settlement.

The negotiations, which began last Dec. 1 became deadlocked on the issue of employe pensions. The Guild has 332 members in news, advertising, business and other departments.

TEAMSTER UNIT IN DARK 2 WEEKS ON NEW OFFICERS

Joseph Bommarito Named by Gibbons as Head of Cab Drivers Local.

Rank-and-file members of Teamsters local 405 were not officially informed that they had new officers until last Tuesday, although Harold J. Gibbons made the appointments Feb. 3, a former union official said today.

Heading the group of new officers is Joseph Bommarito, a business agent, who was named acting president. A witness before the Senate Labor Rackets Investigating Committee testified last summer that Bommarito was a "strong-arm" unionist who directed goon squad activity in a 1953 taxicab strike here.

Answerable to Gibbons.

Bommarito and six other acting officers were sworn in as members of Local 405's executive board at a meeting of Yellow Taxicab Co. drivers Wednesday. All are directly answerable to Gibbons, executive vice president of the International Teamsters' Union, under a trusteeship.

The other officers are Ted Willy, vice president; Bert Lawler, recording secretary; George Toohey, Dan McAteer and Richard Weidemann, trustees, and Philip Reichardt, secretary-treasurer.

Reichardt and Toohey were reappointed. The other five replaced five officers dismissed summarily by Gibbons last Jan. 31.

The deposed officials were William Boyd, president; Lloyd Young, vice president; R. T. Smith, recording secretary, and Charles Summers and George Reinhart, trustees. They have appealed Gibbons's action to the Teamsters' international executive board.

Opposed Gibbons.

The five who were fired said they had been legally elected in March 1957 and were not told until later that the local was still in trusteeship. They blamed the dismissal on their opposition to Gibbons for the presidency of Teamsters Joint Council 13 in a election held in January 1958. The result of the election is still in dispute.

Gibbons, who said he had appointed the five, issued a statement after the Post-Dispatch learned of the firings that he intended to "poll" the membership before naming new officers.

"No poll was ever taken," one of the former officers said. "News that Gibbons intended to appoint new officers leaked out even before we were dismissed.

"The new group was invited to attend a city-wide policy meeting called by Teamsters' Local 688 in January. We suspected then they were replacing us, because ordinarily the incumbent officers of Local 405 would have been asked to attend."

Fifth-Amendment Witness.

Bommarito refused to testify when called before the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee last August, citing his Fifth Amendment protection against possible self-incrimination.

Evidence was introduced that he suffered a fractured vertebra in December 1953 when he and associates attempted to turn over a taxicab in the strike.

An affidavit by a former member of the union stated that Bommarito threatened members of the man's family because the man had led a wildcat strike not sponsored by the union.

Gibbons could not be reached for a statement today.

The Circuit Attorney's office recommended light punishment for two pawnbrokers who bought $1144 in merchandise stolen from Stix, Baer & Fuller by a former convict, the Post-Dispatch learned today.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Walter L. Brady Jr., who handled the cases, said the evidence was "overwhelming" to show the two men knew the goods had been stolen when they received them.

On Brady's recommendation, Harvey Goldman, 6651 Kingsbury boulevard, University City, was fined $100 after pleading guilty Jan. 28 to a reduced charge of malicious mischief, a misdemeanor. Originally, he had been charged with buying and receiving stolen property, a felony which has a maximum penalty of five years in prison.

Goldman's father, Charles Goldman, 6429 Alamo avenue, Clayton, pleaded guilty to the felony charge, but the circuit attorney's office recommended only a six-month Workhouse sentence.

Parole Application.

Circuit Judge John C. Casey, who accepted the guilty pleas from the Goldmans, has deferred sentence with regard to the elder Goldman, and granted him permission to apply for parole.

The Goldmans operate a pawnshop at 4976 Delmar boulevard. Circuit Attorney Thomas F. Eagleton told the Post-Dispatch he had conferred with Brady before the Goldmans pleaded guilty and concurred in general with his assistant's recommendations.

Asked why he had reduced the charge against Harvey Goldman, Brady said:

"He is a young man, only 24 years old. Besides that, he has one child. He has never been in trouble with the law before.

"He was employed in the store in a clerical capacity. His father was in command, and he acted under the control and domination of his father. In almost every instance, the money given the thief was paid out by his father.

"In addition, Harvey Goldman showed every evidence of contrition for what he had done."

Father Also Contrite.

In explaining the six-month workhouse sentence recommended for Charles Goldman, who is 65 years old, Brady said: "He is an elderly man and very contrite."

Brady stated he also had been informed that the Goldmans would lose their pawnbrokers' license if both were convicted of a felony.

The Goldmans were arrested after James O. Cavanaugh, an ex-convict who was found hiding in Famous-Barr department store Sept. 25, told police he had been stealing on instructions from the pawnbrokers.

Police made a recording as Cavanaugh telephoned the pawnshop, gave a code name and received instructions to "bring along" clothing he said he had, but to "be very careful."

At the pawnshop, police found 15 suits and other articles of clothing, with a total value of $1144, which had been stolen on three separate occasions from Stix, Baer & Fuller. The suits had the store's labels on them.

Cavanaugh, who was sentenced to a year in the Workhouse for the thefts, told police he hid overnight in the department store, taking the clothing and leaving the following morning when the store opened. He said he selected items according to sizes requested by the Goldmans.

James W. Connor, executive director of the St. Louis Crime Commission, said today:

"In my opinion, the disposition of the case against Harvey Goldman, wherein he was allowed to plead guilty to malicious mischief and pay a $100 fine, is a blow to law enforcement."

City to Fight Police Board On Funds Issue, Mayor Says

Undemocratic to Let Group Have Unlimited Call on Tax Money, No Part in Raising It, He Asserts.

The City of St. Louis will oppose vigorously efforts by the Police Board to force the city to increase police appropriations, Mayor Raymond R. Tucker said today.

The Police Board will file a petition with the Missouri Supreme Court Monday, seeking a writ of mandamus to compel the city to give the board an additional $640,000 for the fiscal year which ends March 31.

"We believe it is contrary to all democratic principles to give an appointed board unlimited power to spend tax funds, without any obligation to provide such revenue," Tucker said.

At the same time, the Mayor disclosed the Board of Estimate and Apportionment will seek amendment of a bill pending in the Missouri Legislature to clarify the city's fiscal relationship with the Police Department.

The bill, introduced in the House, would give the Estimate Board complete control over the police budget. The amendment proposed by the board would provide that the Police Department's budget for any one year shall not be less than 20 per cent of the city's anticipated revenue for operating purposes that year.

"This, I believe, would guarantee the Police Department a fair share of the city's tax revenue, while not permitting it to spend to the detriment of other city services," Mayor Tucker said.

Asserting that the city will vigorously oppose an attempt by the Police Board to get a Supreme Court mandamus order, he said:

"The Board of Police Commissioners is fully aware that it has been spending funds at a rate in excess of its appropriations, while other city departments have been forced to adhere to these appropriations.

"The desire of the Police Department to improve the department's operation in the face of a rising crime rate is laudable. Those of us responsible for municipal functions such as hospitals, street maintenance, traffic, public health and other services share that desire.

"However, such improvements must be made within the limits of funds available. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment does not believe that it is sound policy to grant budget increases in one service to the detriment of others which are equally important to the taxpayers."

The Police Board contends the city is required by state law to pay the department's properly certified expenses. The city, challenging this contention, reduced the requested appropriations by $640,000 in line with cuts made in budget requests by municipally-controlled departments.

TOMORROW LAST DAY FOR VOTERS TO BE REGISTERED

New registrations and transfers of registrations for voters who have moved will be accepted at the offices of the Board of Election Commissioners, 208 South Twelfth boulevard, until 9 p.m. today. The offices will be open tomorrow from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. for this purpose.

Tomorrow is the final day to register or transfer registration for the March 10 city primary election and the April 7 general election, Harry F. Leitz, chief clerk, said.

Voters who move after tomorrow will have until Feb. 28 to transfer their registration to their new addresses but they must appear at the board offices to do so.

MORE THAN ONE METROPOLITAN DISTRICT URGED

Sewer Official Explains Financing Benefits of Establishing Several Agencies.

Advantages of separate metropolitan districts for separate purposes, as opposed to establishing a single district with several functions, were pointed out last night by William Q. Kehr, executive director of the Metropolitan Sewer District.

He was a panel speaker on Television Station KETC on a program sponsored by the Citizens Committee for City-County Co-operation.

Under a constitutional limitation, each district can issue revenue bonds up to 5 per cent of its assessed valuation, Kehr pointed out. Thus the sewer district can have bonds to that amount, and a transit district could issue its bonds for the same.

If there were only one district, or consolidated government for all purposes, the total limit for all purposes would be 5 per cent, he said.

A Board of Freeholders is considering two opposing plans for co-ordination of governmental functions in St. Louis and St. Louis county. One calls for merger and the other for a metropolitan district.

Kehr recalled some experience of the sewer district to illustrate his point. In the Creve Coeur-Frontenac subdistrict and the Affton subdistrict it was necessary to levy for the full 5 per cent of valuation, but for the Maline Creek trunk sewer the necessary bonds amounted to only 2.5 per cent.

He also cautioned that it would be dangerous to use up the bonding limit for one or more purposes, because future needs cannot be predicted.

To illustrate that, he said that although Civil Defense needs now are limited, there could be a sudden new demand for an expanded air raid warning system and for shelters, at great expense.

EDWARDSVILLE BOY KILLED WHEN STRUCK BY TRUCK

Keith Malone, 13-year-old son of Mrs. Louise Taylor of Edwardsville, was killed yesterday when he was struck by a truck near the Edwardsville High School.

The driver was Wallace F. Swigelson, 4418 Red Bud avenue. Witnesses said the boy ran into the street when a traffic signal was in Swigelson's favor. Keith lived with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Hays, at 242 West Union street, Edwardsville.

Costello

meated with the fruit of illegal wiretaps."

The Government appealed and the Supreme Court early in 1958 reversed on a technicality the dismissal of the action and remanded it for another trial.

The Government then set out again to achieve it goal employing evidence I. said was not obtained by wiretaps.

Costello long has been regarded as one of the topmost men in the underworld, and at one time was called its "prime minister."

His croaky voice—but not his face—became familiar to millions of Americans a few years ago during the nationally televised New York hearings on crime conducted by the Senate committee headed by Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee.

Only Costello's voice was heard during his witness chair appearances because of his demand that his face not be shown. Viewers now and then caught a glimpse of his hands as he traded remarks with Rudolph Halley, chief counsel of the committee.

Accused as Rum-Runner.

I. the second trial the Government introduced evidence th Costello, during the prohibition era, had an extensive rum-running career at the very time he had sworn to uphold the Constitution.

Judge Dawson pointed out that the Government was not seeking to denaturalize Costello because he was a bootlegger but to restore the citizenship status as it existed prior to Sept. 10, 1925, on the ground that any change in that status was accomplished by fraud.

Judge Dawson, in conclusion, said, "if the true facts had been revealed or known, defendant's petition for naturalization would have been denied."

By United Press International.

Costello was apparently immune from the law for 37 years in which he operated as a bootlegger, slot-machine king, gambling club impressario, New York political fixer and alleged big boss of much of the nation's racket underworld.

He came a cropper when he went before the Kefauver committee in the role of a respectable retired business man and began to testify freely. When the questions got too hot, Costello took refuge in a sore throat. The courts ruled he was in contempt and he went to jail for the first time since the 1915 gun-carrying conviction.

His testimony had also opened the way to the income tax and denaturalization cases with which he has been in the courts and in and out of jail almost constantly for the last seven years.

Costello — born Francisco Castiglia—was brought to the tough New York slums from Italy at the age of four. He never finished grade school. But he became wealthy on the weaknesses of his customers; his Long Island estate and Manhattan apartment were the equals of theirs; he rubbed shoulders with them in the best bars and barbershops.

He appeared never to have understood why that did not make him "respectable."

During the Kefauver hearings, the late Senator Charles W. Tobey sharply rebuked Costello on his patriotism.

"You must have in your mind some things you have done that you can speak of to your credit as an American citizen," Tobey barked at him. "If so, what are they?"

Costello appeared bewildered. He was without an immediate answer. Then he replied: "Paid my tax."

Living Costs

of three-tenths of 1 per cent in food prices.

The upturn halted a decline in food costs that had continued for five months. In addition, Clauge observed, the increase was contrary to the usual trend, for food prices customarily drop in January. He attributed higher food prices principally to smaller supplies of cattle sent to market.

Rise in Food Index.

The food index, at 119, was seven-tenths of 1 per cent higher than in January 1958. Other sections of the price index that showed increases were: Medical care, three-tenths of 1 per cent; personal care, four-tenths of 1 per cent, and reading and recreation, one-tenth of 1 per cent.

Costs of apparel dropped eight-tenths of 1 per cent, and transportation costs were down two-tenths of 1 per cent. A decline of 1.8 per cent in selling prices of new automobiles was responsible for the decline in transportation costs, offsetting increases in automobile insurance.

Clague said spendable earnings for factory workers last month were about $1.10 below the December level. They averaged $78.70 weekly after taxes for workers with three dependents and $71.20 for workers with no dependents.

Clague said the increase in the cost of living index will mean a wage increase of one cent an hour for about 82,000 workers whose wages, under terms of labor contracts, are tied to changes in the cost of living. The workers are employed by aircraft and farm implement manufacturers.

Clague said 1,250,000 automobile workers will not receive any increase because the change in the index was too small.

Food prices in the St. Louis area rose 0.3 per cent last month, the Government reported today. The food price index for St. Louis for January was 1.1 per cent above that of a year ago, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Increases of 2.2 per cent were noted for fruits and vegetables between December and January. Prices of cereals and bakery goods rose by 0.2 per cent. Decreases of 0.3 per cent in meats, poultry and fish and 0.1 per cent in other foods were reported for the period.

Compared with the index for January a year ago, increases of 2.6 per cent were reported for meats, poultry and fish; 2.1 per cent for dairy products and 1.1 per cent for fruits and vegetables. Price of cereals and bakery goods decreased 0.4 per cent and "other foods at home," 2.7 per cent, the bureau said.

Moscow

"nothing ought to be excluded. We must be firm. But we must be flexible."

By the Associated Press.

In the formulation of a firm Allied policy "great decisions will have to be taken," Macmillan said.

"We shall have to face, in the next period, the supreme test of direct negotiations with the Soviet government," he continued. "It is for that—and it is a grim prospect as well as an inspiring one—that we have to fit ourselves."

Brushing aside suggestions that his Moscow trip was linked with domestic political considerations, Macmillan stated:

"The truth is that I have been making, for some time, quite strenuous efforts to get to the summit, but it has seemed to be a very difficult and disappointing journey."

Meanwhile, a leading Soviet weekly reported yesterday that Russia is willing to hold broad negotiations with the West on Germany.

An article in New Times in Moscow indicated the Soviets hope Macmillan will be prepared for some hard talking on Germany during his visit. The article, by commentator A. Leonidov, said:

"To take the 'detonator' out of the European situation is not so simple. The Soviet Union proposes to solve it by having all Germany, both East and West, leave the blocs, NATO as well as the Warsaw pact, and place itself in a guaranteed zone of peace in central Europe.

"There are other means of accomplishing this and the Soviet Union does not refuse to discuss any such proposals.

"But if Europe and the entire world is to work and live in tranquillity and move ahead with the grandeur of this epoch, the German question must be settled in a spirit of guaranteed security. For western Europe this has become an urgent special necessity."

with them and congratulated them on their daring. Mr. Eisenhower asked the smallest diver how old he was. The boy told him he was 14.

A large crowd gathered in the square before the hotel and many Mexicans particularly called "Ike" when Mr. Eisenhower climbed into a White House car and stood up and waved. The President was given several floral tributes, and was driven away standing and waving.

Mr. Eisenhower had an early breakfast with his staff this morning and after handling some office work went out on the hotel lawn to chip golf balls. The President practiced short shots ranging up to 120 yards.

If the weather is pleasant in Augusta, Ga., the President plans to stop for some golf before returning to Washington. His schedule calls for departure from Acapulco tonight.

Mr. Eisenhower was informed by the State Department last night that the British, Greek and Turkish governments and representatives of the Cypriot people had concluded an agreement on the future status of the island of Cyprus in the Mediterranean.

Today the President sent cables of congratulation to Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain, Prime Minister Karamanlis of Greece and Prime Minister Menderes of Turkey.

Mr. Eisenhower said the agreement would strengthen the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the free world. He termed it "a victory of common sense" and "an imaginative and courageous act of statesmanship."

ing meters and putting up lights.

The revenue bonds would be paid out of receipts from parking meters on the site, which is 425 feet wide and 114 feet deep, with space to accommodate 132 automobiles. Money spent for improvements would be taken from the general parking meter fund.

The site is owned by Wellston Parking Inc., headed by Philip Kopitsky, board chairman of the State Bank of Wellston. The organization has agreed to sell it to the city.

Tornado Inquiry Tabled.

The Board of Aldermen tabled a resolution of the St. Louis County Council calling for a joint investigation of a delay in notifying Civil Defense leaders of the tornado Feb. 10.

Alderman Edgar J. Feely (Dem.), Twentieth ward, chairman of the aldermanic public safety committee, said he could not see that anything would be accomplished by having such an investigation.

Alderman James Geisler (Dem.), Tenth ward, said adoption of the resolution would place the St. Louis aldermen in a peculiar position, since they are on record as praising the way in which the public agencies conducted themselves in the tornado emergency.

Several aldermen said they felt a co-operative effort with the county on civil defense activities would be beneficial, but they saw nothing to be gained by an inquiry as proposed by the Council.

Allemania and Gravois avenues; Germania avenue and Morganford road; Grand boulevard and Delor street; Hodiamont tracks and Kingshighway; Hodiamont tracks and Union boulevard; Compton avenue and Arsenal street; Oakland and McCausland avenues Hampton and Southwest avenue.

Hampton and Watson road; Southwest and Watson, Kingshighway and Pernod avenue; Grand and Finney avenue; Magnolia and Tower Grove avenues; Compton and Washington, Chouteau and Spring avenues; Chouteau and Thirty-ninth street.

Bills were introduced for installation of stop signs on Thirty-ninth and Shenandoah avenue; January avenue at Pernod; Oleatha avenue at January; Tholozan avenue at January; Mardel avenue at January, and Lindenwood avenue at January.

Also introduced were bills to restrict traffic to one way on the following streets: Westbound on Calhoun street from Twelfth to Thirteenth street; westbound on Quincy street from Leona avenue to Morganford; eastbound on Wells avenue from Hodiamont to Union.

NOT IN PRO-HARRIS GROUP

James J. Rankin, an attorney, said today that he is not a member of the lawyers committee which has announced its support of Alderman Alfred I. Harris for the Democratic nomination for president of the Board of Aldermen.

Fred Emig, campaign manager for Harris, said Rankin's name was included in the list of committee members as the result of a clerical error at campaign headquarters.

and the second about 6,000,000 pounds of thrust.

Soft Landing on Moon.

Silverstein testified that the second cluster will be just capable of sending a 2000-pound manned space vehicle to a soft landing on the moon with 18,000 pounds of fuel for a return to earth.

He said this would be a "minimum" moon trip.

The big cluster will have these other capabalities:

In a low orbit, it could create a satellite weighing 150,000 pounds. Silverstein said that will be the beginning of "manned, orbiting space laboratories."

At an altitude of 22,000 miles above the earth, it could create a satellite weighing 42,000 pounds. Such a satellite would revolve at the same rate as the earth turns, once every 24 hours, and thus would appear to be stationary.

Silverstein said the payload which other rockets could send for a soft landing on the moon would be: Atlas-Hustler, 300 pounds; Vega and Centaur, 750 pounds; and million-pound Cluster, 1800 pounds.

None of these would be large enough for a manned flight to the moon.

The witness said that Vega and Centaur will be approximately equal to the launcher with which the Russians fired "Lunik I."

The United States missile family also will include a workhorse called the Scout, a multi-staged solid fueled rocket to launch satellites weighing up to 150 pounds. Silverstein said this may cost only a fifth as much as the liquid fueled rockets now used for the same job.

Rising Costs.

By the Associated Press.

Space program costs this year and next will be boosted by the planned launching of 30 satellites and about 140 probing rockets, Glennan said.

Glennan said the NASA schedule calls for 15 experimental satellite launchings this year and the same number in 1960. Forty probing rockets will be fired into space this year and about 100 next year, he added.

On the plus side of the space ledger, Glennan said experts estimate the value of advances in meteorology and communications steeming from the satellite program will be in the billions of dollars.

MRS. HENEAGE WHEELER DIES IN ENGLAND; EX-ST. LOUISAN

Mrs. Heneage G. Wheeler, member of an old St. Louis family, died Wednesday of pneumonia at her home in Bexhill-on-Sea, Sussex, England, friends here learned today. She was 73 years old.

Mrs. Wheeler was the former Florence Hayes, daughter of the late Joseph M. Hayes, a banker, and Mrs. Hayes. Mrs. Wheeler's husband is a retired British Army major.

Surviving are a son, Heneage Jr., and a daughter, Miss Frances Wheeler, and two sisters, Miss Adele Hayes, 4916 McPherson avenue, and Mrs. Walter K. Sturges of New York.

GROUP HOPES TO SEE VANGUARD HERE TOMORROW

Vanguard II, the new United States satellite, should be within telescope view of St. Louis at approximately 4:02 o'clock tomorrow morning, Stuart L. O'Byrne, St. Louis Moonwatch team leader, said today.

"I think it will be much too far away to be seen with the naked eye," he said. O'Byrne said two passages Sunday morning, at 3:08 and 5:14, might be seen from here with instruments. They will be in the southern sky, west to east.

The Moonwatch team here has five large, 6-inch reflector telescopes which will have no trouble picking up Vanguard II at 1200 miles range if the weather is right, O'Byrne said. The team may try an observation tomorrow or Sunday.

Headquarters for Moonwatch observations is near Mason and Ladue roads, in St. Louis county

School Hearing Group Upholds Firing Ordered by Fletcher

The firing of Frank Cather as a clerk in the school building department last December was upheld yesterday by a special committee of the Board of Education. Cather was fined by George H. Fletcher, then School Board building commissioner, after he gave a deposition unfavorable to Fletcher in connection with the successful suit to oust the building commissioner for gross misconduct in office.

The special committee, which met in executive session, was split in its decision, 2-to-1, it was learned. Committee chairman Donald L. Carpenter and Charles J. Dyer voted to uphold the dismissal. The third member, Daniel L. Schlafly, a plaintiff in the suit to oust Fletcher, dissented.

By the same vote the committee also concurred in Fletcher's discharge of Cather's uncle, Henry Cather, who was a tuckpointer for the school board. Henry Cather did not testify in the ouster suit.

Frank Cather was fired by Fletcher last Dec. 12 "for abuse of sick leave and vacations and for other reasons."

Cather Plans Appeal.

Cather told a reporter he intends to appeal the committee's decision to the full board. He contended the committee was prejudiced, saying "Dyer and Carpenter had personal reasons for voting the way they did, in my opinion." He declined to elaborate on that statement.

In his deposition, Cather testified that Fletcher knew of a raffle conducted in the shops office, 3416 Thomas street, in the fall of 1956. He said Fletcher told him on one occasion "to go out to the shops office and keep an eye on the raffle to see how much is paid out to winners and how much is kept there."

Raffles are sometimes conducted in the building department as a means of raising funds for political purposes. Part of the money collected is given out as prizes at a drawing and the remainder is used for political campaigns.

Committee Met Three Times.

The special committee, appointed by Board President H. Le Bruns, held three executive sessions. At the hearings, Cather, who was represented by an attorney, offered building department records to support his contention that he had taken no more than the allotted number of sick leave days and that the vacation time he selected was approved by his superiors.

He also produced an affidavit by his physician to show he was actually ill on the days he took sick leave.

Building department officials told the committee they could not explain what Fletcher had meant by "other reasons" in the dismissal notice to Cather. They also said they did not know why Cather's uncle had been discharged.

Cather and his uncle live at 5416A Thrush avenue. The younger man's clerk's job paid $420 a month. He had been employed by the School Board since 1949.

CONGO OPPOSITION LEADER ARRESTED

BRAZZAVILLE, French Middle Congo, Feb. 20 (AP)—The arrest of opposition leader Jacques Opangault raised tensions here today following political riots in which 96 persons have been killed.

Nine planeloads of police and troop reinforcements were flown into this capital last night. Some of the troops barricaded the city while others swept through the African quarters of Poto Poto and Bacongo on each side of the European city.

Europeans feared the slightest incident could again set off fighting between the followers of Opangault and Premier Abbe Fulbert Youlou, who is in firm control of the government.

Opangault was arrested last night and charged with sedition. He is a leader of the Socialist party in the semi-autonomous republic of the Congo. The Mboshi tribe furnishes much support to the party. Youlou draws his support from the Balari tribe.

This tribal rivalry compounded with internal politics led to the explosion of violence which has so far not involved the 3000 Europeans in Brazzaville.

Troops Flown to Nyasaland After Riot at Jail.

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia, Feb. 20 (AP)—Troops and police reinforcements were flown today to Karonga, Nyasaland, where Africans rioted and freed a prisoner from the local jail.

Sir Roy Welensky, Prime Minister of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, said the First Battalion of the King's African Rifles was flying to the area from Kusaka at the request of the Governor of Nyasaland.

The Nyasaland Government said the rioters released a prisoner despite efforts by police to stop them with smoke and tear gas, and then attacked policemen's families and damaged installations at the local airport.

Unconfirmed reports said 50 prisoners had been set free.

TRUST COUNTS FILED IN MAGAZINE SALES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP)—Anti-trust charges were filed yesterday against the country's two largest newsstand chains and the publishers and distributors of many of the biggest magazines.

The Federal Trade Commission accused American News Co. and its subsidiary, Union News Co., of forcing publishers to pay illegal and discriminatory allowances for promoting the magazines.

The publishers and supplying companies were charged with violating the Robinson-Patman price discrimination law by making payments to American and Union while not making them to other newsstand companies.

The complaints named Select Magazines, Inc., which distributes the magazines of six publisher-owners; McCall Corp., Readers Digest Association, Inc., Street & Smith Publications, Time, Inc., Popular Science Publishing Co., Inc., and Meredith Publishing Co., Inc., of Des Moines, Ia.

Charges were lodged also against Curtis Publishing Co., Philadelphia, publishers of the Saturday Evening Post and other magazines, and two of its subsidiaries, Curtis Circulation Co., Inc., of Philadelphia and the American Home Magazine Corp., New York, and these additional companies:

Cowles Magazines, Inc., Esquire, Inc., New Yorker Magazine, Inc., Newsweek, Inc., Hearst Corp., Macfadden Publications, Inc., all of New York; Fawcett Publications, Inc., Greenwich, Conn.; Triangle Publications, Inc., Philadelphia, and Bayuk Cigars, Inc., Philadelphia.

The two newsstand chains were accused of coercing the publishers, and trying to coerce major cigar manufacturers, into paying promotional allowances which they "knew or should have known" were not available to competing newsstands.

The chains violated the Trade Commission Act, it was stated, by using their economic power to get the allowances: "They threaten to and do stop buying from suppliers refusing their demands."

FTC said Union News operates about 1500 newsstands across the country and in 1957 received about $700,000 for promoting, displaying and selling various publications.

Bayuk Cigars, Inc., was alleged to have made discriminatory payments to Union News for advertising its cigars on book matches.

A hearing was scheduled before an FTC examiner in New York April 14 on all the cases except two. The hearing on American News will be April 15 and on Bayuk Cigars April 17, both in New York.

FTC Refuses Broad Inquiry Into Advertising of Antibiotics

By SAM B. ARMSTRONG
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 — The Federal Trade Commission is prepared to discuss high prices of antibiotics and other drugs and the promotional methods employed by their manufacturers, United States Senator Warren G. Magnuson (Dem.), Washington, was told today.

But the commission rejected Senator Magnuson's suggestion that its study, which resulted in an economic report on antibiotics manufacture, be broadened to include merchandising and advertising practices.

"I am well aware of your concern about the high price of medicines and drugs," FTC Chairman John W. Gwynne wrote in reply to a letter from Senator Magnuson in which he referred to the "extravagant claims for certain antibiotics." Advertising claims have been the subject of caustic criticism by some distinguished members of the medical profession.

Price-fixing Inquiry.

"I assure you that the commission has a parallel interest. We are, as you know, holding hearings in a case involving allegations that the prices of tetracycline were fixed by agreement among the manufacturers.

"The FTC will examine and take appropriate action with respect to any action which comes to it from your committee or elsewhere which indicates any illegal activity on the part of drug manufacturers or distributors.

"We are prepared to discuss the general subject at the time the Independent Offices subcommittee considers the FTC 1960 budget, or at any other time, at your discretion."

Senator Magnuson, chairman of the Senate Interstate and Foregin Commerce Committee, had suggested that a discussion of a broadened investigation be held when the FTC budget comes before the subcommittee, of which he also is chairman, next month. He had told Gwynne that he thought Congress should provide any additional appropriation necessary to carry out such a study.

Mostly on Prescription.

In explaining his position, Gwynne pointed out that more than 99 per cent of antibiotics for medicinal purposes were sold as ethical drugs, that is, dispensed only on prescription of licensed physicians. He then observed that advertising for such antibiotics is "prepared for and presented only to physicians."

He contended that FTC jurisdiction was limited by a legal provision that "no advertisement of a drug shall be deemed to be false if it is disseminated only to members of the medical profession, contains no false representation of a material fact and includes, or is accompanied by truthful disclosure of the formula showing quantitatively each ingredient of such drug."

Gwynne said that there was no question about the jurisdiction of the FTC in matters involving false representation made to doctors of "material facts" where such misrepresentations do not concern the therapeutic properties of the drugs.

However, he went on, "a more difficult question is posed by the application of the section to advertising claims made exclusively to doctors for the therapeutic properties of a drug preparation.

"The issue would be the validity of the opinions of physicians and scientists upon which the advertising claims are based, such opinions being drawn from the medical, scientific and research data available. A determination by the commission of the issue thus posed would seem to come within the limitation imposed by the statute in that there is no false representation of a material fact."

Under this construction, the FTC would not have jurisdiction to deal with such misleading advertising as that employed by Chas. Pfizer & Co. in promoting Sigmamycin. A brochure mailed to physicians reproduced "professional cards" of fictitious doctors under the caption: "More and More Physicians Find Sigmamycin the Antibiotic Therapy of Choice."

Pfizer officials agreed that such promotion was "questionable" after the Saturday Review, a weekly magazine, and the Post-Dispatch, in separate investigations, determined that the cards were not bona fide and called attention to dubious antibiotic promotion, deplored by many doctors.

The Federal Food and Drug Department has jurisdiction only over labeling.

Senator Magnuson had called attention to the fact that sale of a fixed combination of drugs was taking the place of compounding of prescriptions as written by a physician without reference to the possibility that some individuals could not tolerate some of the ingredients.

To this, Gwynne replied that the FTC study had showed that about 80 per cent of ethical drugs are being dispensed in the form in which they are prepared and delivered to the druggist by the manufacturer.

The commission had concluded, he added, that there is "no tenable theory of law violation" and that "the concern you mention as to the unavailability of compounds of drugs other than those sold by the manufacturer and the adverse effects which may come to the patient because of the fixed character of drug compounds, is one entirely within the judgment and discretion of the physician."

As to the effect on drug prices, Gwynne said that the commission's information "does not indicate that this shift in the methods of compounding medicines has initiated an economic trend justifying an investigation of this commission."

Studies have shown that the average cost of all prescriptions (antibiotics are usually most expensive) in 1947 was $1.51; in 1956, it was $2.62, an increase of 73 per cent in a period during which the overall living cost rose 18 per cent. Drug sales tripled in that period, rising from $512,000,000 to $1,500,000,000.

Drug sales for 1958 were $2,500,000,000 and a prediction of $5,200,000,000 by 1975 was made at a regional meeting last week of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers' Association at Chicago.

REA Group Says It Got Different Specifications for Fulton Bid

By ROBERT H. COLLINS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 20 —Provisions of a contract submitted by the Missouri Power & Light Co. for furnishing power to the Fulton State Hospital were based on requirements substantially different from those given an REA electric co-operative, a state legislative committee was told yesterday.

Gov. James T. Blair, who had awarded the contract to Missouri Power & Light but canceled it when a controversy arose, attended a hearing held by a House committee named to look into circumstances of the contract award.

Blair, accompanied by his brother, Circuit Judge Sam Blair, sat in the front row of the House lounge and remained throughout the four-and-one-half-hour session. He listened intently, occasionally indicating to his assistants some point in which he was particularly interested. He declined to comment on the matter following the hearing.

Got Copy of Contract.

James P. McClanahan, manager of the Callaway Electric Co-operative, told the committee he obtained a copy of the Missouri Power & Light contract after it had been approved by the state.

"It was based on information altogether different from what had been indicated to the co-operative were the state's requirements at the hospital," he said.

"The contract provided that Missouri Power & Light would supply power five months each year to the main part of the hospital and to the geriatrics buildings."

No such requirements were given to the co-operative as a basis for its bid to supply power at the Fulton institution, he added.

"Our proposal was based only on supplying the geriatrics buildings which are outside the city limits, and to be on emergency stand-by basis for the rest of the hospital," McClanahan stated.

He told the committee that a "mutual understanding" had existed for a long time between Callaway Co-operative and Missouri Power & Light that neither would attempt to serve a customer of the other.

Says Pact Was Breached.

"However, we feel that when Missouri Power & Light negotiated a contract for the geriatrics buildings at the same site where we had been furnishing power for some farm buildings, there was a definite breach of this understanding," McClanahan said.

"This follows a nation-wide pattern of big utilities against co-operatives."

The Callaway Co-operative official said his organization could have saved the state a minimum of $6000 a year "just at the beginning" if it received the Fulton hospital contract.

"Later, the savings would be much greater," he continued. "We invite the committee to employ a disinterested engineer for the purpose of making a study and reporting back to this committee as to which was the more economical proposal for the state."

Believes Injunction Possible.

Clyde Burch, city attorney of Fulton, which has a municipal power plant, said he believes the state of Missouri could be enjoined from permitting Missouri Power & Light or any other outside source from providing electricity to the Fulton State Hospital.

Burch, one of eight witnesses who appeared before the committee yesterday, said he felt a request by the city for an injunction would be successful "unless there is a change in public policy through legislation or a decision on the fr- chise rights of a city by the Supreme Court."

Burch said the policy generally throughout the nation is against parallel utilities competing inside a city.

Fulton's position in the controversy has been that the city's municipally-owned plant has exclusive franchise rights within the city limits, and Missouri Power & Light Co., cannot furnish power to the main part of the hospital because it is inside the Fulton city limits.

Most Economical Way.

Representative Thomas A. Walsh (Dem.), St. Louis, questioned witnesses repeatedly as to whether they felt the state would save money by generating electricity with its own plant at the hospital, rather than buying power from an outside source.

In reply to one such question, W. C. Whitlow, a Fulton attorney and also a member of the City Council's Utilities Committee, replied: "I don't see how any one could take any other position than that the most economical thing the state could do in this matter would be to generate its own power, especially when it is taken into consideration that the steam used to heat the hospital also generates power.

"I strongly feel the logical thing for the state to do is provide its own power at the hospital, but we feel we have the right to supply electricity if any is needed from an outside source."

Truman Green, manager of the Central Electric Co-operative, told the committee, that the state could generate its own electricity at the hospital more cheaply than it could be bought.

Representative Cornelius Costello (Dem.), Kansas City, committee chairman, said Missouri Power & Light officials probably will be heard next, but no date for another session has been fixed.

STUDENTS IN BEATING CASE ARE PENALIZED

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 20—Disciplinary action has been taken with regard to all University of Missouri students known to have taken part in the invasion of a private home here, President Elmer Ellis of the university announced today.

Ellis said the penalties included dismissal, suspension until next Sept. 1 and disciplinary probation. He did not give the names of those disciplined or the number of students who were penalized.

Nine university students, all affiliated with Phi Delta Theta fraternity, have been charged with assault and burglary in connection with the beating of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Collins and the wrecking of furniture in their home last Sunday. Three of the youths are from St. Louis county.

A statement issued by Ellis said:

"The faculty committee on student conduct has completed its investigation of the events of the morning of Feb. 15, 1959, when several students of the university were apprehended by police on Pershing road in Columbia.

"The committee has taken the action that it deems appropriate in the cases of all students known to have had any part in the event.

"Finding some individuals who have been more reprehensible in their conduct than others, the committee has seen fit to impose upon all of the students involved one of the penalties normally used: dismissal, suspension until Sept. 1, 1959, and disciplinary probation.

"I call attention to a statement in the student handbook: 'The University expects every student to act in such a way as to be a credit to the University and to conduct himself at all times and on every occasion in accordance with good taste and to observe the regulations of the University, the laws of the city, state and national governments that apply to matters of conduct.'

"Students who cannot conduct themselves in accordance with this rule have no place at the University of Missouri."

Eight of the nine students facing criminal charges will have a preliminary hearing Wednesday. The hearing for the ninth will be next Friday. All have been released on $1000 bonds.

The St. Louis county youths charged are: John J. Leber, 3842 Melba place, Arbor Terrace; John Warren Teasdale, 18 Beverly drive, Olivette, and Robert J. Dierberg, Graeser road, Creve Coeur.

ILLINOIS PERMANENTLY BARS SALE OF LAMILINE STOCK

An order permanently enjoining Lamiline Pools, Inc., of Edwardsville from selling its stock in Illinois has been issued by Circuit Judge Joseph J. Barr at Edwardsville, it was announced yesterday.

The company, incorporated in Delaware to build leakproof swimming pools by using a resin-base paint, did not contest the order. A temporary injunction had been issued last Nov. 10 on a petition filed by Illinois Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier.

Carpentier said the securities division of his office found the company had failed to comply with Illinois law in selling about $90,000 worth of common stock, mostly to residents of the Alton-Edwardsville area.

RECORD DEALER TELLS OF BULLET AS SALES DEVICE

(Picture in Everyday Magazine)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP) —A phonograph record distributor swore today that singer Tommy Leonetti's onetime manager juggled what looked like a bullet, while urging him to handle one of Leonetti's records.

Ted Sipiora, co-onwer of the Singer One Stop Record Co., told the Senate Rackets Committee the man was John Ambrosia.

He testified that Ambrosia, after expressing disappointment because the company would not buy Leonetti's record on the ground it wasn't very good, started flipping "what we thought was a bullet."

"He said these things can be dangerous—they can penetrate flesh," Sipiora testified.

"We bought some of the records," he added laconically.

Sipiora said the incident was six or seven years ago, when "Leonetti was just coming up" in the singing world.

Committee Counsel Robert F. Kennedy asked whether Sipiora knew Ambrosia had underworld connections.

"We learned soon after, that he did have underworld connections," Sipiora said, "and that he had contacted others."

Kennedy previously had said Leonetti told him that the singer was not aware at the time of his manager's underworld connections.

Teamster Named.

Another committee witness testified that a Teamster union officer tried to push a Leonetti record into Chicago jukeboxes without the singer's knowledge.

Lindleoff denied committee assertions he was afraid to testify.

Kennedy protested that Lindleoff was pleading he could not remember things Kennedy contended Lindleoff had told him in Chicago just six weeks ago.

"Isn't it a fact that you are frightened to co-operate now?" Kennedy asked.

"No, I wouldn't say that," Lindleoff replied. He said he cannot recall whether he told Kennedy in Chicago of being scared, and said "I have never been threatened."

Lindleoff testified that his General Music Corp. signed agreements with Local 134 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and with the Commercial Phonograph Survey Co. He said he did so to assure labor peace and get protection against loss of business to firms Kennedy contends are gangster controlled.

Robert Lindleoff, Skokie (Ill.) jukebox operator and president of Music Operators of Northern Illinois, a trade association, testified that he turned down requests to feature the record.

Lindleoff said the requests came from Joseph Glimco, president of Chicago Teamsters local 777.

Under questioning, Lindleoff said Glimco asked him to announce at a meeting of the operators association that Leonetti's record would be "the record of the day, on the No. 1 spot."

"Which I did not do," Lindleoff added.

The name of the record was not mentioned.

The witness testified also that he and many other jukebox operators "have to" buy records for their jukeboxes from a firm the committee says is gangster-run.

The testimony capped some sharp exchanges in which Kennedy charged that Lindleoff was afraid to tell frankly of gangster infiltration of the jukebox industry in suburban Chicago.

Lindleoff testified he and other operators pay 5 cents a record more than they would have to pay to buy the records from similar companies handling records of various manufacturing firms.

Witness Balks.

Senate committee members waited yesterday for an answer after asking a witness: Had he been told he would be dropped in the river with concrete blocks tied to his feet unless the man sitting next to him at the hearing were taken into his vending machine business as a partner?

The witness, Ralph Kelly of Elgin, Ill., hesitated. The husky man sitting next to him, Rocco Pranno, glared at him.

Kelly replied: "I decline to answer because my answer might tend to incriminate me."

Committee Chairman John L. McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas, thundered: "Are you going to let this fellow keep you under a state of fear for the rest of your life?"

SENT PRESIDENT PROTEST AGAINST TV AWARD BY FCC

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP) —A Boston Globe executive testified yesterday his newspaper sent a protest to President Eisenhower after receiving a grapevine report that a lucrative television grant would go to the rival Herald-Traveler.

John I. Taylor, Globe vice president-treasurer, told a court-ordered special Federal Communications Commission hearing the letter was part of the paper's effort to block the award of Channel 5 to the Herald-Traveler.

Taylor said he and his cousin, Globe publisher Davis Taylor, picked up a report on Dec. 19, 1956, that the commission would reverse an examiner's recommendation and award the channel to WHDH, a subsidiary of the Herald-Traveler.

They got off the protest letter to Mr. Eisenhower Jan. 4, 1957, and came to Washington four days later to see what they could do about holding off the award.

Taylor said they contacted Sherman Adams, the top White House aid at that time, and had dinner with Maxwell Rabb, also a White House aid and secretary to the Cabinet.

Taylor quoted Adams as declaring the White House had nothing to do with regulatory agencies, that he did not want to get involved and it would be embarrassing if the Taylors came to the White House.

The letter to Mr. Eisenhower brought a reply Jan. 11 from Gerald D. Morgan, special counsel to the President.

Morgan said the Administration had "a firm policy" of non-intervention in matters pending before regulatory bodies. The reply said the letter was being referred to FCC Chairman George McConnaughey "without comment."

The letter to Mr. Eisenhower said the TV station might reap a net profit of a million dollars, which it said would mean a "Decided financial advantage" to the Herald-Traveler.

The letter indicated the TV outlet might be used to force a merger of the Herald-Traveler and the Globe and added:

"The Globe has resisted many efforts to combine with the Herald-Traveler because it felt that the existence of two large Boston newspapers was healthy for New England."

The Globe was never an applicant for the Boston channel.

The examiner recommended the outlet go to Greater Boston Television Co., a non-newspaper applicant. The FCC announced the award to WHDH April 24, 1957, more than four months after the Taylors reported getting their leak in the case.

The court ordered the special hearing to determine whether there were any improper influences exerted in the contest.

Testimony has been received that Robert Choate, publisher of the Herald-Traveler, had two luncheons with McConnaughey. However, both Choate and McConnaughey testified there was no discussion of the case.

WITNESS SAYS LITIGATION AFFECTS DU PONT STOCK

CHICAGO, Feb. 20 (AP)—A Government witness testified yesterday that E. I. Du Pont de Nemour & Co. stock prices may be lagging in the stock market because of the current court case involving Du Pont's stock interest in General Motors Corp.

Schroeder Boulton, a partner in the securities investment firm of Baker, Weeks & Co., said Du Pont stock prices lagged in the recession recovery compared to other major chemical corporations. He said he thought that Du Pont stock should be selling at $230 to $240 a share instead of its current $210 a share.

Boulton testified in a United States district court hearing in which Judge Walter J. La Buy seeks to determine how Du Pont and its two holding companies can divest themselves of 63,000,000 shaers of G.M. stock. The United States Supreme Court has ruled Du Pont's 23 per cent ownership of G.M. is a violation of anti-trust laws.

Boulton said "most individual investors do not understand what is at stake in this case, and they don't take the trouble to find out. They prefer to wait and see what happens before they invest."

Bill for Pancho Villa Park.

SANTA FE, N.M., Feb. 20 (AP)—A bill to create a state park near Columbus, N.M., which would carry Pancho Villa's name has been approved by the New Mexico Senate. On March 9, 1916, the Mexican revolutionary leader led his band across the border in a raid on Columbus, killing 17 persons.

Nigeria, Trembling on Brink Of Economic Boom, May Well Come to Dominate West Africa

Nation Achieving Independence and Development Simultaneously Attracts Investors Because of the Vigor and Ambition of Its People.

Twenty-fourth of a series of articles by Donald Grant of the Post-Dispatch on political and economic conditions in Africa and on the status of the peoples struggling toward self-determination.

By DONALD GRANT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LAGOS, Nigeria, Feb. 20.

POLITICALLY, NIGERIA MAY well come to dominate all of West Africa, a region which itself sets the pace for the rest of the continent in the drive for independence and democracy.

This, however, could be of less importance in the next few years than the economic impact of emerging Nigeria—a nation of nearly 40,000,000 people achieving independence and economic development simultaneously. The economic and political future of the country is, of course, an intertwined whole.

What are the prospects of this territory which will be granted independence within the British Commonwealth next year?

The writer flew the 2000 miles from Khartoum to Lagos in the company of a Dutch sugar executive with 20 years of experience in Java.

"In West Africa," he said, referring chiefly to Nigeria and Ghana, "the British have shown the world how a colonial power may withdraw gracefully and with great benefit to the colonial territory and to itself."

He did not directly criticize the performance of the Netherlands in Indonesia, but the implication was very strong that by attempting to stem the tide of nationalism the Netherlands had created trouble for itself and for the Indonesian people. Now Dutch business men, expelled from Indonesia, are trying to replant themselves in independent and emerging territories in Africa.

New Refining Industry.

The sugar man from Java is establishing a sugar refining industry in Nigeria. Former Dutch rubber plantation managers from Java are supervising the establishment of cooperative rubber plantations in Nigeria, a country which has almost ideal conditions for growing rubber.

The government of the Netherlands has organized something called the Netherlands Development Corporation to act as a middleman between private Dutch skills and capital and emerging Africa. Among other things this corporation has arranged for a survey of the whole Niger river complex to explore the possibilities of development on the Tennessee Valley Authority pattern. The prospects seem excellent.

Representatives of "the West African program of the Rockefeller brothers fund" recently arrived in Lagos. This nonprofit group also seeks to explore economic development possibilities in Nigeria and Ghana and to pass on their results to private investors in Europe and the United States.

German and Italian business men are active in Africa, the Italians especially so in Nigeria. At the moment the Italians are expanding a plastics factory. An investor from Lebanon is building a shoe factory here.

But for the most part Nigeria remains a great productive outlet for British capital, skills and energies. British business and industry is visible on every hand, expanding its Nigerian operations.

Facts Belie Beliefs.

Nigeria seems to many economists to be trembling on the brink of an economic boom.

Perhaps the idea that Nigeria is a strange and faraway land of savages and ritual murder still dominates American business thinking. The facts do not bear out this idea.

Nigeria is attracting European investors because it is a land of vigorous and ambitious people. British colonialism has accomplished much of the basic development of the country—encouraging education, reducing the incidence of tropical disease and building roads and some railroads. The Nigerians have had just a taste of twentieth century western life and they want more—fast.

Increasing, moreover, they are able to afford more. Economic development over the last half century has been particularly favorable to a rapid growth period now.

Nigerians generally do not share the pattern of much of the rest of Africa—of subsistence agriculture, often on the basis of low technology methods and sometimes, as in Ethiopia, ridden by landlordism. The typical Nigerian is a peasant working his own or tribal land, growing cash crops as well as food for his family.

These cash crops are usefully diversified. Nigeria is not one-crop country. Nigerian crops grown largely for export or for processing inside Nigeria include peanuts in large quantities, cacao which is competing increasingly with Ghanian cacao, palm oil which is still a very big business, and every year more and more cotton and rubber.

Other Industries.

Cotton cloth is manufactured here and some rubber is processed. Other industry includes a large plywood factory and a canning industry as well as the manufacture of cement, plastics, shoes, beer and the assembly of trucks. Oil already has been brought in on the Niger river delta to the east of here and explorations now are under way in the vicinity of Lagos itself, including offshore drilling. Tin is mined in quantity in the north as is colombite, a specialty ore used in high grade steels. There is a coal field in the south central region and undeveloped water power.

Nigerians are avid readers. They buy books and newspapers as fast as they are published. Literacy figures are out of date but it is estimated at nearly 50 per cent and growing daily.

But perhaps the most significant basis for Nigerian economic development is a phenomenon which must be peculiar to West Africa—the mammy trade.

There are at least seven cities in Nigeria with a population of more than 100,000 and each is a haven for thousands of small traders, many of them women. On every hand one hears success stories of African women who pyramided three pins and a bag of peanuts into a great fortune. Such tales no doubt are exaggerated but some are true.

What this free enterprise activity has accomplished is to accustom a great segment of the population to modern commerce and industry. It is an important part of the groundwork for economic expansion.

This is not to say that a nation of small traders can by this process alone achieve modern economic development. Both outside capital in great quantities and wise government planning are necessary for that.

Original Impetus.

The original impetus for West African, and especially Nigerian, small trading activity was the palm oil business. This is handled largely by Unilever—a complex international corporation which operates in the United States under the name of Lever Brothers and in Africa largely under the name of the United Africa Co.

Twenty-five Unilever ships regularly ply between Nigeria and Europe, shipping palm oil from here and returning with trade goods, notably brightly printed cottons.

As in all developing but still underdeveloped countries there are uneven spots and distortions in the Nigerian economy. Notably, the Moslem north, once the most progressive part of the country, has fallen badly behind in education, health and economic expansion. British colonial authorities left things pretty much to the local rulers, the emirs, with somewhat sad results.

A great deal of the future of Nigeria also depends on the performance of the independent government. There is a tendency, deplored by some orthodox, "free enterprise" observers, for the government to participate in larger industrial ventures, especially in the field of transportation. Nigeria also has a start toward a New Deal kind of welfare state in its health and educational services. Most cash crop marketing is handled by a government marketing board.

Similar Tendencies.

As an example of what economic development of a country like Nigeria means, the subject of shoes will do as well as any. Shoes now are imported from Europe and a few sandals are manufactured here. Most Nigerians, however, still go barefoot.

Increasingly, the health clinics report Nigerians are complaining about cuts and bruises to their feet and about the incidence of intestinal parasites picked up by walking barefoot. These complaints are the result of years of slow education as well as direct observation of the usefulness of wearing shoes.

The smart Lebanese who is building a shoe factory here has seen this development and intends to cash in on it. When 40,000,000 men, women and children suddenly decide to wear shoes there is quite a market at hand.

Rights in China Forfeited for '16 Guarantees'

Everything, Even Sleep, Compulsory in Communal Way of Life.

By DR. SRIPATI CHANDRASEKHAR

FIFTH OF A SERIES

HARD work is the order of the day in Chi-li Yin peoples commune which I visited in my travels in Red China. The evening brings a dash of recreation—and large doses of Communist training.

After the day's toil in the fields and factories of this pioneer commune in Honan province, all attend regular classes. There they listen to the radio, which pours out the latest editorial from the People's Daily, the latest production figures from agriculture and industry, the latest government measures to liquidate American "imperialism" and the "Chiang Kai-shek clique," the Peiping opera, and figures on how China has surpassed Britain in the production of various industrial goods.

Then there is a movie or a play or an acrobatic show. And last is the party meeting, which every worker attends. Here the matchless art of self-criticism is practiced.

Compulsory Sleep.

People rise up and confess their drawbacks and failings, criticize their colleagues and swear to increase production if only to "regain" Formosa, the island bastion of the Nationalist Chinese. Thereafter, everyone retires for the compulsory eight hours sleep.

Nursing mothers and those of ailing children can visit the public nurseries or kindergartens, though this is not necessary as children are under the care of trained nurses and teachers. Parents can give up their bourgeois emotional attachments and stop worrying about their youngsters.

This commune which I have described is popularly called "the Commune of 16 Guarantees." Everybody, according to the age group and sex of the individual, is given 16 guarantees. They are:

1. Clothing (clothing is still a problem because of the cold climate. Heating is poor); 2. Food; 3. Housing; 4. Transportation (from residence to place of work); 5. Maternity benefits. Expectant mothers are given 45 days leave and a quantity of red sugar, which is a must for expectant mothers in China; 6. Sick leave and medical aid.

7. Free old-age care; 8. Free funeral and burial (the director of the commune told me that they would like to give up burial for cremation, but the people were prejudiced in favor of traditional interment. So they are adopting what is now called "deep burial." The body is buried at least 10 feet deep so that they can use the land, which otherwise might be a graveyard, for orchards.

9. Free education; 10. A small marriage grant and a free reception for the couple; 11. Twelve free haircuts a year; 12. Twenty free bath tickets a year (hot water baths); 13. Free bringing up of children; 14. Free recreation; 15. Free tailoring; 16. Free electricity.

Benefits Recited.

After reciting these benefits—a kind of cradle-to-grave insurance—in return for unquestioning, life-long hard labor, the director asked me, "What more can one want?"

"Nothing," I replied, "but can you obtain a pack of cigarettes, for instance?"

"We have not overlooked that," he said. "Though we have abolished the need for money, we have provided certain incentives to enable a person to earn five yuan a month." That is, if any worker shows tremendous integrity and ability, or perfects a new technique, he gets a reward of one to five yuan a month. (In purchasing power, one yuan is about 27 cents.)

"This is a kind of bonus," the director added. "Though no one has yet earned the full amount."

This is the commune where human beings are reduced to the level of inmates in a zoo. But there is a difference. The animals in a zoo do not have to work hard, and, what is more, they don't have to listen to the radio.

The lack of peace and quiet and the lack of privacy and solitude is to me more terrifying than all the hells put together.

Communist party chairman Mao had hoped that the whole nation would become one big commune in a few years, but there seemed to be some doubt and resistance among the leaders themselves. Time alone can tell what lies ahead for China and the millions confined in the communes.

Production Rising.

However, agricultural production is rising, though no one can swallow without a grain of salt the astronomical figures reeled out by officials. The methods adopted to achieve this "great leap forward" in agricultural production are:

All cultivable land (except in uneasy Tibet) has been brought under the plow; constant irrigation; deep plowing, three to six feet deep (on an experimental farm I visited they are plowing by detonating small bombs under the ground); close planting; and dumping enormous amounts of manure—night soil, green leaves, compost and bacteria-layer after layer interspersed with good earth.

Communist China has solved the problem of food supply for its teeming millions, but it is difficult to check the figures on agricultural production. It is possible that they are generalizing from successes on small experimental farms. It is possible that their bookkeeping may be faulty.

Or, may be, China's soil has joined the Communist party's "big leap forward campaign." It is anybody's guess.

Eisenhower Republicans Lose Aiken

Senator Out in the Open With His Criticism of Administration.

By JOSEPH ALSOP
WASHINGTON.

ONE of the senior Eisenhower Republicans in Congress, Senator George D. Aiken of Vermont, has now said in public what most other Eisenhower Republicans have been saying in private. He has said, in effect, that he does not consider himself an Eisenhower Republican any longer. Take his opening:

"During the years he was President, Lincoln never balanced the budget. . . . He could have balanced the budget and lost the Union. He could have held down the national debt and perpetuated slavery. And no doubt, had he chosen the latter course, he would have been applauded by many solid citizens of that day."

Dead-pan humor was the method of Senator Aiken's remarkable speech, delivered in New York over the weekend. As another example, take his answer to the "me too" charge leveled at the more modern-minded Republicans by the party's conservatives.

"If a Democrat says we need better health," remarked Senator Aiken, "I'm not going to come out for poorer health just to disagree with him."

An Acid Assault.

More generally, the Aiken speech amounted to an acid assault on the whole system of priorities now prevailing in the Eisenhower Administration. First priority for national security and national growth was what Aiken demanded, and he denounced those who "cling to the status quo" and lack "faith in America." He never mentioned the President or the Administration. But he came pretty close to doing so when he predicted a Republican disaster at the next election "unless the Republican party leadership demonstrates greater faith in the future of America than it has been doing recently."

The Aiken speech was genuinely significant because, so to say, it made official the widening cleavage between the great Republican Eisenhower enthusiasts of the past and

RESTON

G.O.P. and Labor Are Gradually Renewing Feud of '30s and '40s

Sarcastic Exchange Between President and Reuther Is Symptom — Republican Liberals Unhappy Over Drift.

By JAMES RESTON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.

THE OLD FEUD between organized labor and the Republican party is getting hot again.

This was clearly indicated in the sharp and sarcastic exchange between President Eisenhower and Walter Reuther, vice president of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

When a reporter from Detroit, where about 12 per cent of the labor force is unemployed, asked the President at his press conference this week for comment on a report from the AFL-CIO meeting in Puerto Rico that Reuther was suggesting a march on Washington to dramatize the plight of the unemployed, the President did what he seldom does. He replied with a sarcastic gibe.

The labor union leaders, he said, "must be on the sunny beaches." "I don't know," the President added, "whether they are going to march from there over to this foggy Washington or not."

Reuther's Sharp Words.

This produced an even sharper reply from Reuther in San Juan.

"Mr. President," he said in a formal statement, "I have spent no time on the sunny beaches of Puerto Rico, nor have I been with you and your many big-business friends on the golf courses, the duck blinds or the quail hunts.

"Millions of unemployed workers have serious and pressing problems . . . you, Mr. President, have become obsessed with balancing the budget. . . . A continuing deficit in leadership is more serious than a continuing deficit in the budget."

The political implications of this for 1960 are clear enough. Gen. Eisenhower broke the Democratic party's firm grip on the so-called labor vote in 1952 and 1956. After 20 years of the New and Fair deals, he succeeded in persuading a large percentage of laboring men and women that they had much to gain and nothing to fear from supporting a liberal Republican administration.

He made no attempts to repeal any of the social legislation of the Roosevelt-Truman era; indeed he backed higher minimum wage and social security legislation to the point where he began to be criticized by the conservative wing of the Republican party as "just another New Dealer."

President Changes.

Starting in January of 1957, however, when his then Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey attacked a continuance of big budgets and predicted a "hair-curling depression" if they continued, a gradual change set in.

In last year's budget, the President asked for cuts in the federal grants to the states for the needy. The dramatic disclosures of racketeering in some labor unions by the McClellan committee of the Senate shocked the President and induced him to support legislation to curb improper labor practices.

This was followed by the President's personal campaign in the election last November when he hit hard at "labor racketeering" and the "socialistic" tendencies of a Democratic party which he said was increasingly dominated by labor "radicals."

All this has gradually reopened the Republican-labor feud of the 1930s and '40s and it has started a considerable fight behind the scenes within the Republican party.

The conservatives in the G.O.P. believe the President's fight against inflation and labor racketeering is good government as well as good politics. They have argued — and won the support of the President and the National Committee for their argument — that the President's tactics will split many workers from their labor union bosses and win the support of a growing industrial middle class that stands to lose by rising prices and a depreciated dollar.

Besides, they contend, the G.O.P. can avoid the political embarrassment of the last election only if it avoids New Dealish tendencies and offers the electorate the clear choice

Letters from the People

Collecting All the Tax

Recently there have been many discussions about the Missouri state income tax. The proposal to make this a withholding tax is a good one and should provide the state with additional revenue at no increase in tax rates.

However, it seems that this would only solve part of the problem. A withholding tax would insure that all salaried people paid, but how about people who derive their income from sources other than direct wages?

How can the people of Missouri be sure everyone is paying his fair share? There are two plans which might provide this assurance. Perhaps one method alone would be sufficient, or both could be used together. I claim no originality for these proposals, but to my knowledge they have not been seriously considered.

The state presently requires a receipt that personal property taxes have been paid, or that none were assessed, before a state auto license can be issued. Why not require a similar receipt for state income tax?

Another method would be to require a receipt before a person would be permitted to vote in local and state elections. Then perhaps the state government would not hesitate to enforce the income tax collection if non-taxpayers could not voice their displeasure at the polls.

I do not mind paying my share of taxes as this is the American way. But we taxpayers are beginning to look like "suckers" and the non-taxpayers like wise people. This situation must be corrected soon.

Weapon Against Fraud

Too often a citizen is not interested in legislation of our Board of Aldermen unless he feels its impact directly.

The League of Women Voters of St. Louis, at membership meeting on February 12, voted to support Board Bill No. 335 because we feel this bill provides a practical step to protect zoning ordinances which are critical safeguards for human and property values in our city.

By requiring clear indication of "the use zoning district" in advertising or sign posting of all property offered for sale or lease, Board Bill No. 335 puts behind us "buyer beware" real estate transactions.

All of us should realize the effect for the overall good of the city in this proposed legislation.

Mrs. John W. Seddon, Chairman
Committee on City Redevelopment and Growth
League of Women Voters

Of Course Not

The voters in the Riverview School District defeated a school bond issue Feb. 10. Supporters of this proposal will again put up the issue to the voters in a special election in early March, in another attempt to secure its passage.

If it is defeated in the next election, there is no doubt that it will again be put up for vote in April.

In the event it is passed in March, I wonder if the opponents of the proposal will then be permitted to have another election in an attempt to repeal its passage.

Confused Voter

Unnecessary Credits

The Missouri Department of Education has set up a system of credit requirements for teachers to assure that instruction in Missouri schools will be of a reasonably high standard. Such a system is necessary, of course, and must be maintained.

But there is a question whether the system has "progressed" to a point where it is being maintained at the sacrifice of the standard which it was originally designed to uphold.

A discreet survey will prove to anyone interested that many teachers coming from other states where they are fully qualified—some to the extent of holding doctor's degrees—find the Missouri system requires that they take additional courses before being granted anything more than a temporary certificate to teach in Missouri. In many cases, the required subjects have no bearing whatever on their ability as an instructor, especially in certain fields.

The "teacher shortage" is a well worn subject. No need for reiteration. It appears that the Missouri system is providing a formidable impediment to overcoming the problem. It appears that the tail is wagging the dog.

E.G.

Reasonable Search

The only aspect of Circuit Attorney Eagleton's 13-point legislative program likely to provoke controversy involves a statutory change giving St. Louis police greater latitude in searching for concealed weapons.

St. Louis officers now may search a person for a weapon only when they have reasonable grounds to believe that the individual has committed a crime. What Mr. Eagleton proposes is to allow St. Louis police the same latitude now possessed by Kansas City police. They would be permitted to stop a person for questioning when they had reason to suspect he had committed, was committing or was about to commit a crime. In such cases the officer for his own protection would be free to search for a concealed weapon. If one were found it would be admissible as evidence of a law violation.

"Unreasonable searches" are expressly prohibited by the United States and Missouri constitutions, and the Legislature has no power to authorize an unreasonable search. In Mr. Eagleton's view, the only effect of the change he proposes would be to reduce the amount of proof of a crime that the police officer must have at the time he begins his search. The officer would still have to prove that he had "reasonable" grounds for a search, and the final word on this would be in the hands of a court. Indiscriminate frisking of law-abiding citizens would not be permitted; nor would the measure authorize searches of a home or other private place.

There has been a substantial increase in the carrying of concealed weapons in St. Louis. In 1956, police presented about 350 such cases to the Circuit Attorney's office; by last year the number had risen to over 700, although all but 150 were technically faulty under the existing search statute.

Under the circumstances it seems to us that for the protection both of police and society as a whole a statute along the lines suggested by the Circuit Attorney would be in the public interest.

Mr. Eagleton's record on civil liberties is a good one. Given both the concealed weapons menace in St. Louis and the existence of the Kansas City statute, it seems to us that a bill along the lines he suggests ought to be given a trial at least.

The remainder of his program, including a committee-approved bill giving judges the right to order a joint trial of two or more defendants in sex cases, proposes reasonable, practicable and humane changes in the criminal code. In general they would help enforcement of the liquor, narcotics, lottery, burglary, prostitution and auto safety laws in St. Louis, and on their face deserve to be passed.

Two deserve special mention. One would provide that sentences would commence to run the day the judge actually sentenced the defendant, not when he is received at the penitentiary up to six weeks later, as has happened too often. Another would provide means for the return to this state of a material witness who had fled to another state and declined to return, as occurred here in the Bullock case.

'No Religious Test'

Two national magazines with large circulations—Look and Life—currently carry articles on 1960 presidential prospects. Because Senator Kennedy of Massachusetts is on everybody's list of Democratic possibilities, both articles deal with him and his religious affiliation.

The Constitution says "no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States." The Post-Dispatch believes in that principle today just as strongly as it did in 1928, when Al Smith was the Democratic candidate for President.

In our opinion Senator Kennedy has some qualifications for the presidency and some disqualifications, but his membership in the Catholic church falls into neither category. So would we believe about any other candidate's membership in any other church, or for that matter membership in no church. If the Constitution is something to live by, as we believe, the presidency ought to be open on equal terms to Protestants, Catholics, Jews, Mohammedans, agnostics, and atheists.

The other side of the coin is that the presidency ought not to be used in aid of any church or faith. On this point Senator Kennedy, for one, appears to be making himself clear. According to Look, the young Senator believes that "the separation of church and state is fundamental to our American concept and heritage and should remain so." He is quoted as "flatly" opposing the appointment of an ambassador to the Vatican or the use of federal funds for support of parochial or private schools. Life elaborates on the latter point by noting that Mr. Kennedy opposes use of federal funds to purchase books, pay teachers or provide transportation for parochial school pupils.

Senator Kennedy's religion ought to be entirely excluded from the coming campaign, but inevitably it will be discussed. We hope that the result of the discussion will be to uphold the Constitution both in Article 6, which bars a religious test for office, and in the First Amendment, which forbids "an establishment of religion" or interference with "the free exercise thereof."

Peace in Sight on Cyprus

The signing in London of the agreement on independence for Cyprus is the best piece of diplomatic news in a long time. Although it had been expected Britain would sign the Zurich accord, which Greece and Turkey last week worked out, there were some last minute reports that Archbishop Makarios, leader of the Greek Cypriots, might balk. Fortunately, these fears failed to materialize.

Sir Hugh Foot, British governor of Cyprus, last week described the Greco-Turkish plan for independence as "something like a miracle." The principal points include, in addition to independence, security for the Turkish minority, and British rights to maintain bases on Cyprus. This means sacrifice for all.

Both Greece and the Greek Cypriots had wanted to see Cyprus become a part of Greece. The British had sought to hold onto the crown colony. The Turkish Cypriots, numbering only 100,000 and fearing the 400,000 Greek Cypriots, had wanted partition. Turkey, fearing a Greek-dominated island only 40 miles from the Turkish mainland, had wanted the status quo or partition. Thus it is apparent that all made major compromises.

While the population is divided 80-20, the Cypriot parliament is to be 70 per cent Greek and 30 per cent Turkish. The president of the new republic will be a Greek (the first one probably will be Makarios) and the vice president a Turk. Each will have definite veto powers. It is to be hoped that, after the hardships and horror of the four recent years of fighting, the Cypriots will find these provisions sufficient to permit their communities to exist in genuine peace.

Now, Missouri's Turn

Missouri at last has an opportunity to join the growing ranks of pay-as-you-go income tax states. Senator Frank X. Reller of Wentzville has introduced a withholding bill in the State Senate.

Senator Reller estimates that tax collection by employers from paychecks would increase state revenue by $6,500,000 to $8,000,000 a year. He believes that some 200,000 persons are now evading the tax, including itinerant workers. And he adds:

> I am opposed to increasing any state taxes, or imposing new ones, until we have exhausted every available means to make certain that we are collecting all the money we are supposed to have under our existing tax structure.

No doubt Senator Reller's estimates of additional revenue and evasion will be challenged in debate. But so far the critics of withholding have been unable to make any better estimate than that of Director of Revenue Milton Carpenter, whose figures generally coincide with those of Senator Reller.

Above all, the critics have not challenged the claim that withholding does bring in considerably more money. They cannot challenge this. It has already been proved by 12 states which practice pay-as-you-go methods of income tax collection.

Most of these states employ the methods proposed in the Reller bill: issuance of state tax tables by which employers may readily figure taxes to be withheld; requirement of annual income tax returns from taxpayers; and refunds for over-payments when necessary. This is the simplest method of administration.

The Massachusetts Legislature has just approved withholding, New York and Minnesota's Governors have proposed it, and five other states are considering pay-as-you-go laws. In every case these states are caught between high taxes and the need for still more revenue.

This is precisely the situation which confronts Missouri. When 12 states have demonstrated the value of pay-as-you-go and eight others have been obliged to consider it, how can Missouri sensibly ignore the issue?

The Worst They Could Say

Feature Writer Jim Bishop, bending over backward to be kind to Jimmy Hoffa, concludes a review of the McClellan committee evidence with the observation that "the worst they could say of him" was that Jimmy Hoffa had "grossly misused some $2,400,000" in Teamster funds.

The beneficiaries, says Mr. Bishop, were Jimmy Hoffa, his cronies and friends. As for all those confusing financial transactions, they "tend to show that Hoffa was willing, almost eager, to lend Teamster money to friends providing the friends were willing, within a week or two, to lend Jimmy Hoffa a few thousand."

But, Jim Bishop emphasizes, the committee never called Hoffa a crook. It never charged him with stealing. The worst it could say was that he misused Teamster funds.

Which, after all, may be quite bad enough for most Americans—and most Teamsters.

More Than Courtesies

President Lopez Mateos of Mexico welcomed President Eisenhower for a brief visit to Acapulco with a statement that relations between the two countries are "truly satisfactory." This is perhaps a courteous exaggeration invited by a courtesy visit, but relations are indeed good. And as President Eisenhower responded, good relations are a necessity.

Mr. Eisenhower stated that "We never want our long common frontier guarded by guns or machines of war." The frontier, which has seldom been guarded in any serious way, is 1550 miles long. That is one measure of Mexican-United States relations.

With a growing population of 32 million, Mexico is the third largest nation of the New World. It is the United States' eighth best customer in the world. Three fourths of Mexican imports are from this country; more than 60 per cent of her exports are to us. The United States has more than 70 millions invested there.

Mexico's gross national product is growing at a truly remarkable rate. Inflation, however, worked hardships on the two thirds of the people whom industrialization has not encompassed. And Mexico depends on United States tourists to make up for the "dollar gap" created by such industrial expansion.

These statistics cannot, of course, depict the underlying pride, the ancient traditions and devotion to independence of the Mexican people. Mexico has already proved historically that it will not be tail to a North American kite. But it is better for the United States to have a strong and independent friend south of the border than a guarded border.

Two Bids and a Third

TVA's acceptance of a British bid over two American bids for a generator at one of its steam plants has raised a hubbub of criticism, but the most relevant question appears to be: "How stoutly are American firms competing with firms abroad—or with each other, for that matter?"

The two American bidders bid within 1½ per cent of each other—a remarkably close similarity—while the British company underbid them by more than 30 per cent—a wide enough disparity to raise a question whether the others could not have done better. The bid of C. A. Parsons & Co., Ltd., of Newcastle, in the amount of $13,140,700, was firm, furthermore. There were escalation clauses in the Westinghouse bid of $19,453,725 and the General Electric bid of $19,673,780 which could have brought them still higher.

Westinghouse, blaming higher labor costs, said the award was "a threat to the nation's security." The International Union of Electrical Workers local at the Westinghouse East Pittsburgh plant demanded that Congress investigate "this short-sighted policy." But so far we have not heard one word of resolution from anybody to put up tougher competition for the business next time. Do American corporations and efficient American workers really need the protection of a benevolent government to compete in world trade?

"OH, WELL—LADUE WOULD HAVE BEEN A RATHER COMMON NAME, ANYWAY."

How Two Governors Approach Taxes

Williams of Michigan Would Levy on Some, Rockefeller of New York on All

James Robinson

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Two Ivy League millionaires—Governors of great industrial states—were faced with strikingly similar problems and came up with revealingly different answers.

Michigan's Gov. G. Mennen Williams, Princeton, '33, and New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Dartmouth, '30, asked their legislatures for huge tax increases.

Democrat Williams sought 140 million dollars a year to balance record state spending of slightly more than one billion dollars.

Republican Rockefeller needs 277 million dollars for a budget which tops two billion dollars for the first time in New York history.

For the two states, percentagewise and in relation to population, the tax increases are about equal.

The taxes Williams and Rockefeller asked for, the ones they rejected and the receptions they got from different economic and political groups show clearly the contrast between the two men.

Williams, the darling of the ultra-liberal Democrats, demanded taxes on the profits of corporations and banks—plus an income tax limited to middle and upper income families.

Rockefeller, champion of "modern" Republicans, asked for consumers' taxes—plus an income tax increase which would bear heaviest on families at the lower and upper ends of the income scale.

Rockefeller's proposed consumers' taxes include a two-cent-a-pack increase on cigarettes and two cents a gallon on gasoline. He also proposed taxing cigars and pipe tobacco.

Another Rockefeller recommendation calls for higher death duties, with the increase proportionately greater on estates valued at between $2000 and $50,000.

Williams frankly wrote an income tax to exempt two thirds of Michigan families, those with the least income.

He declared undying opposition to any attempt to increase consumer taxes.

Rockefeller's income tax increase seeks to reduce family exemptions by at least a half, a move which will require 400,000 lower income families to pay taxes for the first time.

The New York Governor also asked for three new tax brackets—with higher rates—at the top of the scale. He ignored all demands for more taxes on business and industry.

For a married couple with one child, the Williams tax program would cost nothing if family income is less than $5167.

The New York Times estimated that Rockefeller's tax program would mean a tax increase of about 50 per cent for a typical one-child family having an income between $4500 and $7000. Dollarwise, the increase was estimated at $53, before offsetting federal tax reductions.

Rockefeller

Percentage increases for families earning below $4500 would range up to 300 per cent under the Rockefeller plan, but the dollar increase would be extremely small.

Williams defended his program as based on "ability to pay." He said it would equalize Michigan's tax structure, which he claims is now placing an unjust burden on the poor.

Rockefeller said his program would broaden the tax base and be paid by everyone—rich and poor alike.

Both men went on television to sell their ideas to the voters—Williams before his message went to the legislature, Rockefeller after he spoke to the lawmakers.

Michigan Republicans denounced Williams as a spendthrift, accused him of anti-business sentiment, said he is influenced by labor union bosses and implied he is using taxes to redistribute wealth rather than raise revenue.

Williams

New York Democrats screamed that Rockefeller wants to "soak the poor," claimed his income tax changes are "discriminatory and regressive because they will hit hardest the people least able to pay."

Labor union leaders gave three cheers for Williams as the protector of the working man.

New York labor unions sent an angry delegation to call on Rockefeller and demand better treatment.

Both Governors issued appeals for a truce on partisanship—and were threatened with undercurrents of opposition within their own parties.

Most Michigan Democrats said they will support the Williams program, but a few showed distaste for his income tax.

Most New York Republicans rallied behind Rockefeller, but a few rebelled on the gasoline tax and others muttered that he had turned traitor by asking for more state spending.

Blocking the Billboards From The Washington Post

Having lost the battle in Congress last year, the billboard lobbyists are trying to win their war in the state legislatures. But recent events in Annapolis indicate that the billboard interests may find steep curves ahead.

Thus far, Maryland's legislators have turned back an amendment which would have denatured the roadside controls by exempting cities and towns with local zoning powers from signboard prohibitions.

The Maryland anti-billboard law passed last year is a good law, and like a similar measure passed in Virginia, it deserved the praise it received. However, some minor adjustments must be made to enable Maryland to qualify for a federal "bonus" appropriation for the Free State's share of the new interstate highway system.

This was the small opening through which the billboard interests tried to bulldoze a major modification softening the state law. The action of the House Ways and Means Committee in Annapolis in rejecting the amendment is especially notable because Maryland still would have qualified for the bonus even if the exemption were enacted.

Federal standards for roadside controls are a minimum, not a maximum, and it is good that the Maryland legislators refused to sanction "a jungle of billboards at every town through which an interstate highway passes." Those are the words of Delegate Blair Lee III; we hope that the spirit behind them will prove contagious in other capitals when the billboard war is fought this year.

Between Book Ends The Land-Locked Republic

THE BOLIVIAN NATIONAL REVOLUTION, by Robert J. Alexander. (Rutgers University Press, 302 pgs., $7.50.)

Americans know preciously little about their neighbors south of the border, and even less about some than others. This may be natural, considering our historical and emotional orientation toward Europe. But it is unfortunate.

Robert J. Alexander does something in "The Bolivian National Revolution" to help change this condition. His book is a frankly partisan account of what is going on today in that land-locked South American republic—a nation cut off from the sea by mountains and deserts belonging to Peru and Chile and woefully cut up by the Andes cordilleras running like streamers through much of her 420,000 square miles. A potentially rich nation, Bolivia has suffered from foreign exploitation, poor governments, and bad financing.

The book is ably written, and easy to digest—something which is not always present in books dealing with the complex and often confusing Latin American scene.

Professor Alexander, who has traveled widely in Latin America for more than a dozen years, believes that Bolivia is undergoing a dynamic social revolution, comparable in Latin America only to that which engulfed Mexico in the years after 1910. The Bolivian revolution began, he says, on April 9, 1952, when the Movimiento Nacionalista Revolucionario obtained control of the Government. From that date, Mr. Alexander writes, "Bolivia has been trying to catch up with history."

Some may question the sincerity of MNR leaders, and others could cite the movement's many failures—but nevertheless a truly remarkable economic change has been taking place in Bolivia since 1952. Agrarian reform, progress in education and communication, and tin nationalization are included in Mr. Alexander's account.

The book is a fast-moving story of these past six years in Bolivian history with a careful eye on the nation's historical role and its geographical position. It is good reading.

Old Timer's Story

THE WEST THAT WAS, by John Leakey, as told to Nellie Snyder Yost. (Southern Methodist University Press, 271 pgs., $5.)

John Leakey started life in Texas and rode north to seek his fortune in the big cattle drives. He wound up owning one of the biggest ranches in North Dakota and was one of the founders of the North Dakota Stockmen's Association. As one reads of his encounters and adventures along the way, one realizes that the past was indeed vibrant with live people and full of genuine drama.

Mr. Leakey lost his ranch in the drouth and depression times of a few years ago and now has returned to Texas to live out his days among his memories. He is one of the few old timers left to give an account of his life in those early days.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Western View of Russian Talks

WASHINGTON.

AT LEAST IN ITS METHOD, the Allied note to the Soviet Union, which was published this week, is new and different. It is an invitation to hold a conference about Germany which does not lay down in advance what can be and what cannot be discussed, what must be agreed to.

This does not mean that the Allies no longer have positions from which they will not retreat, as for example that they will not withdraw their troops in West Berlin until the whole of Berlin becomes once again the capital of a reunited Germany. The novelty and the difference in the present approach is that the note is not a broadside in a propaganda game but a simple and unconditional invitation to confer and to negotiate. This would not have been possible if the Western powers had not reached the conclusion that there are in fact subjects to negotiate about.

Lippmann

Behind the simple words of the note there lies the fact that we have now agreed among ourselves that we can protect our vital interests in Europe while we negotiate on a number of subjects which have until recently been regarded as untouchable.

Arms Talks Possible.

This is the so-called new flexibility. It covers, for example, the idea that reunification need not begin with free elections although some day the reunited Germany must have free elections.

It covers the idea that it is possible to negotiate de facto with the East German state. It covers the idea that it is possible to discuss a regional agreement for the reduction and limitation of armaments in Central Europe.

We must now wait to see how the Kremlin reacts. It can accept the invitation to confer and negotiate, reserving its own position for the conference which must, if it is to be at all useful, be carried on confidentially in the preliminary and exploratory stages.

Alternatives for Russia.

Or the Kremlin can issue a new public broadside of its demands and its terms, in which case it will be painfully clear that the Kremlin does not now want to negotiate.

Or the Russians can negotiate confidentially, say through Mr. Macmillan or through diplomatic channels, about the circumstances of the conference to which the West has invited them.

Let us hope that in making up their minds how to react the Russians will not draw the wrong conclusion from the fact of Secretary Dulles's illness. The wrong conclusion would be that the less Mr. Dulles is able to participate, the more flexible and the more disunited will be Western policy.

The exact opposite is the truth. The less able Mr. Dulles is to oversee American and Allied policy and to cover it with his special authority, the more rigid will be the American position, the more intransigent will be Dr. Adenauer.

It is Mr. Dulles who has made possible the new flexibility in Western policy, and much may depend upon whether Mr. Mikoyan realized that when he was here and has made it plain to Mr. Khrushchev.

Complicated Mr. Dulles.

The Russians could easily misunderstand this crucial fact. They have their own long standing stereotype that Mr. Dulles is unyielding and implacable.

They have highly simplified views of human character and of human behavior, and they have a rather dangerously simplified view of Mr. Dulles, who is in fact a complicated man.

The Russians may not be able to appreciate quickly enough that their view of Mr. Dulles as a monolithic character is a mistaken one.

They may be confirmed in their prejudice by much that is being printed in this country. In many quarters Mr. Dulles is being pictured as a kind of granite monument which never changes and never bends no matter what the winds that blow. This is mythology, and although it is intended as adulation, it does less than justice to this worldly and experienced man.

Risks in Disagreement.

The myth has little relation to the fact that John Foster Dulles is and always has been a very practical man who measures the strength of the forces about him and sets his course accordingly.

If the Kremlin does not misjudge the situation, there will be a conference. If there is one, it is, of course, improbable, indeed impossible, that the conference will produce a grand settlement of the German question.

But, on the other hand, once both sides commit themselves to a conference, they cannot break it up in total and in angry disagreement without running the gravest risks.

Once they meet, they cannot do less than to work out arrangements about Berlin and the two Germanys which, though tentative and provisional, could evolve in the course of time into something more acceptable and more permanent.

COMMON MARKET ADVANTAGES CITED

The European Common Market will raise standards of living in European countries, and thus provide eventually a larger European market for American goods, a panel of St. Louis University professors agreed last night.

The discussion was at a meeting of the University's President's Council at St. Louis University Law School, 3642 Lindell boulevard.

Panel members were Prof. Kurt Junckerstorff of the School of Business Administration; Prof. Kurt von Schuschnigg, historian and former chancellor of Austria, and Prof. Joseph P. McKenna, director of the department of economics.

Von Schuschnigg told the group Europe has realized that American prosperity is not necessarily due to the vast area and resources of this country, but rather to its economic organization.

Through the common market plan, Europe hopes to attain a similar prosperity through a similar efficient economic organization, he said.

He added that a corollary benefit of the plan was that it would tie France and West Germany so closely together in an economic sense that it is doubtful if there will ever be war between them again.

Prof. Junckerstorff termed the plan the "biggest experiment in economic policy in European history."

When the treaty was drawn up, he said, there were many jokes about it in Europe, and many persons thought that the plan would enter history as merely a brief attempt to unify Europe.

However, ratification of the treaty by the participating nations has already brought about a 10 per cent reduction in tariffs, and it has shown Europeans the great potential inherent in the plan, he said.

The common market idea is economic in its conception, but its eventual goal is a unified political community, he added.

Prof. McKenna pointed out that although the European nations have about the same population as the United States, their annual gross national product is only one-quarter that of America.

He said the tariff barrier between European nations and the United States has not changed greatly since before establishment of the plan, and added that the decision before the United States was whether to lower tariffs.

ASSERTS MENTAL HOSPITAL VOLUNTEERS ARE GREAT HELP

Volunteers at state hospitals are of the greatest importance in helping mentally ill persons back to a normal life, Dr. Louis H. Belinson, acting director of the State Division of Mental Diseases, said here yesterday.

He was the principal speaker at a one-day conference of 30 volunteers and volunteer directors from the five state hospitals. The conference was held at St. Louis State Hospital, 5400 Arsenal street.

Dr. Belinson described the volunteers as "the bridge across which patients frequently find the road to recovery." In their work the volunteers aid patients in job and home hunting, help them adjust to the community and teach them how to get around on their own, he pointed out. Methods of establishing uniform procedures for volunteer services throughout the state were discussed at the meeting.

SOCIAL SECURITY AT 100

MARBURY, Md., Feb. 20 (AP)—A former slave who says she will be 101 years old March 12 started drawing social security yesterday. The $78.60 check was presented to Mrs. Delcena Jordan, believed to be the oldest resident of Charles county.

Mrs. Jordan previously did not qualify for old-age benefits because she was dependent on a son, and his widow drew pension money after he died in 1955. The law now provides for benefits to a dependent surviving mother as well.

FUNERAL FOR LOUIS LIPSITZ

Funeral services for Louis Lipsitz, operator of a shoe store at 1505 Chouteau avenue for nearly 55 years, will be at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the Rindskopf undertaking establishment, 5216 Delmar boulevard, with burial in Beth Hamedrosh Hagodol Cemetery.

Mr. Lipsitz, 82 years old, died yesterday at Jewish Hospital following a heart attack. He lived at 7740 Stanford avenue, University City. Surviving are five sons and two daughters.

LAURENCE HOUSMAN DIES; BRITISH AUTHOR, ARTIST

BUTLEIGH, England, Feb. 20 (AP)—Laurence Housman, British poet, author and artist, died today. He was 93 years old.

Mr. Housman's first published work was "The Writings of William Blake" in 1893 and his last "Old Testament Plays" in 1951—a productive span of 58 years. He was a brother of the late A. E. Housman, author of "A Shropshire Lad."

One of Mr. Housman's greatest successes was the play "Victoria Regina," a dramatization of the life of Queen Victoria, which was the subject of a famous censorship battle. The lord chamberlain, who censors the British stage, held that no British ruler could be made the subject of a play during the lifetime of the monarch or any of his or her children. With the help of King Edward VIII before he abdicated, the bar was nullified in 1937. Three of Victoria's children were then still alive.

SENATE TRIBUTE TO HAYDEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP)—Senator Carl Hayden (Dem.), Arizona, a western peace officer in bygone days, began his forty-eighth year as a member of Congress yesterday. His Senate colleagues marked the occasion with tributes.

Hayden has represented Arizona in Congress, first as a member of the House and then of the Senate, since the state was admitted to the Union. First elected to the Senate in 1926, Hayden tops all of his colleagues in length of service. He is 81 years old.

ARTISTS' SOCIETY LATE WINTER SHOW

By GEORGE McCUE

There aren't many old barns left, and there are even fewer that shape up as possibilities for painters. That may be why some of the barns seen at big group exhibitions of paintings are beginning to take on the familiar aspect of old acquaintances.

So, step right up and say "Howdy" to an old acquaintance in the Kiel Auditorium refectory—"Hoffman's Barn," Lillian Mohler's watercolor in the late winter show of the Society of Independent Artists. Hoffman's Barn, under this and other titles, is almost as much a part of the refectory scene as it is of Hoffman's barnyard, wherever that is.

Everybody paints Hoffman's Barn but Hoffman, who, if he were to tamper with the red siding of his building, which has weathered to just the right extent, would be striking a crippling blow at St. Louis art. The present Mohler version presents it from the downhill side, with unpretentious directness. A broad free-form white margin makes the image seem to float into view, giving the picture a quality of bucolic fantasy.

The show is one of the society's better presentations. An outstanding oil is Esther Silber Reed's "Pirates' Alley," with its balconies, iron grilles and doorways. Leona Chappell's "Fox Creek" is a watercolor busy with lights and shadows under a rural bridge.

"Hercules," is an airy scratch board composition with turtle and butterfly by Marjorie Thul Steinmeyer; Victor Joseph Kunz has a skillful organization of people and buildings at a roadside market in his ink brush drawing, "Kohler City," and there are several nicely done still lifes. This show will be on view during the remainder of the concert season.

A number of silk screen prints and lithographs by the Rev. Phillip R. Szeitz, S.O. Cist., who is on the arts faculty of the University of Dallas, are on view at The Center, 3559 Lindell boulevard, this month.

Most of them are on religious themes, and his figures often have the heavy dark outlines of works by Rouault. His "Pieta," enriched by a gold background that sets off russet tones in the composition, has the Christ expressively sagging in the arms of His friends, as though the weight of the world were being borne by the dead figure.

"Composition VII" is an abstraction of tall structures and darting calligraphic notations. There are several monotone prints of Madonnas and saints that range from a sort of Romanesque flat image to a quite contemporary deep space.

Warns Rehabilitation Bond Fund Won't Cover All Improvements

City Plan Commission Points Out $4,000,000 Will Be Insufficient in View of Rising Costs.

The $4,000,000 provided by the 1955 St. Louis bond issue for neighborhood rehabilitation will be insufficient to finance all the improvements contemplated, the City Plan Commission warned last night.

Acquisition of land for parks is costing considerably more than expected, the commission's urban renewal committee reported. Experience in buying ground for public housing projects and for expressway right-of-way offers additional evidence that more money will be needed, it was pointed out.

The $4,000,000 bond fund is earmarked for development of small parks, planting of trees, street improvements and other projects designed to enhance the livability of old neighborhoods. Thus far, $400,000 has been appropriated — $238,000 for acquisition of a park site at Cook and Taylor avenues; $40,000 for street improvements in the Fountain Park area, and $122,000 for house-to-house inspection.

An additional $400,000 has been authorized for expenditure in the 1959-60 fiscal year, which means that 20 per cent of the total bond fund will have been spent.

Plans drafted by the State Highway Department for the Daniel Boone Expressway call for nine ramps in the section between Twenty-first street and Broadway, most of these being designed to bring eastbound traffic off the expressway. The Plan Commission suggested that four additional ramps, all in the vicinity of Seventh street, might be needed to provide adequate access to the central business district.

The East Side generates a heavy flow of traffic into downtown St. Louis, it was pointed out, and plans for construction of a toll-free bridge at the foot of Poplar street indicate that westbound movement will be intensified.

Mrs. Joseph H. Roblee, who celebrated her ninety-fifth birthday today, was honored last night at her Congress Hotel apartment by Stephens College, of which she is an honorary curator.

President Seymour A. Smith and Hugh Stephens, chairman of the board of curators, presented Mrs. Roblee with a citation, "in recognition of leadership, inspiration and public service in the encouragement of learning." Mrs. Roblee became a curator of the college at Columbia in 1927 and established the Joseph H. Roblee Endowment Fund in honor of her late husband, St. Louis shoe manufacturer.

AMERICAN OVERSEAS GROUP TO HOLD 3-DAY MEETING

Directors of the American Overseas Association will begin a three-day meeting at the Coronado Hotel tomorrow. The association is composed of persons who have served with the Red Cross overseas.

All St. Louisans who have served with the Red Cross overseas were invited to attend business sessions at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow and 9:30 a.m. Sunday, as well as a dinner at the hotel at 7 p.m. tomorrow.

The association, founded in 1951, is an independent and non-profit organization which conducts volunteer programs of home hospitality for foreign visitors sponsored by the International Co-operation Administration and the State Department.

MANAGEMENT ASSOCIATION CONFERENCE TOMORROW

St. Louis management representatives will attend an all-day conference sponsored by the St. Louis Council of the National Management Association at Hotel Statler Hilton tomorrow.

Fred Smith, a Cincinnati management consultant, will be the chief speaker. Talks also will be given by Prof. Wesley Wiksell, Louisiana State University; the Rev. Leo C. Brown S.J., professor of economics at St. Louis University, and by Prof. Stephen H. Fuller, Harvard Graduate School of Business.

The conference is open to non-members of the association. Registration will be at 8 a.m.

ST. LOUIS U.'S ENROLLMENT 7182 FOR SECOND SEMESTER

St. Louis University's enrollment for the second semester is 7182, it was announced today. Enrollment for the same period last year was 7100.

The current enrollment reflects a 14 per cent increase in the number of students in graduate school, it was reported. Graduate school enrollment now is 1698, compared with 1491 last year.

The current enrollment does not include 851 students in non-credit courses in the university's Adult Education Center.

Child Conference Director.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP)—Ephraim Roos Gomberg of Philadelphia was appointed today as director of the 1960 White House conference on children and youth.

FORD GRANTS FOR TEACHING OF ASIAN SUBJECTS IN U.S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (UPI)—The Ford Foundation announced last night grants totaling $376,000 to strengthen teaching of Asian and other non-Western subjects in undergraduate American colleges.

The grants were: $40,000 to Denison University, Granville, O.; $136,000 to Haverford College, Haverford, Pa.; $55,000 to Indiana University; $70,000 to the University of Vermont.

The foundation also announced grants of $249,000 to the University of Chicago for graduate research and training on south Asia, and $150,000 to Yale University for a similar program on southwest Asia. A grant of $175,000 was made to the Asia Society for promotion of Asian studies in schools and colleges, translation of Asian literature, exchange of museum exhibits and other intercultural projects.

CAN'T FILL SOME JOBS UNDER $10,000 LIMIT, MAYOR SAYS

The present $10,000 limitation on municipal salaries is making it impossible for St. Louis to fill some vacancies in the reorganized Department of Health and Hospitals, Mayor Raymond R. Tucker said yesterday.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Citizens Committee of Homer G. Phillips Hospital, the Mayor declared that the city is "simply kept off the market" in its effort to hire key medical personnel.

"Such personnel," he said, "is properly commanding greater salaries than our $10,000 ceiling."

He urged support of a charter amendment which would remove the salary ceiling. The amendment will be before the voters at the April 7 election.

Director A. M. Lobanov Dies.

MOSCOW, Feb. 20 (AP)—The Evening News reported yesterday the death of A. M. Lobanov, veteran stage director of the Moscow Art Theater. He was 59 years old.

25,000 HEAR BILLY GRAHAM AT MEETING IN AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 20 (UPI)—An estimated 25,000 persons ignored rain showers and wet grounds today to attend Evangelist Billy Graham's sixth meeting in Melbourne.

Three thousand persons went forward afterward to answer his invitation to dedicate their lives to Christ.

The meeting was held at the Sidney Myer Music bowl, which seats 3000. The rest sat on the grassy slopes outside and heard the sermon over amplifiers.

PARKING LOT BOND ISSUE

An ordinance authorizing issuance of $33,000 in revenue bonds for a parking lot was passed yesterday by the East St. Louis City Council.

The money will be used for paving and installation of parking meters on the lot adjacent to City Hall. The revenue bonds will be retired through meter receipts.

CHOIR TO SING REQUIEM

Grace Methodist Church, Skinker and Waterman boulevards, will present Brahms's Requiem Sunday at 8:15 p.m. The choir will be directed by Robert McGill and accompanied by an organ and by 21 members of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

Merchant J. S. Dillon Dies.

DAVENPORT, Ia., Feb. 20 (AP)—J. S. Dillon, founder of a chain that operates 51 supermarkets in Kansas and Colorado, died in a hospital yesterday. He was 88 years old. He sold his interest to his sons nearly 35 years ago when there were only four or five stores in the chain.

Jackson Accepts Contract

By J. Roy Stockton

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 20—The hopeful St. Louis Cardinals, with a new manager, new coaching staff, new players and many well-aged problems, started spring training at Al Lang field this morning, when pitchers and catchers went through their first workout with Solly Hemus making his bow as a major league field director.

Pitchers Frank Barnes and Wilmer Mizell were the only unsigned absentees and were classed as holdouts as a result of their failure to report.

Others missing the drill were Lindy McDaniel, who underwent an emergency appendix operation at Meridian, Miss.; Sam Jones, who telephoned he was having automobile trouble en route, and three young hurlers — Nelson Chittum, Bill Smith and Don Choate—who had pitched winter ball and were given permission to delay reporting until Feb. 25.

Pitcher Larry Jackson agreed to a reported $17,000 salary late yesterday after a conference with General Manager Bing Devine. Jim Brosnan, another hurler, had gone through the formality of signing in the morning.

Mizell telephoned to inform Devine he was on his way to St. Petersburg and would arrive by this evening. Devine said, however, that there still was some difference between what the club had offered and what Mizell wanted as a salary.

Besides Mizell and Barnes, three other Cardinals are unsigned. They are First Basemen Joe Cunningham and George Crowe and Outfielder Irv Noren.

One Workout a Day.

Manager Hemus said he would stick to a program of one workout a day unless indications developed that the squad was not getting enough work.

"There will be only one squad and I believe it's better that way, because every individual then feels that he's a member of the club," Hemus said. "Of course, there will be a division when we get into the exhibition game schedule. We have six B games scheduled and I plan to play in all of them, because I want to get as good a look as possible at the younger players in camp."

Devine broke in to explain that Solly was not on the player list, but that he would be placed on the active list after cutting-down time.

"I expect to be a playing manager," Hemus continued, and then with a grin, "unless somebody comes along who can do a better job. I plan to pinch-hit and serve as the need dictates."

Discussing the club's problems, Hemus said he believed the pitching would be better, largely because it would have greater depth in the important relieving department.

"We've got pitchers who have shown that they can do that relief job," Solly said. "There may be changes, but we know right now that we can call on fellows like Brosnan, Marv Grissom and Alex Kellner in relief with considerable confidence. The club would have won a lot more games last year if it had had a fellow like Grissom or Kellner. Right now I figure on Larry Jackson as a starter."

Top Problem at Short.

Big problems facing the club, which finished 20 games off the winning pace last season, concern pitching, the outfield and defense. While Hemus has indicated he plans to go along with Alex Grammas as the No. 1 shortstop, Devine volunteered the statement that finding a shortstop who could hit as well as field, was in his opinion one of the top problems.

"Of all the fine prospects we signed in the last year or two, none was a shortstop," Devine said. "For that reason we may do a lot of experimenting. It's possible a player or two may show possibilities as a shortstop and we won't hesitate to do some converting. For instance it's possible that Charley James, signed as an outfielder, will get a chance at short."

Helping Hemus are his regular coaching staff, including Ray Katt, Johnny Keane, Howard Pollet and Harry Walker, and in addition, Cot Deal, Vern Benson, John Grodzicki, Paul Waner and scout Buddy Lewis. Joe Schultz, Omaha manager, will join the staff of assistants tomorrow or Sunday.

The new batting cage, designed by Paul Waner, was expected to be ready for the hitters today or tomorrow.... Infielders and outfielders are due to start training Feb. 26. ... Hemus said he had left his golf sticks at home, but that he would have no objections to his men playing golf. He said he might make it a rule that the Cardinals could play golf if they walked, rather than rented electric carts. . . . Solly plans no special rules concerning curfew or behavior, explaining that men in a major league camp ought to know how to behave. . . . Hemus hopes to give his starting pitchers several chances to go nine innings before the squad leaves Florida. He wants to carry no more than 10 pitchers during the season.

Cleveland, Sumner Win

Cleveland defeated Vashon, 77-11, and Sumner defeated Soldan, 51-37, in Public High League swimming. Tom Sandvoss and Gary Lutker of Cleveland were double winners, Sandvoss in the 40 and 100-yard freestyles and Lutker in the 100-yard butterfly and individual medley.

Lesson From a Golf Master

Golf Amateurs Get Boost From Smith

By Robert Morrison

Horton Smith had a reply to the recent comment by Lloyd Mangrum that amateurs shouldn't be allowed to "clutter up" professional golf tournaments.

"Golf is basically an amateur game," said Smith, the one-time Joplin Ghost on his visit here for the annual dinner of the St. Louis District Golf Association.

"If there weren't any amateurs, there wouldn't be any professionals," said Smith, a golf Hall of Fame member who now is pro at Detroit Golf Club.

"That doesn't mean that a pro tournament should have a lot of 15-handicap players," Smith added. "But certainly the good amateurs add something to a tournament, those stars like Chuck Kocsis and Bob Babbish of our Detroit area and Bob Cochran and the Manions and Whitbreads of St. Louis golf."

100 Days With Hagen.

Smith touched all bases in a talk before 262 dinner guests at Norwood Hills Country Club last night and dwelled briefly on his "100 Days With Walter Hagen," his advertised theme.

"We played 100 exhibition matches in 1929 and we had a side agreement of $1 a stroke," Smith recalled. "We holed out almost everything, and Hagen took $22 of my money. Of course, he already had borrowed more than that from me."

If Francis Ouimet ignited the spark that made golf a game of nation-wide interest, Hagen fanned it into a flame, said Smith.

"He was a great strategist," Horton explained. "A great navigator on the golf course, he could judge distance wonderfully well. He had a knack for reckoning the height of the flagstick as compared with a nearby tree and then translating those factors into distance.

Hagen, Not Hogan.

"In recent times you've heard Ben Hogan speak of the desirability of a 'repeating' swing. Well, Hagen's style was different. He would improvise his shots and his swing, depending on the situation. That's one reason he won the British Open four times, because he could adjust so well to the varying conditions found over there."

Smith lamented the fact that Hagen did not continue as an active player in the game as some old-timers have. Horton, who was a 20-year-old when Hagen was in his 1929 prime, still is active as a teacher and player after having recovered from a serious lung operation a year ago last fall.

"I played in my first state amateur tournament here in St. Louis in 1924," recalled Smith, a native of Springfield, Mo. "It was at the old Midland Valley club (Meadowbrook of recent years). I discovered that putting was a very important part of the game. We had only sand greens at Springfield, and when I played here the greens had a little clover in them and the ball would look like it was sitting in a hole, and not the proper one. I took 44 putts, shot 84, and went into Class B."

Hot in the Winter.

Smith was pro at Joplin when he made his sensational winter tour of 1929, winning about $15,000. He became known as the Joplin Ghost.

"Burris Jenkins, the sports cartoonist then working in Kansas City, gave me the name," he recalled. "He drew a cartoon portraying Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Leo Diegel and other stars shrouded in a fog, forming the background to this newcomer to pro golf.

"Actually, the Joplin Ghost was not a brand-new tag. There had been an earlier Joplin Ghost in boxing, a fighter named Jeff Clark, who was a very elusive sort of a fighter."

Boosts Caddies.

A former P.G.A. president, Smith concluded his talk with appeals for support of various golf activities, particularly caddie scholarship funds.

"The live caddie is almost a vanishing American and it'll be harmful to the game if he disappears because he's a source of future playing material," Smith said.

In connection with the golf association dinner, the 1959 schedule of events was announced. The district men's championship is set for July 13-19 at Glen Echo.

Golf Schedule

Alton Risks Lead In Illinois Pin Loop

Alton's Bowl Haven entry, new and undisputed leader in the Southern Illinois Bowling Proprietors Association Traveling League, risks its position tomorrow night at the Bel-Bola Lanes in Belleville. Action starts at 7 o'clock.

Challenging Bowl Haven will be the Bowland Schlitz crew from Granite City. Meanwhile, the Busch Bavarians from Collinsville's Fairmont Bowl, erstwhile leaders, will be meeting Bowl-A-Way Lanes of East St. Louis; the Carling Stags of Belleville oppose Wood River Bowl; and Bowl Inn of East Alton is matched with the Playdium Lanes of East St. Louis.

Last Saturday night's heralded "showdown" battle between Bowl Haven and Busch at Alton developed into a rout as Bowl Haven swept all three games to pile up a three-game lead over the losers. The Alton outfit fired a 3132 total, to Busch's 2886.

Ellis Is Leader in Texas Golf

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 20 (UPI)—Wesley Ellis Jr., hometown boy, nursed a two-stroke lead today going into the second round of the $20,000 Texas open golf tournament.

Although Ellis now plays out of Aldecress, N.J., he began playing golf at the age of 12 by walking a half block from his home to the Brackenridge Park layout, the scene of the current tourney. He won the Texas state junior tournament and three San Antonio city amateur championships while developing his game here.

The 27-year-old Ellis could do no wrong with his putter yesterday, knocking the ball from out of high grass for two birdies of 35 and 70 feet and coming home with a five-under-par 33-33-66 over the familiar course.

He was one of only five players in the 150-man field who could break the 36-35—71 par. Defending Champion Bill Johnston of Provo, Utah, had a three-under-par 35-33—68 for second place. Johnston had a poor start and finish which offset five birdies.

Joe Jimenez, another native of San Antonio, who is now resident pro at Manhattan, Kan., shot a 32-37—69 to take over third place.

Other players to break par were Don Whitt, Borrego, Springs, Calif., with 35-35—70; and Al Balding, Markham, Ont., with 36-34—70.

Coaches Invited

Head coaches and their assistants have been invited to attend an organization meeting of the St. Louis Football Coaches Association next Monday at Ladue High School, starting at 7:30 p.m.

Afterward the film of the 1958 University of Missouri-Oklahoma grid game will be shown.

Olmedo Is Victor in Net Meet

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (UPI)—Alex Olmedo, who led the United States Davis Cup team to triumph, opened his bid for the National indoor tennis championship last night with a 6-4, 6-3 victory over Lt. Henry Jungle Jr. of the United States Air Force.

Second seeded behind defending titleholder Dick Savitt of New York, the 22-year-old Olmedo had his troubles before winning. It was his first tourney on boards, and he was bothered both by the surface and the lights.

Earl Buchholz of St. Louis arrived too late to play his first-round match, so he's scheduled for two appearances today.

All seeded players survived the first round, although three of them were carried to extra sets.

Big Barry MacKay of Dayton, O., staged a terrific marathon with Myron Franks of Los Angeles, before coming through at 24-22, 4-6, 6-3.

Both the foreign seeded entrants, Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt, and Warren Woodcock of Australia, also had their troubles. Southpaw Drobny, former Wimbledon king, finally subdued Grant Golden of Evanston, Ill., 10-12, 6-4, 7-5. Woodcock outlasted Charles Masterson of Brooklyn, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Savitt opened his bid for a third indoor crown—he also triumphed in 1952 — with a smashing 6-1, 6-1, victory over Wilbert Davis of New York.

Losers to Play In Concordia Meet

St. John's of Winfield, Kan., and Concordia of Austin, Tex., losers last night in the All-Concordia Junior College basketball tournament at Concordia Seminary, will meet at 7 o'clock tonight. At 8:30 St. Paul's College of Concordia, Mo., will play Concordia College Institute of Bronxville, New York.

Last night St. Paul's defeated St. John's, 60-49, and defending champion Concordia College of St. Paul, Minn., beat Austin, 79-49. Consolation and championship finals are scheduled tomorrow night.

Hansen Top Average Collegiate Bowler

Webb Hansen, member of the first place Logan College No. 1 team, is the leading individual bowler in the Intercollegiate Bowling League that rolls Saturday morning at the Arena Bowl. Hansen carries a 186 average and has a 632 total, including 256 high single.

Bob Erickson of Parks College has a 185 average and Jerry Cornelius of St. Louis U. Dentals a 179. Team standings: Logan No. 1 16-8, Concordia Seminary 15-9, St. Louis U. Dentals 15-9, St. Louis U. 14-10, Eden 13-11, Logan No. 2 9-15, Parks 6-15, Belleville J.C. 5-16.

Marion to Speak

Marty Marion, former Cardinal, will speak at a father-son meeting of the Shaw Park-Optimists Baseball League at 2:30 p.m. Sunday. A 1958 World Series film will be shown.

Billikens Play Two Texas Fives; Bears Play Final at Home

A trip to Texas where even defending champion Cincinnati had a tough time winning twice, faces St. Louis University's basketball team over the weekend while the Washington University Bears prepare to close the season tomorrow night at home.

The Billikens, whose winning streak was snapped at 14 games by Bradley Monday night, are now in a somewhat precarious position.

"We can't afford to lose," said their coach, John Benington, as he eyed the Missouri Valley Conference situation in which Cincinnati leads with an 8-0 mark and Bradley and St. Louis are tied for second with 7-2.

They Have to Win.

The implication was that, if the Bills lose either game, what they do later may not help, their post-season tournament ambitions. At the momtnt, they have tournament encouragement from the N.I.T. in New York where selection committee chairman Ken Norton said it is "very possible" that two Valley teams will be invited. The champion, of course, goes into the N.C.A.A. tourney.

Washington U., with a 9-12 record, will meet the Air Force Academy (11-9) tomorrow night at the Bears' field house. It will be a welcome return to the home floor for the Bears who have played six of their last seven away from home.

Concordia Seminary, with a 9-7 record, meanwhile will shoot for victory No. 10 at the Alton Extension of Southern Illinois U. tonight at 8 o'clock.

The Preachers of Pete Pederson ran up a school record score of 94 points in beating the same team in an earlier game this season. Since then the Alton team has defeated Harris Teachers of St. Louis and Springfield (Ill.) Concordia to demonstrate improvement. Alton has a 6-4 record.

Tewes Lost to Preachers.

Concordia will be without the services of Bob Tewes, who last week suffered a head injury that ended his basketball for the season. Tewes, who had worn a helmet because of head injuries earlier in his career, will not play in Concordia's remaining games, which include two contests next week in a Concordia invitation tournament here.

Lou Vesely, Washington's outcourt shooting star with a 12-point average, is the only regular senior to be closing his career in the Bears game. This will be the third meeting between the teams who split the first two contests of the rivalry.

Senior Bob Beckel, averaging 16 points a game, is a standout for the Air Force team. He's a 6-foot guard who was a third-team Helms Foundation All-America selection last year. The Falcons who won five straight games and eight of their last 11.

In the Missouri Valley Conference both Cincinnati and Bradley must test their road ability over the weekend, just as St. Louis will. Cincinnati plays at Wichita Saturday and Tulsa Monday; Bradley reverses the procedure. These games may help set the stage for the Cincinnati-at-Bradley game March 7, and the St. Louis-at-Cincinnati battle March 9. But the race could be over before then.—R.M.

Cincinnati Pair Close To Leaders

By John J. Archibald

A couple of 4-10 splits, coming in the tenth frame of his first and third games, apparently robbed a Benld, Ill., bowler, Bob Katzmarek, of the top spot in the singles of the American Bowling Congress tournament. Rolling in the first singles squad at the Armory today, Katzmarek turned in games of 202, 256 and 218 for a 676 total. This jumped him into thiird place in the singles standings and helped him get a fifth place tie in the All-Events.

Katzmarek's doubles score of 594 and team score of 576 gave him a total of 1846 in the All-Events. He is a member of the Benld Packing Co. team.

Another change among the leaders developed when a Cincinnati pair, William Kettler and Albert Bour, bowled a combined score of 1238. This enabled them to take over second place. Kettler's score was 594 and Bour's 644.

"Gee, I wish they'd let me roll those two tenth frames over," said Katzmarek as he came off the alleys. He felt sure he would have gotten enough pins to pass the current singles leader, Fred Kolez, of Chicago, who has a 681.

The East End Taverns of Monticello, Ill., have come up wit' the biggest surprise thus far in the tournament — both for themselves and others. The team is in second place in the open division standings after rolling 200 pins above its average for a 2935 total last night.

Back in Monticello, a town of 3500 "half-way between Champaign and Decatur," the East Enders are taken rather lightly. In fact, they must get taken frequently, fo. they are fourteenth in a 16-team handicap league.

It the dream that spurs tenpin enthusiasts to make their bid in the biggest bowling show of them all inspired the East End Taverns to make this first trip to the A.B.C. As soon as they heard it was going to be held in St. Louis they started putting extra dollars in their kitty and last night was the payoff.

The beginning of their foray on Lanes 15 and 16 wasn't spectacular. But the 914 total was just about their average, o it was encouraging to Team Capt. Charles Hardy and his mates.

Anchor man Ecus (Ec) Vaugh hit a 224 in the second game and the East Enders' total rose to 981. In the third game the team's scoreboard on the far wall soon had clusters of X's for strikes scattered all over and the spectators began drifting into the seats near the Monticello men.

There was a chance for the East End Taverns to take the tournament lead if they could stay hot enough. They didn't quite make it, but the 1040 score they bowled was the highest single game of the tournament. It left them 20 pin short of the 2955 rolled by the Metropolitan Clothing team from Dayton, Ohio, on opening night.

Vaughn, a "steel heater" in a forging plant who leads the team in league play with a 192 average, was best again with 626. Bowling proprietor Cliff Nelson disregarded his 175 average to shoot 591.

Vern Kuetemeyer, a 190-average man whose regular job is teaching music and playing piano in a dance band, put rhythm in his swing as he totaled 589. Sponsor Charles Hardy, a 174 bowler most of the time, had 579. A 550 by kid brother, Joe Hardy, who carries a 183 average, completed the East Enders' achievement.

A few lanes away a better-rated Decatur team, Old Style Lager, started with games of 986 and 1016, but skidded to 921 in the final for a fourth-place total of 2923. The Van Wie Chevrolets, of Baldwinsville, N.Y., are third with 2930.

Champs Looking Them Over

Players, Referee And Fan Fight in Celts-Nats Game

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Feb. 20 (UPI) — One of the wildest games in the history of the National Basketball Association was staged last night between the Boston Celtics and the Syracuse Nationals.

In a series of incidents that turned the War Memorial Auditorium into a fight arena:

—Referee Sid Borgia slugged an abusive fan.

Borgia, who emerged without a scratch, said he had been needled by a fan calling him "gutless" throughout the game.

"The fan was abusive all night," Borgia related after the game. "I finally told him anytime he wanted to try my guts to let me know."

As the fan bulled his way down to the court, Borgia slugged him. "I threw the first punch," the official admitted. "I didn't have any time to wait."

Borgia said he didn't know what triggered the players into their share of the action.

"I guess it was a case of hot tempers on both teams," he shrugged, adding League President Maurice Podoloff would receive the entire details in a report.

The fourth period action began when Dempsey fouled Russell and the latter retaliated with a looping left hand punch. Both benches were quickly emptied as players joined the fray.

Heinsohn and Schayes, who apparently had been making veiled threats at each other all night, finally tangled with a minute to go in the game. Borgia rushed in to break it up and his interest was rewarded with a left jab by Heinsohn.

Seymour rushed Heinsohn after the Celtic clouter had sent Hopkins sprawling to the floor. In an exchange of rights and lefts, Seymour suffered a lump high on his forehead. He actually was the only casualty of the night. The game was concluded without further fighting.

Then, police had to break up a post-game engagement involving Heinsohn, Conley and a host of wrathful Syracuse fans as the players were making their way to the dressing room.

Royals, Lakers to Play Hawks

The Hawks, who already have clinched the Western Division championship, will play eight of their 13 remaining games with Western teams of the National Basketball Association.

The first two Western foes will play at Kiel Auditorium this weekend, Cincinnati at 8:30 p.m. Saturday and Minneapolis at 3:30 p.m. Sunday. The Hawks are 9-0 against the Royals and 7-3 against the Lakers as part of their 22-6 record against Western Division teams.

A concert by the Four Freshmen is scheduled before the Sunday game, at 1:30 p.m.

Fundamentals were stressed in a long workout by the Hawks yesterday, and another drill was scheduled today. The players, who didn't get much time to practice recently because of frequent games and trips, feel the practices will do them a lot of good.

A.B.C. Sidelights

As the first week of action in the American Bowling Congress tournament nears its close, without a 3000 total in the open team division, there were two teams considered capable of hitting this score on tonight's 9:30 squad at the 138th Infantry Armory, Grand and Market.

In the matter of averages, the Thermoflos of Milwaukee carry a 1035 a game mark compiled in the Greater Milwaukee All-Star League. Team members and their averages are Don Krause 215; Bill Fabian 207, Ray Johannsen 205, Pete Kowalski 204 and Chet Liwski 204.

Krause, incidentally, once rolled a 1027 four-game series in match game competition, the second highest ever bowled in this division of A.B.C. record. The best total was a 1039 by Bob Nickel of Toledo, Ohio.

The other outstanding team will be the Allgauer's Restaurants of the Chicago Classic League which has a 972 average.

Champions Get Look.

Jim Vrenick, who paired with Bill Tucker to bring back the A.B.C. doubles title to St. Louis last year from Syracuse, discovered it's much easier for him to be recognized without a hat than when he is wearing same.

Jim stopped at an A.B.C. counter to ask about advance tickets and no one paid too much attention until a reporter asked if he was scouting the lanes where he will defend his title.

If there is royalty around you will usually find a lot of brass nearby. It holds true in the A.B.C. tournament. Herman Royalty bowls in the No. 2 spot for the Pittsfield, Ill., Knights of Columbus club and leading off is John Brass.

Ray Dierkes gave the fans a thrill last night. Ray, bowling with the St. Anthony Lanes team, opened his last game with seven straight strikes before a No. 5 pin stood in the eighth frame. He finished with a 245 game.

Wesbury Bascom, former lightheavy boxer, now one of the owners of Ringside Lanes, had a 445 total while bowling with the Franklin-Unions. The team counted 2428 in the Booster Division.

Perry Due To Start For Illini

CHICAGO, Feb. 20 (AP) — Michigan State's bid for its first undisputed Big Ten basketball crown will get a big lift Saturday if the Spartans defeat the hot Purdue Boilermakers.

The game in East Lansing, Mich., tops a full round of conference action.

Purdue, winner of five of its last six starts after a miserable beginning, is one of three teams rating a chance to catch M.S.U.

The Spartans, beaten by Purdue, 85-81, Feb. 7, are 8-2 in the standings and lead the chase by two games with four to play. Purdue and Indiana share second place with 6-4 records and Michigan is fourth with 5-4.

Indiana is at Illinois (5-5) for a Saturday afternoon date and Minnesota (4-5) is at Wisconsin (1-8) the same time for a regionally televised game. Wisconsin's only victory was over Purdue.

In other night attractions, Michigan is at Northwestern (4-6) and Ohio State (4-5) at Iowa (5-).

M.S.U. could clinch at least a tie for the title of it defeats Purdue and if Illinois downs Indiana and Northwestern takes Michigan. Illinois upset Indiana earlier on the Hoosiers' floor, 89-83, and Northwestern did the same to Michigan, 83-78.

The Champaign game will bring together two of the most evenly-balanced attacks in the league.

Indiana has all five of its starters among the top 34 scorers; Illinois' first five are among the leading 38. Capt. Roger Taylor and Johnny Wessels to the Illini are thirteenth and fourteenth high scorers in the Big Ten, and Walt Bellamy, 6-10½ Hoosier pivotman, is fifteenth.

Indiana's towering front line of Bellamy, 6-8 Frank Radovich and 6-5 Leroy Johnson has a combined shooting average of .496 in conference action.

Ed Perry, 6-5, Salem junior forward, whose relief work was instrumental in Illinois' earlier win, will start. So will Wessels, who was benched at the start of the easy Wisconsin victory Monday. The 6-7 sophomore was being disciplined for tardiness to practice.

Bardstown Choice In Field of 13 Named for Widener

The seven-year-old veteran carries high weight of 124 pounds in the mile and one-quarter race and looms favorite at 8 to 5. He will be ridden by Steve Brooks and drew the No. 5 post position.

Also named for Hialeah Park's top race for handicap horses were: Nadir, 120 (William Hartack); Hoop Band, 115 (Charlie Burr); Grey Monarch, 114 (Eric Guerin); Air Pilot, 114 (Jack Leonard); A Dragon Killer, 113 (Jack Sellers); Bill's Sky Boy, 113 (Hedley Woodhouse). The Cain Hoy Stable entry of Victory Morn, 112 (Pete Anderson) and One-Eyed King, 110 (Ismael Valenzuela); and Admiral Vee, 112 (no rider); Ambehaving, 110 (Sam Boulmetis); Ekaba, 110 (Ken Church); and Point of Order, 104 (no rider) complete the field.

If all 13 start, The Widener will be worth a total of $137,600 with a net purse of $87,240 going to the winner. The race will be broadcast and televised nationally by N.B.C. with post time set for 3:47 p.m., St. Louis time.

Bardstown won the Orange Bowl Handicap, setting a track record, and the Tropical Park Handicap this winter but in his last start, the McLennan Handicap, he finished seventh.

The McLennan was won by Sharpsburg, who was injured in training for the Widener. The Fairlawn Farm hoped to run him in the race but decided against it at entry time.

Nadir, who drew the rail post position, is second choice at 5 to 2. He has started three times and has been third on each occasion—in the Tropical Park Handicap, the Royal Palm and the McLennan.

Also listed at 5 to 2 was A Dragon Killer, winner of the Arlington Classic and Ventnor Turf Handicap in 1958. A Dragon Killer has slowly been rounding into top form as evidenced by a bang-up second to Sharpsburg in the McLennan. He drew No. 3 post.

The others all were listed as longshots with the crowd expected to concentrate its betting on the "big three."

Mississippi State Student Poll Favors Playing in N.C.A.A.

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., Feb. 20 (AP)—A poll of Mississippi State University students is in favor of the school's basketball team playing in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament.

No one has said State can't play if it wins the Southeastern Conference berth, but there is an unwritten policy against Mississippi schools playing in tournaments with teams which have Negro students. The N.C.A.A. tournament is certain to include teams with Negro players.

The student poll, in which 1135 of the 4000 enrolled at State cast ballots, resulted in a 973-162 vote for the team's participation. The 973 was about 86 per cent of the ballots cast.

Players Turn Soccer Game Into a Fight, Referee Calls It Off

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20 (UPI)—A soccer game here last night between Zurich, Switzerland, and the Los Angeles Canvasbaks was stopped by the referee with 18 minutes left to play because of excessive rough play by both teams.

Referee Dave Aiton ruled the game no contest. Zurich was leading, 4-3.

The game, played at Rancho Cienega Stadium, ended as blows were being exchanged by Bert Evans of the Canvasbaks and Erich Probst of Zurich. Play was rough throughout the contest.

Earlier, Aiton had kicked Zurich Goalie Werner Schley out of the game. The visitors played the rest of the way with 10 men.

Zurich leaves for San Francisco for a game there Sunday. Last Sunday, Zurich tied the Los Angeles All-Stars, 4-4.

McCullough to Lead Sally League Club

ASHEVILLE, N.C., Feb. 20 (UPI)—Clyde McCullough, former major league catcher, will assume his new duties as manager of Asheville's entry in the Sally Baseball League March 1.

McCullough was named manager yesterday. The Asheville club will train at Dothan, Ala. The club does not have a major league affiliation.

McCullough, 41, managed Reading, Pa., of the Eastern League last year and before that he was a player-coach for the Miami Marlins in the International League.

Missouri Opposes Sooners

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 20—Coach Wilbur (Sparky) Stalcup agrees with the baseball adage of not breaking up a winning combination, but he may make a change or two in the Missouri Tiger basketball starting lineup to cope with the height advantage of the Oklahoma Sooners here tomorrow night.

The Tigers, winners in their last two games after an 11-game losing streak, hope to make the Sooners No. 3 and avenge a 64-59 defeat suffered at Norman. The two victories have elevated the Tigers out of the Big Eight cellar, but the 2-6 conference and 5-14 over-all doesn't compare favorably with Oklahoma's 5-4 conference and 11-9 over-all.

The Sooner starters will average nearly 6 feet 5 inches in height, two inches above the most effective Tiger combination of Charles Henk, Al Abram, Don Sarver, Joe Scott and Mike Kirksey. Stalcup can compensate a bit by using Cliff Talley, 6-6, instead of Sarver, 6-3, a shift that might improve Missouri scoring as Talley has a 9.1 average against the injury-prone Sarver's 4.0 Abram, leading rebounder with 180, also is leading Tiger scorer with a 14.9 average, followed by Scott with 10.6, Henke with 9.6, Talley and Kirksey with 8.4.

Junior Bills Set Rifle Mark in Loss

The Pipsqueaks of the Metropolitan League outshot the St. Louis U. High, 1916-1907, last night, but the losers' score set a record for area high school rifle teams. Bill Bradburn of St. Louis and Jack Stoltz of the winners each scored 386 of a possible 400.

Chaminade Seeks to End Cathedral's Long Win Streak

Belleville's Loop Mark 43 in Row

By Harold Tuthill

This is do-or-die night for Chaminade's team which will try to do the impossible, beat Belleville Cathedral in Catholic League basketball competition. The game will be played at Chaminade, starting at 8:15.

Last year the Flyers, with Tony Dohle and Kevin Kearns, believed they could stop the perennial front-runners, but it was the same old story, twin victories for Cathedral under the home-and-home arrangement. This winter Cathedral reached a season high in points as it won over Chaminade, 90 to 76, on the Belleville school's floor.

So far Cathedral has captured 43 straight C. L. contests, is 9-0 in the standings and 21-2 overall. Chaminade, 8-1 in the race, has an 18-6 record for the campaign.

While the title-deciding Catholic League game is going on, some of the sharpshooters in the St. Louis district will continue their march on the elusive "400" goal. Only four have achieved that objective.

Kinloch's Roscoe Wilder leads with 635 points in 27 games, an average of 23.5 a game. St. Charles's DeWayne Bond has pumped in 553 in 22 starts, Sumner's Nelson Yates has 436 in 18 and Beaumont's Donnell Reid has 410 in 19.

Nearing the charmed "400" circle are Dave Siegmund of Webster Groves and Wilbert McAllister of Vashon who have 386 apiece and Garry Garrison of C. B. C. with 383.

Kinloch, 22-5, closes out its North County campaign tonight needing a victory at Fairview (3-4) to finish with an 8-0 mark. Only Jennings, 6-1, is still in the running and it has an engagement at Hazelwood, 4-3.

St. Charles, which has a 20-2 record, and Webster Groves, 19-1, seek added luster in their drive to the Suburban League wrapup between the top contenders next Friday. The Pirates take their 7-0 record to Ferguson, 1-6, and Webster, likewise 7-0 in the standings, visits Maplewood, 3-3. The host Leafs have a respectable 16-5 record.

Brentwood, the South County pacesetter, 6-0 and 15-7 overall, entertains Bayless, 4-3, in the next-to-last round. Runner-up Clayton, 5-1, visits Mehlville, 3-3, as third-place Hancock 5-2 and 15-5 over-all, is idle.

DuBourg, 20-4, seeks to put the clincher on the Catholic Athletic Conference crown in its game at St. Mary"s'. The visiting Cavaliers are 8-0 as compared to 5-3 for St. Mary's, while McBride, 6-2, plays at De Andreis, 2-6. So either a Du Bourg victory or a McBride defeat will be sufficient for Fran Willett's Cavaliers to repeat as champions.

Beaumont, 17-2, plays Central tomorrow at Hadley Tech in an important Public High game. Tom Stanton's Bluejackets need to beat the 2-6 Redwings to draw even with Sumner which is 8-1 at top of the standings.

Sumner plays Lincoln of Venice at Hadley Tech and goes to East St. Louis to take on Lincoln there next Tuesday. Lincoln, 18-1, after its loss to Vashon, is host to Dupo, 19-4, tonight.

Alton, rocking along as one of the top teams in Illinois, takes its 23-1 mark to Granite City as the Redbirds seek their twenty-second straight victory in their Southwestern Conference final. They are 10-1 in the standings, while Granite City is 5-6.

Move in Milwaukee To End 'Bring Your Own' at Stadium

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 20 (UPI)—The Milwaukee County Corporation counsel today is drafting an ordinance for the Park Commission to stop fans going to the stadium with their own liquid refreshments.

Stadium Manager Bill Anderson Thursday told the board the fans who bring their own beverages in cans, bottles and garbage cans have become a safety and nuisance problem which is growing worse with every season.

Anderson said in a report it wasn't the beer dispensed at the stadium in paper cups causing the trouble, but the huge quantities brought in by zealous fans.

"Fans come into the stadium carrying six-packs, ponies . . . and we have even had instances where groups brought in large two-handled garbage cans iced with canned and bottled beer," said Anderson.

However, the fans purchased a ticket to the game for the big can, he said.

Anderson said the indignities ran the gamut from innocent bystanders getting sprayed in the face with beer as juggled cans were tapped, being hit on the head by full beer cans dropped from the upper deck in the stands, and lacerations from sharp-edged can and bottle openers dropper or kicked by the "bring your own'ers."

Anderson received unanimous support from the board on the request for the ordinance.

Prep Grid Coaches Favor Returning Posts to Goal Line

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (AP)—Coaches of the 1958 state high school champion football teams voted in favor of returning the goal posts to the goal line. Otherwise they said to let the high school rules, including platoon substitution, remain as they are.

The vote was revealed in a report by Scholastic Coach Magazine, which annually polls the champions on various aspects of the game.

The coaches favored moving the goal posts by a 31-22 margin and they opposed adoption of the college two-point conversion rule by a 33-25 vote.

Only schools which won official or accepted semi-official state titles were contacted.

West, East Split In Baptist Basketball

Fullmer, Greaves Bout on TV

Their 10-rounder will be televised by KSD-TV.

When Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, was world champion in 1957, he won a non-title decision over Greaves at Salt Lake City. Young Wilfie was a comparative novice then.

Greaves of Windsor, Ont., now fighting out of Detroit, boasts a string of 13 straight victories. Wilfie's 10 wins in 1958 included a fourth-round knockout over Cobey McCluskey for the vacant Canadian crown.

There Will Be A Boat Show

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 20—The tornado that hop-scotched through St. Louis early Tuesday morning, Feb. 10, caused considerable damage to the St. Louis Arena and adjoining buildings. Consequently, the Arena management had no alternative but to cancel the Midwest Sports Show which had been scheduled to open Friday, Feb. 20.

We feel that St. Louis should not be without a boat show where the boat minded public may see, compare and buy the boating equipment they need and want. Therefore, we of the Ray George Co. are staging a Boat Show and Open House to begin Friday, Feb. 20, and to run through Saturday, Feb. 28. Admission is FREE and refreshments will be served from 9 A.M. to 9 P.M. daily.

Some of the most advanced equipment in the marine industry will be on display in our large 8,000 square foot warm, well lighted building located at 3456 South Grand Blvd., 1 block north of Gravois.

Bring the family and invite your friends. We shall make every effort to make your visit pleasant and informative. Don't forget. The date: Feb. 20-28. The time: daily 9 to 9. The place: 3456 So. Grand Blvd.—PR. 6-4568.

ENGINEERS AND SCIENTISTS

Consider ITT Laboratories as important to your future!

The primary domestic ITT facility for advanced research and development, ITT Laboratories embodies the ITT world-wide tradition of pioneering leadership in electronics. Here the creative engineer will find outlets and rewards for imagination and competence within a scientific atmosphere which supports and encourages individual thinking and creativity.

If your talents fall in the areas below, a careful consideration of your future should include an informal discussion of your professional potential with an engineering representative of ITT Laboratories.

Kuenn Mentioned in Detroit Trade Talk

May Go to Athletics In Deal for Maris

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 20 (UPI) — While several major league teams engaged in their first warmups of the spring training season, the Detroit Tigers and Kansas City Athletics today batted around a possible trade involving Harvey Kuenn and Roger Maris.

The Tigers are seeking Maris and Hector Lopez in order to add more power to their lineup and are willing to sacrifice Kuenn to get the K. C. sluggers.

An informed source told United Press International that Kuenn has been included in a "package deal" offer to the Athletics along with Southpaw Pitcher Billy Hoeft and newly-acquired third baseman Eddie Yost.

Parke Carroll, general manager of the Athletics, admitted he has been dickering with the Tigers and said, "There's a strong possibility of a deal with Detroit when I get down to Florida next week."

"However, we're not interested in trading Maris and Lopez," added Carroll, who declined to identify the players mentioned in his trade talks with General Manager Rick Ferrell of the Tigers.

Kuenn, a former all-star shortstop, made a successful switch to center field last year. His batting average of .319 was third best in the American League but he drove in only 54 runs and hit eight homers.

Maris and Lopez, between them, totaled 45 homers and 153 runs-batted-in last season. Maris, an outfielder obtained from Cleveland in June, slammed 28 home runs and drove in 80 runs although he batted only .240. Lopez, who can play second base, third or the outfield, hit .261.

The Tigers announced that pitchers Frank Lary, Tom Morgan and George Susce Jr. would be considered holdouts if they failed to come to terms before the team's batterymen reported to camp. While the A's are getting nowhere in contract talks with slugging Outfielder Bob Cerv, who reportedly is asking for a $30,000 pact.

Whitey Ford was among the missing yesterday when the New York Yankees conducted their first drill for batterymen. The ace southpaw reportedly has been offered a $2000 raise, which would hike his salary to about $35,000, but it was based on a so-called "good conduct" clause.

Both Ford and Mickey Mantle were censured by Yankee Manager Casey Stengel last season for alleged off-field activities. Mantle, who was paid $72,000 in 1958, presumably has been offered the same pay hike as Ford and under the same conditions. However, both feel if they accept their new contracts they indirectly will admit they were guilty of flouting training rules last summer.

Relief ace Ryne Duren of the Yankees just got under the wire yesterday when he signed for $12,000—a $4000 raise over his 1958 salary.

Rigney Will Leave Hospital Tomorrow

WALNUT CREEK, Calif., Feb. 20 (AP) — Bill Rigney, San Francisco Giants manager who suffered a fractured jaw and collarbone in an auto crash Feb. 8, will leave Kaiser Permanente Hospital tomorrow.

He plans to join the Phoenix (Ariz.) training camp of his National League baseball club late next week.

Rigney's wife, Paula, was operated on yesterday. She suffered a crushed hip when their car hit a power pole in nearby Berkeley.

Rigney said he was itching to get to Phoenix, but wants to wait and see how his wife recuperates from surgery.

First Landing Tops 131 Nominations For the Preakness

BALTIMORE, Feb. 20 (AP) —Two-year-old champion First Landing heads a list of 131 thoroughbreds nominated for the eighty-third Preakness, May 16, Pimlico race course announced today.

First Landing, owned by Christopher T. Chenery, is one of nine out of the top 10 colts on the current Experimental Free Handicap list nominated for the $150,000-added race.

In addition to last year's champion, which won a record $396,460, the list includes a trio of three-year-olds that won more than $200,000 in their freshman season.

Travis M. Kerr's Demoninth, on the Experimental Handicap, was nominated but suffered a training injury last week and was withdrawn.

The list includes 23 stakes winners in 1958.

Missouri Pitcher To Pass Up Baseball For Football Team

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 20— A promising pitcher on the Missouri Tiger baseball team will pass up the sport this spring to advance his candidacy as an end in football.

Ken Lambert, a right-hander, reported unexpectedly for football last fall and is considered a good prospect.

He had a 2-0 record as a hurler with last year's baseball team.

His loss is the second to the mound staff of Coach John (Hi) Simmons, who has been informed that Ron Goodwyn, left-handed sophomore from Gainesville, has failed to meet scholastic requirements.

Central Beats Tarkio.

FAYETTE, Mo., Feb. 20 (AP) —Central College won its first M.U.A.U. conference basketball game, downing Tarkio 81-59. Bob Iglehart of Central was high scorer with 31 points. Gary Sprague and Gabe Freeman led Tarkio with 13 apiece.

6 House Rookies Have Wives On Payroll, Another Has Son, 19

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP) —At least six of the 82 new House members have their wives on their office payrolls —thereby joining in a practice by many oldtimers.

And one new Democratic Congressman from Iowa has his 19-year-old son, a college student, down for a $11,000-a-year salary.

There may be others who have given relatives jobs but in a fashion not easy to spot on House payroll records. Sometimes wives are listed under their maiden names. A daughter may be employed under her married name. In such cases, the similarity of family names does not stand out on the payroll records.

The six new House members whose wives are listed on the January payrolls as employes, and their annual salary rate:

Most of the House members with relatives on the payroll make no apologies, insisting that the employes are earning their pay.

Payroll records of Senators are not public, as are those of House members.

Steven A. Carter, son of Representative Steven V. Carter of Iowa, is on his father's payroll at $923.48 a month, or about $11,000 a year. Young Carter, 19 years old, is a student at George Washington University here. He goes to his father's office after morning classes.

The elder Carter said that in hiring his son he had merely picked the best qualified person available.

He said his son is a good research man, handles public relations for him and makes a radio report to the Iowa congressional district once a week.

He said he went over 65 applications for the post and found his son had the best qualifications.

Carter said perhaps it was hard to explain but young Steve is qualified for this position. "Our relationship always has been so close," he said. "He knows my feelings and thinks like I do."

BIG-STORE SALES IN DOLLARS RISE 7 PCT. FOR WEEK

Dollar volume of department store sales in the St. Louis area for the week ended last Saturday was an estimated 7 per cent higher than in the comparable week a year ago, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today.

Gains in the entire Eighth Federal Reserve District, which includes St. Louis, were an estimated 11 per cent over the same week a year ago.

This was the third consecutive week that sizable increases were reported for the Eighth District and all centers in the district.

For the four-week period ended Saturday, sales in the entire district averaged 10 per cent above the corresponding period a year ago. The St. Louis area gains were 8 per cent in the four-week period.

CLAYTON C. OF C. PLANS REVITALIZATION PROGRAM

A program intended to provide more active support for civic projects in Clayton has been launched by the Clayton Chamber of Commerce, Corley Thompson Jr., executive manager of the chamber, announced today.

Plans for the program and revitalization of the chamber were discussed yesterday at an open house at the organization's new offices, 7818 Forsyth boulevard. Mayor Jule A. Schweig of Clayton was named chairman of the chamber's reorganization committee.

The program of supporting civic projects, Thompson said, includes transportation, business area development, legislation and taxation, planning and zoning and traffic and parking. He said the chamber will support proposed bond issues for financing a new county courthouse and necessary off-street parking facilities for the courthouse.

IND. STOCK INDEX MAGIC 600-LEVEL CRACKED TODAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (UPI)—The stock market made history today when the industrial average cracked the magic 600-level for the first time. The new all-time high in the average was accompanied by increased volume.

Dow-Jones average of 30 industrials closed 7.17 points higher at 602.21, a new record high. The 20 rails rose .8 of a point to 164.39 and the 15 utilities gained .46 at 91.74.

Volume was 4,190,000 shares, compared with 4,160,000 yesterday.

Chemicals, steels, oils, metals, tires and numerous special issues featured the advance with individual gains running past 3 points in numerous instances.

The over-all upswing — the third straight session of rising prices—added more than two billion dollars to market valuations. The total value of all listed stocks now is greater than the federal debt.

The strong features in today's markets were Youngstown, U.S. Steel and National in the steels; Allied, Eastman Kodak and Thiokol in the chemicals; Kennecott, Magma and Reynolds in the non-ferrous metals; Southern Pacific and Virginian in the rails; Firestone and Goodyear in the tires; and Scott Paper, U.S. Gypsum, Ampex and Polaroid in the specials.

Favorable economic forecasts and a number of good individual corporate developments helped to spark the rally.

Thiokol, a chemical engaged in the missle fuel business, ran up more than 4 points at its high, helped by a stock split. Kennecott pushed ahead more than 5 at its best on new strength in the price of the red metal.

Corporate Reports

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (AP)—Only income per share as stated by corporations is given in following table. In some instances comparisons with preceding year may show wide swings (gains or losses) which may be due in cases of loss or largely reduced income to some extenuating or substantial non-recurring cost or temporary influences or in cases of non-recurring benefits in preceding year. Increase in number of shares may distort per share figure. These facts should be sought in detailed reports issued by the companies.

ANACONDA COPPER CO. 1958 NET $1.15; IN 1957 $4.23

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (AP)—Earnings of the Anaconda Co. climbed sharply in the fourth quarter of 1958, but not enough to make the full year as profitable as 1957, the company said.

Net income in the final three months totaled $14,500,000, equal to $1.35 a share, compared with $9,028,222 or 87 cents a share in the final quarter of 1957.

Earnings for 1958 came to $33,800,000 or $1.15 a share compared with $44,008,349 or $4.23 a share in 1957. Sales declined to $105,800,000 from $123,914,574 in 1957.

U.S. GOVERNMENT BONDS EDGE UP, FAIRLY ACTIVE

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (AP)—United States Government bonds edged higher in fairly active transactions late today.

Most of the activity was in intermediate treasury bonds up 2-32 in most cases. The market for long range bonds was "thin," dealers said, but markups of 2-32 from last night's close were common.

Industrials and top grade investment issues led the corporate rise. Utilities tended to ease but rails firmed after a mixed opening to tilt the average over on the plus side.

1958 UP AND DOWN YEAR FOR PROFITS

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (AP)—A drop in earnings in 1958 is being reported today by two out of three American corporations. But in the majority of cases the decline was reversed or trimmed substantially in the final months of the year.

And the current first quarter of 1959 seems sure to stack up notable gains as compared to a year ago when the recession's onslaught on profits was at its worst.

Sam Dawson

So far 770 corporations have reported on net income after taxes in 1958. Combined, their earnings are 14.4 per cent lower than in 1957.

Declines are shown by 430. There are 30 reporting a net loss in 1958, against 23 in 1957.

COMBINED THE 770 REport profits of $9,174,278,000 compared with $10,730,080,000 made by the same companies in 1957. This is only a sampling of all corporate profits. When final figures are in a couple of months hence, total United States corporate profits are predicted to be around 36 billion dollars. It was an up and down year for profits. In the first three months of 1958 they were running at an annual rate of less than 32 billion dollars. In the final three months of the year the pace had quickened to an estimated 45 billion annual rate.

PROFITS ARE EXPECTED to rise still further as 1959 progresses. President Eisenhower's budget estimates are pegged in part to this anticipation—that the Treasury will get fatter collections from higher corporate income. To balance the budget larger profits than current ones will be needed. And the swift recovery of profits since the recession is expected to play a major role in labor negotiations in coming months, as union leaders seek a larger share of gross earnings for their members.

THE MILLIONS WHO OWN corporate stock will watch the profit trend closely, too—as the stock market has been the last few weeks. Cash dividends paid out in 1958 came to about 12 billion dollars, a drop of some $400,000,000 from the record set in 1957. Reviving profits can reverse that trend. Sharpest slides in profits in 1958 are reported by these industries: Rail equipment, autos and suppliers, machinery and tools, steel and iron, coal, aircraft and suppliers, mining and metal working, and oil and its suppliers.

BEST INCREASES OVER 1957 are reported by: Airlines, office equipment, farm equipment, communications, utilities and tobacco companies. As a group manufacturers of electrical equipment and appliances report the two years pretty much of a stand-off. This is the third time in this decade that earnings have slipped below the year before figures.

IN 1951 PROFITS WERE 9 per cent lower than in 1950. The following year they revived and advanced by 1 per cent. The gain of 1953 over 1952 was 11 per cent. And despite a recession in many industries 1954 profits rose another 3 per cent. The boom year of 1955 saw net income jumping 32 per cent over 1954. This pace couldn't be held and 1956 earnings were lower by 1 per cent. They came back in 1957 by a slim 0.4 per cent, held down by the recession of the final months — which slopped over into 1958 to cause the 14.4 per cent drop now being reported.

GEN. ELECTRIC NETS $2.78

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (AP)—Sales and profits of General Electric Co. last year tapered off slightly from 1957 levels but still reached the second highest totals in company history.

Net income in 1958, General Electric reported, came to $242,942,533, or $2.78 a share, two per cent below the record $247,851,871, or $2.84 a share of a year earlier.

Sales slipped to $4,120,769,801 last year, five per cent under the record $4,335,664,061 volume of 1957.

MEXICO REFRAC. CO. REPORT

Mexico Refractories Co. reported preliminary net income for 1958 of $1,711,485, equivalent to $1.99 a common share, compared with $2,499,997 or $2.90 a share for 1957. Sales and other income were $17,027,818, against $21,130,050.

Preliminary net for the fourth quarter was $742,001, equal to 87 cents a common share, compared with $573,083 or 66 cents a share for the like 1957 period. Sales and other income, $5,115,978, against $4,898,754.

BANK CLEARINGS

St. Louis bank clearings for Feb. 20 were $66,500,000 compared with $61,900,000 a year

TAVERN HOLDUP BROKEN UP, TWO MEN ARRESTED

Two men were arrested early today by Probationary Patrolman Richard Arthur, who was off duty, as they were holding up customers and the proprietor of a tavern at 4532 Virginia avenue, police reported. One of the men had taken $40 from a cash register.

Those arested gave their names as Irvin H. Cummings, 27 years old, 2000 block of Olive street, and Alfred W. Hoffman, 29, 2500 block of Goodale avenue, Overland. Both said they were taxicab drivers.

Arthur, who was not in uniform, had gone to the tavern to cash a check. As he waited for the proprietor, Daniel Boesch, the two men came in and walked toward the rear. The officer then heard a commotion in the rear.

He saw a customer, Leo Ulses, 4120 South Compton avenue, lying on the floor with Cummings standing over him with a pistol in his hand, Arthur said. Cummings then ordered another customer, Floyd Barger, 3232 Taft avenue, to stay where he was.

Hoffman was ordered by Cummings to take money from one of two cash registers, the policeman reported. Meanwhile, Cummings ripped the telephone wires from the wall and walked toward the other cash register.

When Cummings turned his back momentarily, Arthur pulled his service revolver from the waistband of his trousers and said: "I'm a police officer. Drop your gun on the bar."

Cummings complied and raised his hands. He and Hoffman were searched for other weapons by Arthur while the tavern proprietor called police.

Patrolmen Donald Miller and Elmer Rolf arrested a man who said he was Arthur Strawbridge, 5100 block of Page boulevard, early today when they saw him rolling two new tires from a filling station at 6241 Delmar boulevard toward an automobile.

In the automobile, which Strawbridge said was his, the officers found eight more tires. They were identified by the filling station owner, Ferd Ross, as having been stolen from the station.

Three men were held by police and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation today suspected of stealing about $2500 worth of cameras and photographic equipment from the Cromwell Express Co., 2315 Chouteau avenue, Wednesday night. A fourth man is being sought.

After the burglary of the express company was discovered by police, Detective Sgt. John Enright alerted pawn shop operators to be on the look-out for any of the stolen articles, some of which were taken from trucks loaded for interstate shipment.

Later, police received a telephone report that a man was attempting to sell a camera, similar to one that was stolen, in a pawn shop at 2717 Franklin avenue. The man, arrested as he ran from the shop, was Triplett. He implicated the others.

Harry Brinkmeyer, 75, operato of a confectionery at 2835 North Twentieth street, was shot in the right elbow last night by a man who attempted to hold up Brinkmeyer's wife, Pearl, 51, in the store. He was taken to Homer G. Phillips Hospital.

CUTTING TORCH IGNITES TAR ON CARBURETOR PLANT ROOF

Fire, caused by a cutting torch which ignited tar, burned a small hole in the roof of the Carter Carburetor Corp. plant at 2840 North Spring avenue today. Two alarms were sounded.

Workmen were making repairs on the roof when the tar ignited. Fifteen pieces of fire equipment responded to the alarms. Deputy Fire Chief Robert Olsen estimated damage at $50.

Alsop

their former hero. The world at large has not paid much attention to this striking phenomenon, but it is familiar to anyone who walks the corridors of the Capitol. The Eisenhower Republicans—to use their old name for the sake of convenience—feel completely deserted by Mr. Eisenhower in his present budget-first-and-everything-else-nowhere phase.

Start of Cleavage.

The cleavage first became apparent during and immediately after the Republican leadership fights at the opening of the present session. In the Senate, the White House actively discouraged opposition to the leadership candidacy of Everett Dirksen of Illinois, whose anti-Eisenhower speech in the 1952 convention was so memorable for insinuating bitterness. In the House, the White House positively encouraged the bid for the leadership of Representative Charles Halleck of Indiana. The White House then failed to lift a finger when Halleck froze out every single man of the type the President used to call "modern Republicans."

Since then, moreover, the cleavage has appeared in other fields. In the field of appointments, for example, the brilliant and selfless Henry Labouisse, though non-political, is just the sort of man the great majority of Eisenhower Republicans would like to see in the difficult foreign aid job. Again, the able James H. Smith, himself a leading Eisenhower Republican, would have been a welcome choice for the Secretaryship of the Navy. Yet Mr. Eisenhower has let the party's ultra-conservatives veto Smith's appointment, and he is permitting Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn to block the appointment of Labouisse on the cheapest pretexts of old-fashioned pork-and-patronage politics.

In the field of policy, House leader Halleck actively tried to prevent the Administration from presenting any civil rights bill whatever, on the ground that this would cost him Southern support for the President's grand aim of balancing the budget. The argument actually won over White House chief of staff Wilton D. Persons. The ensuing White House discussion about what to do was time-consuming. Hence the first serious civil rights bill of this session was presented by a great leader of the South, Lyndon Johnson of Texas.

Liberals Disagree.

The liberal wing of the G.O.P., including Vice President Nixon, Secretary of Labor James Mitchell, Attorney General William Rogers and Secretary of the Interior Fred Seaton, has serious doubts about the validity of this as a political argument.

They think the formula for victory over the Democrats in 1960 is the formula presented to the country in 1952 and 1956—a popular attractive candidate and a liberal civil rights, social security and labor program.

Though the President did not support last November's "right to work" legislation, which Nixon blames along with the 1958 recession for the Republican defeats, the liberal wing of the party thinks that the G.O.P. has increasingly become identified with policies which labor will mobilize its considerable political power to oppose at the polls.

This issue has not been fought out in the Cabinet. In fact it has not even been discussed there in terms the party wishes to portray to the country.

The conservative Republican leaders in Congress, however, have won the President over to their side in weekly discussions on specific items of legislation, and this has now apparently produced the strong feelings which both President Eisenhower and Reuther expressed in their waspish exchange Wednesday.

19 FIREMEN OUT OF 33 SUSPENDED AT BELLEVILLE

Nineteen of the 33 members of the Belleville Fire Department have been suspended for insubordination by the Board of Police and Fire Commissioners, it was announced today.

The suspensions, which followed failure of the men to attend a refresher course in fire in their off-duty hours, begin today. They are for 10 days without pay and will be staggered so as not to jeopardize operations of the department.

Acting Fire Chief Fred G. Bruss ordered the men to attend the course on Dec. 11. He said he told them they would be given compensatory time off.

Melvin Trotier, an attorney representing the firemen, said Bruss told them they would not be compensated. Trotier said the board's suspension order would be appealed to circuit court.

The firemen are members of Local 53 of the International Association of Fire Fighters.

MISSOURI, ILLINOIS RESERVE UNITS WILL BE REORGANIZED

An extensive reorganization of Army Reserve units and personnel in the Eleventh Army Corps (Reserve) area of Missouri and Illinois will begin soon, Maj. Gen. Charles D. W. Canham, corps commander, announced today.

Over-all strength of personnel in communities maintaining reserve units will remain "relatively unchanged," but a few units will be eliminated, others will be relocated and some will receive new designations, he said. The corps has about 189,000 reservists, of whom about 26,000 receive pay for drills.

"There will be no significant reduction in the number of paid drill spaces," Gen. Canham said. He added that the reorganization had become necessary "to realign the Army reserve forces in accordance with the five group 'pentomic' structure adopted by the active Army for its divisions." Details of the reorganization will be announced to units about March 15, he said.

LABOR GROUP INDORSES STRONGER BI-STATE AGENCY

A resolution supporting a bill that would broaden the powers of the Missouri-Illinois Bi-State Development Agency has been approved by the AFL-CIO St. Louis Labor Council, Oscar A. Ehrhardt, secretary, announced today. The measure is pending in the Missouri Senate.

The resolution noted that Missouri law did not give the bi-state agency enough powers to function properly or to qualify for federal assistance. The Senate bill would improve the market-ability of the agency's revenue bonds, permitting it to obtain funds and bringing Missouri law into conformity with the Illinois law setting up the agency.

Members of the St. Louis council said in the resolution they would appeal to the Missouri State Labor Council to work in behalf of the Senate bill.

2-CENT GASOLINE TAX HIKE IS URGED BY REX WHITTON

Missouri's highway needs for the next 20 years can be met if the 3-cent state gasoline tax is increased to 5 cents, Rex Whitton, chief engineer of the State Highway Department, told the Rotary Club of St. Louis yesterday.

Urging adoption of Gov. James T. Blair's proposal to increase the tax, he said Missouri will need an additional $774,000,000 in the 20-year period to finance a $4,600,000,000 program of highway modernization and maintenance. The remainder is to be provided by the Federal Government.

Missouri's tax of 3 cents a gallon is the lowest in the nation, Whitton declared, reporting that 44 states levy a tax of 5 cents or more.

REBEL COUNCIL TAKES OVER IN PANAMA CITY

PANAMA, Feb. 20 (AP) — An orderly crowd of thousands early today defied President Ernesto de la Guardia Jr. and installed 11 new city councilmen for the Panamanian capital.

The crowd seized control of city hall Wednesday after the blackjacking of a radio commentator who accused the council of mishandling city funds. The council refused to resign, and the President said he had no legal power to remove it. The councilmen's elected four-year terms end next year.

The march on the city hall was led by Ramon Periera, the radio commentator, who denounced the elected council at a rally Tuesday night. Bleeding from a head wound, he charged that Councilman Mario Vejasquez and five other men invaded his station Wednesday afternoon, fired pistols, hit him with a blackjack and attacked his wife and daughters. One of Velasquez's brothers was arrested.

De La Guardia had appealed for the people to wait until an investigation could be made of the financial charges. It was not known what the President would do about the worsening situation, but early today he had not ordered troops into action.

Leaders of the popular movement announced a general strike would be called in Panama City today if necessary to put the new council in full control.

The march on the municipal building Wednesday came after office hours, all offices were deserted, and there was no violence. Leaders of the demonstration constituted themselves as a "revolutionary municipal junta" and said they would run the city until the council was replaced.

De La Guardia told the junta he had been unable to obtain the resignations of the council members. The President said his legal staff had unanimously advised him he could not remove the council legally by decree. De La Guardia insisted he would not go against the law.

De La Guardia had trouble on another front. The University of Panama canceled its annual commencement scheduled for tonight after student leaders warned they would not be responsible if the President showed up to make the traditional presentation of diplomas.

The President and student organizations have been at odds since last May, when student demonstrations against school conditions turned into bloody street fighting with troops.

Does Federal Slum Program Fall Short?

By EDWARD COWAN

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI)—Does the federal slum clearance and urban rehabilitation program fall short in its preoccupation with downtown areas? The question is one of several raised in an essay entitled "The Challenge of Urban Renewal," published by the Urban Land Institute. Its author is M. Carter McFarland, director of the Federal Housing Agency's division of economics and program studies.

McFarland says, in effect, that the federal slum clearance program probably is not broad enough "to accomplish the complex and many-sided job of renewing our cities."

Program Deficient.

He specifies that the program is deficient in at least two important respects:

. . . It is too little concerned with renewal of non-residential areas which are run down and less economic than they need be.

"In the metropolitan age which is emerging, it is difficult to isolate downtown problems and developments from those in the suburbs," McFarland said. "And, indeed, one set of forces is inter-related with the other.

"Suburban areas certainly do not have the widespread slums and blight which are found in the heart of most cities. However, urban renewal means blight prevention as well as elimination. It also means development and maintenance of sound, healthy communities. These things are as much needed in the suburbs as they are downtown."

Two barriers appear to impede the development of broad-scale urban renewal planning, McFarland said. One is that when Congress wrote the basic legislation authorizing Federal slum clearance grants—the Housing Act of 1949—it indicated an intent to use the authority only in direct support of slum clearance and redevelopment actiivties. Hence, although there is in the law "sufficient authority for the assembling, planning and development of outlying open land," McFarland finds it has barely been exercised.

No Total Coverage.

A second impediment to comprehensive metropolitan rehabilitation is "fractionalized governmental jurisdictions. . . . in practically no situation which can be named does the jurisdiction of a single local government cover the metropolitan area of a major city."

The key parts of a comprehensive approach to urban renewal—land use control, water supply, sewage treatment and disposal, schools, transportation—must ultimately be dealt with in a unified way, not piecemeal, McFarland said.

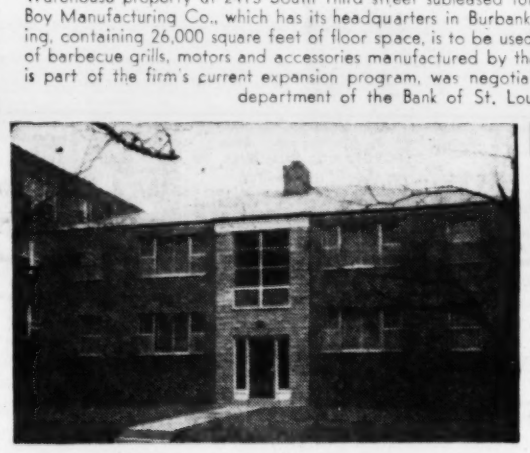
A second deficiency in the Federal program, he asserts, is the emphasis on slum clearance and residential redevelopment as distinguished from the elimination of commercial and industrial blight.

This is easy to understand, McFarland finds, for this reason: "Because of the human values involved, Congress has considered the improvement of housing conditions a proper and necessary function of the Federal Government. It has been reluctant to authorize federal programs to clear and rebuild cities, as cities."

But, the writer warned, "residential and non-residential blight are too closely inter-related and inter-dependent to be easily separated. . . . Blighted non-residential areas, if left untouched, may threaten the success of the residential urban renewal projects which are contiguous to them."

Subleased by Barbecue Equipment Manufacturer

Warehouse property at 2415 South Third street subleased for Harbin Sales Corp. to Big Boy Manufacturing Co., which has its headquarters in Burbank, Calif. The one-story building, containing 26,000 square feet of floor space, is to be used for storage and distribution of barbecue grills, motors and accessories manufactured by the company. The lease, which is part of the firm's current expansion program, was negotiated through the real estate department of the Bank of St. Louis.



New Moorlands Apartment

Mrs. Beatrice Pfeiffer and Francis L. Pfeiffer Jr. have purchased this new four-family apartment building at 7526 Buckingham drive, Moorlands addition to Clayton, from Oscar Schwerdtfeger, the builder. Each unit of the building has five rooms, bath and lavette, and is air-conditioned. The transaction was negotiated through the Smith Company, realtors.

Home in Holly Hills

Custom-built house at 4145 Holly Hills boulevard sold by John B. and Frances Gutmann to George H. and Elizabeth Ostmann. The transaction was handled by Doerflinger Realty Co.

Builder Sells Duplex

This duplex with five-room units at 1130-32 Terrace drive, Richmond Heights, has been bought by Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Kellman from Harold Kuhn, builder. The transfer was negotiated by D.R.B. Realtors.

New Research On Housing Costs Urged

SANTA BARBARA, Calif.—The greatest contribution the Federal Government can make to American housing is research on costs, C. R. Mitchell, president of the United States Savings and Loan League, believes.

Mitchell, addressing the annual management conference of the California Savings and Loan League here, said that the United States badly needs "a revolutionary breakthrough" on housing costs, and urged that the Federal Government give more attention to this critical problem.

The League president asserted that until now, the principal and almost exclusive interest in housing has been in connection with home mortgage credit. He said this "exclusive" approach has had the unfortunate result of reducing research on housing costs.

Not Enough Research.

"As long as houses can be built and sold under the approach of solving the costs by lowering down payments and lengthening maturities to 30, 35 or 40 years, there will be a minimum of research and effort directed at greater efficiency and lower costs by either builders or suppliers," said Mitchell.

Mitchell, who is president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Kansas City, Mo., said that the National Association of Home Builders has made progress in research looking toward more economical ways of producing housing, and he added:

"There is some other research going on in this field, but not nearly enough has been done or is being done in attacking the problem of housing costs.

"Basically, what we need is a revolutionary breakthrough in housing costs, and we can't get this without more research, and we can't get the kind and volume of research we need, so long as the Federal Government's major interest in housing is to liberalize or subsidize mortgage credit."

Traced to Credit.

The League official warned that housing costs have continued to rise, year in and year out, in periods of prosperity and recession, and that the rise in housing costs has been much, much higher than the rise in living costs generally.

"A substantial part of the problem can be traced back to the steady year-by-year liberalization of home credit, which has made it easy to pass along the increased cost to the home buyer," Mitchell declared.

"Part of the responsibility for this situation must rest with those who have annually advocated measures to further liberalize government-controlled credit.

"It is still not fully understood that some of these measures have the ultimate effect of increasing the cost of home-ownership to the average home-buying family, and may eventually result in leading to controls on housing starts, prices and profits."

Building Bought

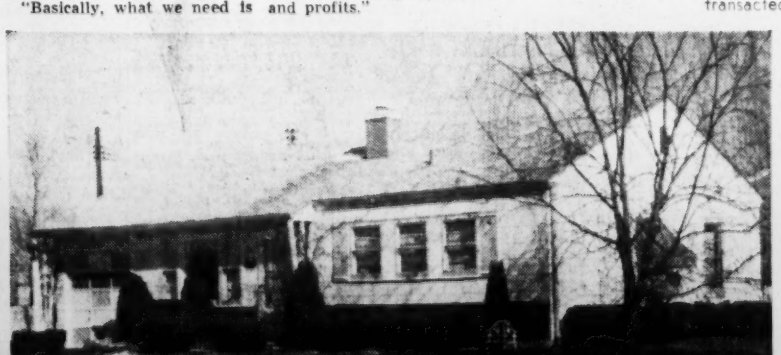
This property at 6828 Michigan, at the corner of Loughborough, has been sold by Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell to Georgia Lubinsky. The building contains a tavern and drug store on the first floor and two apartments on the second. The sale was made by Clara Hempelmann Realty Co.

New Home Bought by Flight Engineer

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon C. Wallach have purchased this home from the builder, Vernon Kramer, and his wife, in a transaction negotiated by the Kniffen Real Estate Co. The house is at No. 3 Midcircle. Wallach, a flight liaison engineer, has been living at 11542 Mark Twain Drive.

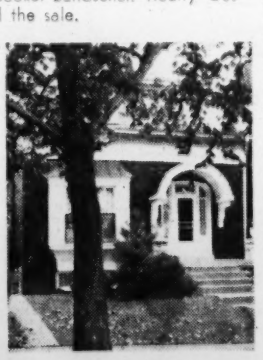
On Federer Place

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Westrich have purchased this house at 3818 Federer place, Holly Hills, from Mr. and Mrs. Oliver J. Belzer. It contains living room, dining room, kitchen, sunroom, three bedrooms and bath. Westrich, a photographer, is past president of the Greater St. Louis Photographers Association. Booker-Bundschuh Realty Co. transacted the sale.



Residence in City of St. Ann Is Sold

Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Harris have purchased this home at 4200 St. Leonard street, in the City of St. Ann, from Mr. and Mrs. David Ross. Mr. and Mrs. Ross bought a new and larger home in another St. Louis county development. The transaction was negotiated by the St. Ann Realty Co., a Charles F. Vatterott agency.



On South Side

Residence at 5515 South Kingshighway sold by Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Webb to Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Moran. The seller was represented by L. K. Wood Real Estate Co. and the purchaser by Mercantile Trust Co.

Un-Insured Borrowers 'True Cross Section'

Families who use the conventional home loan to buy their homes have incomes ranging from high to low; thus they constitute a true cross section of the American income scale, according to a study of borrowers by the United States Savings and Loan League.

The 32-page study entitled "Who Buys the Houses," was prepared by Miles L. Colean, nationally-renowned housing economist, and Leon T. Kendall, League staff economist. It shows, among other things, that while the majority of conventional-loan borrowers average middle-income, sizable proportions are in both lower and upper income brackets.

Three out of four homes purchased during 1958 were bought with the aid of conventional mortgage financing, which differs from government-type financing in that the private lender takes the risk instead of government.

The League undertook the study of age, income, debt and other characteristics of 7000 conventional home loan borrowers in an effort to "test commonly held beliefs about conventional loan borrowers, and to establish a library of fact about conventional financing that never before has existed."

The League is the nationwide trade organization for the $55 billion savings and loan business which finances nearly 40 per cent of all homes built or sold in this country annually. Nearly 90 per cent of home loans made by savings associations are of the conventional type.

Among other things, the study showed that approximately 56 per cent of conventional mortagors in the 22 urban areas surveyed in 1957 had family incomes ranging from between $5000 to $9000 a year. Approximately 29 per cent had incomes over $9000, and roughly 15 per cent had incomes under $5000.

The median income of the conventional home loan user living in these metropolitan centers was $7300, compared with a nation-wide average of $6400 for all families living in major cities.

Of interest is the finding that families purchasing new homes generally tend to have larger incomes than families buying existing properties. Of new home buyers using conventional financing in 1957, only 10 per cent reported incomes of below $5000 annually. Of the buyers of existing homes, 18.5 per cent had incomes below $5000.

Conversely, 60 per cent of families with incomes of over $7000 bought new homes, and only 40 per cent, existing homes.

These findings show, said the study, that conventional financing, while broadly serving the middle-income group, does not do so to the neglect of other important sectors of demand.

Available to More.

The League study said that, according to the survey findings and the National Housing Inventory of the Census Bureau, "conventional financing is more extensively available to lower-income borrowers and to lower-priced houses than is the financing sponsored by the government agencies.

"The breadth of the coverage of conventional financing is especially significant in view of the steady upward creep, over the postwar period, of the median income of FHA borrowers and the median initial amount of the insured loan, both of which appear to have risen farther than can be accounted for by increases in incomes or construction costs during the period."

The study also pinpointed the age of the typical single family conventional loan borrower in metropolitan areas in 1957 at 37 years. It noted however that "most probably" the individual purchasing his house through a savings and loan association was purchasing his second or third home. Previous League studies have indicated that the average age of first-time home buyers at savings associations is 30 years.

Significant Contribution.

As for the price of houses purchased by conventional home loan borrowers, in 1957, the median price was found to be $17,100, with the typical borrower making a cash down payment of approximately $6000, or 32 per cent of the purchase price, and taking out a $11,100 mortgage.

Over 86 per cent of the houses purchased through savings associations by conventional means sold for under $25,000, with the greatest proportion—55 per cent—selling for between $12,000 and $20,000. Roughly, 7 per cent of the homes financed by reporting savings associations in that year sold for less than $10,000.

The study noted that one out of every four loans closed by associations in 1957 went for the purchase of an existing property selling for under $16,000. Thus, by providing funds for the purchase of existing properties, it said, savings associations "contribute most significantly to the market for lower-priced housing."

Cold Weekend in Prospect —Associated Press Wirephoto.

Low temperatures and areas of precipitation expected tonight.

Cold weather will continue in the St. Louis area over the weekend, with relatively little change in temperature, the Weather Bureau said. The mercury dropped to 9 again this morning after reaching a high of 22 yesterday.

The cold weather here was brought by Arctic air, which today blanketed the eastern two-thirds of the nation. The cold air kept temperatures down below zero early today over the northern part of the nation, southward from a line from Nebraska through Pennsylvania into New England. Freezing weather prevailed from the Carolinas through Louisiana into Texas.

Rain mixed with occasional freezing drizzle or snow fell this morning from southeast New Mexico across parts of the Gulf states into Georgia as warmer air flowed into the cold-air area. Light snow was reported over the central Appalachians and central Plains.

Snow was forecast for tonight in the eastern Great Lakes region, western New York, parts of New England, central Plains and northern and central Rockies, as indicated by the above map. Rain fell early today along the northwest Pacific coast, and is expected to continue there tomorrow.

The Weather Bureau said warmer weather would prevail tomorrow in the northern and southern Plains states, but it will remain cold in the Ohio and Tennessee valleys and northeast.

Degree days in the St. Louis area yesterday, 49; the month, 592; the season, 3593.

TRUCKS, TRAILERS DAMAGED IN FIRE

Fire damaged trucks and trailers and burned through the roof of a brick building at 1100 South Sixth street last night. The building was occupied by Arnold Express & Transfer Co. Three alarms were sounded.

The building, owned by City Products Co., formerly was an ice storage house. It is equivalent in height to a five-story building.

Another fire of undetermined origin last night caused about $10,000 damage to a two-story brick building at 2914 North Market street, occupied by Midwest Forest Products Co.

Patrolman Jadwick Lynch, driving a one-man patrol car, discovered smoke seeping from the eaves and radioed the first alarm. One other alarm was sounded. The roof and much of the second floor were destroyed. The company manufactures doors, paneling and builders' hardware.

GEN. LYON STATUE SPARED, WILL BE MOVED TO PARK

A new home for the controversial statue of Gen. Nathaniel Lyon was assured today when the Board of Aldermen granted the Camp Jackson Memorial Monument Association the right to move the memorial to Lyon Park, South Broadway and Arsenal street.

By unanimous vote, the aldermen directed Park Commissioner Palmer Baumes, in consultation with the Municipal Art Commission, to provide a site for the statue in the park named after the Civil War figure. A companion bill repealed the 1925 ordinance which authorized erection of the monument in Camp Jackson Plaza near Grand and West Pine boulevards.

The statue must be moved from its present site to make way for redevelopment of Mill Creek Valley. To haul the 15-ton monument to South St. Louis will cost about $1500. Park Commissioner Baumes said public contributions to help defray moving expenses would be welcome.

Lyon Park already has a memorial to the soldier in the form of a 28-foot obelisk of red granite. Art lovers consider this a much worthier monument than the $15,000 statue which depicts a stiff rider on a scrawny horse. There have been suggestions that the statue be junked, but patriotic organizations object-

JAMES S. BULLOCK'S ESTATE PUT AT $1667

The estate of James S. Bullock, who was murdered last Dec. 17 near City Art Museum, was valued at $1667 in an inventory filed today in probate court at Clayton.

Principal item listed was Bullock's 1957 Plymouth automobile, valued at $1195. The remainder of the estate consisted of personal property. Public Administrator G. Joseph Neaf of St. Louis county said Bullock's equity in his home, 1448 Yale avenue, Richmond Heights, was held in joint tenancy with his wife and therefore passed to her on his death.

Edward G. Halliburton, 6829 Kingsbury boulevard, University City, an acquaintance of Bullock's, notified Neaf today that he holds an unsecured note signed by Bullock for a $1725 loan, on which $708 is owed. The note, dated Feb. 25, 1957, calls for monthly payments of not less than $50, with three-fourths of one per cent interest on the balance owed. Bullock was shot to death. His murder remains unsolved.

MRS. HORACE B. JOHNSON IS GRANTED A DIVORCE

Mrs. Horace B. Johnson, 21 Oakleigh lane, Ladue, has obtained a divorce in the court of Circuit Judge Robert L. Aronson. She charged general indignities.

The Johnsons were married in 1922 and divorced in 1926. They were remarried in 1931 and separated last April 29. Mrs. Johnson was awarded $200 a month alimony and $1200 for attorneys fees. Johnson is president of the Horace B. Johnson Real Estate Co., 2435 North Grand boulevard, and also operates a plastics business.

WOMAN DIES OF BURNS SUFFERED IN HOME FEB. 6

Miss Mary Hulda Justeson, 248 Buddie avenue, Calverton Park, died at St. Louis County Hospital last night of burns suffered Feb. 6 when her clothing caught fire at her home.

Miss Justeson dropped a match when lighting a cigarette, and ignited her clothing. Her brother, Arthur, smothered the flames and treated her at home, but later took her to the hospital. She had suffered third-degree burns on a large part of her body, the hospital reported.

HOUSE MOVERS BLOCK COUNTY ROAD 3 HOURS

A house being moved to a lot in Hazelwood blocked traffic in Missouri Highway 140 for three hours yesterday. About 40 families living on side streets were cut off from the main highway.

A truck was taking the building to Mary Rose court, Hazelwood. When the driver tried to turn off the highway at Flamingo drive, the house would not clear telephone and power lines.

So there the structure remained while the driver tried to figure out what to do. Hazelwood police detoured traffic around that section of Highway 140. Residents of Flamingo, Sunset and St. Cin drives were unable to pass the blockade to reach the highway.

Finally, the moving company bridged a ditch beside the highway and left the house in a nearby field. Hazelwood Police Capt. Albert Talley said the utility companies had refused to raise the wires without advance payment. He said the moving firm was so informed, but decided to try to get the house through anyway.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN KILLED IN CRASH NEAR CHESTER

A young St. Louis woman was killed and her two companions were seriously injured today when their automobile went out of control on a curve, hit low-hanging utility lines and crashed into an embankment on Illinois Route 3 near Chester, Ill.

Deputy Coroner Roy McDaniel of Randolph county said the dead woman was Miss Joanne Reed, 27 years old. The injured, taken to Chester Hospital, are Miss Jacklin Carlin, 28, and Mrs. Dorothy Lillard, 26. The three women worked as barmaids and lived in a hotel at 534 North Vandeventer avenue.

State police at Du Quoin said the license plate on the automobile had been issued to Lloyd Carr, 1927A North Florissant avenue, but he was not in the machine at the time of the accident. Police learned the three women were en route to Arkansas.

GETS YEAR FOR BEATING WOMAN IN PURSE ROBBERY

Delbert L. Jennings, 20 years old, of the 5600 block of Waterman boulevard, was sentenced to serve one year in prison by Circuit Judge Harold O. Farmer at Belleville today on his plea of guilty of assault to commit robbery.

Jennings, formerly of East St. Louis, admitted beating Mrs. Mae Alred, 556 North Twenty-third street, East St. Louis, with a blackjack after trying to seize her purse near her home Oct. 22, 1957.

Mrs. Sadie Johnson, 900 block of South Fifteenth street, East St. Louis, was sentenced to one to three years in prison on her plea of guilty of manslaughter in the shooting of Empieous Russell, her former business partner, 1437 Boismenue avenue, East St. Louis, Aug. 22, 1957.

Heavy Load, Light Bridge

Dump truck and bridge timbers dangle into Little Blue river near Arlington, Ind., after floor of the bridge gave way yesterday. Driver of the truck, which was loaded with 14 tons of crushed rock, was arrested for violating the bridge load limit of five tons. Authorities said the old covered bridge was damaged beyond repair.

Dry Taste of Defeat

Dr. Sam Scantlan, executive secretary of Oklahoma's United Drys, reflects bleak mood while listening to debate on liquor issue in the Oklahoma House Wednesday. Observers said Scantlan's expression scarcely changed throughout the six-hour proceedings, even when the dry cause lost and the House approved a popular vote on prohibition repeal. Election will be held April 7. —Associated Press Wirephoto.

Witness Stand Tension

Ralph Kelly of Elgin, Ill., is tense figure at witness table after refusing to answer questions at Senate rackets committee hearing yesterday. He balked at saying whether he gave away a share in his vending machine business after a threat was made to throw him from a bridge with concrete blocks on his feet. Seated to rear is Rocco Pranno who also refused to testify after being accused of muscling in on Kelly's business after the threats were made. —Associated Press Wirephoto.

A Lesson: Children Like a Challenge

"I WANT a hard book to read," the little boy said on our second last trip to the Webster Groves Library. "A book that you'd read in seventh grade."

Since he is in second grade and just a shade beyond the joyous adventures of Dick, Jane and baby sister Sally, I discouraged the idea of a seventh grade book. It seemed to me that trying something too difficult would prove frustrating. But he persisted so finally I agreed that just this once he could make his own selections anywhere in the children's department, not confining himself to Easy-to-Read stacks.

CLARISSA START

His selections were interesting. A collection of fairy stories by Walter de la Hare, "Hans Brinker and the Silver Skates," and, thickest of all, "The Three Musketeers" by Dumas. As predicted, the musketeers proved too weighty, even weighty for me. But he is plowing with determination through the other books, pausing only occasionally to ask the meaning of a big word.

It still surprises me to see how much children—others as well as my own—want to do things that are just a little beyond them. Sometimes in our desire to protect our children and shield them from disappointment we try to keep them from tackling the difficult job, forgetting in our lazy, easy going middle age that what youth really wants is a challenge.

Last week I appeared on Parker Wheatley's KMOX-TV program, "Challenge," currently emphasizing education. Kay Ware, consultant in special education for gifted children for the St. Louis public schools, Wilbur Grisbeck, father of a boy in one of those classes, and I, discussed the subject, "Is special education for the gifted child democratic?" We agreed that it was and Miss Ware gave eloquent testimony to the fact that singling out bright children does not make them conceited but responsible.

TV time limits being as they are, we did not get around to one of the interesting sidelights. Before the program, Grisbeck had asked Miss Ware if many of the children in special classes are unable to keep up and if failure injures them psychologically. Miss Ware said that about 5 per cent did fail but that, significantly, most of them wanted to return to the special classes and worked hard to do so. Defeat apparently heightens the challenge.

Our defeat on "The Three Musketeers" proved only a temporary deterrent. This week, on our library visit, the young reader selected some "hard books but not quite so big," from the third grade shelves.

"Mother," he asked on the way home, "do you ever get books that are too hard for you to read?"

"Well—er—" I began lamely, thinking of my choices, big, lavishly illustrated garden books designed for escapism. "Well, yes, I used to, when I was in school. I'd read philosophy and psychology and poetry by people I didn't really understand. And sometimes now I get books on Civil War history and things I think I should know more about, even if they're hard to read."

Yes, I have read books that are a challenge in the past and maybe I will again. But not right now. Not in February. February is enough of a challenge in itself.

Is It Good for Family?

IN BRINGING UP children one is often up against a situation where a change of course is wise. In order to know whether it is, it is useful to have a good reliable beacon to steer by.

Parents in a home where there are two boys 11 and 8 say the thing by which they measured everything is whether it seems good for all the family. That is a pretty safe beacon to keep an eye on.

In this home two years ago the Mother decided to go back to work. They wanted to buy a home and this seemed the way to do it. Andy, the younger boy, started school then and arrangements were made with a neighbor to care for him during out-of-school hours until Mother got home.

Last fall at the end of a two-year trial, they decided it was not a good plan. So Mother quit her job. Dad says now, "It was the biggest move of the year. We can see the difference in the boys already. House or no house it wasn't worth it." Mother says, "There are days when I could wish I were back at work for I hate housework, but this is where I'm needed and when I see the change in all of us it is worth it."

As the parents tell the story, the older boy is digging in on homework better since Mother has time to help him. The younger boy's fretfulness has subsided. Both youngsters take responsibility better since Mother is there to follow up. The edge is off Dad's temper now that he does not have to pitch in on housework the minute he gets home.

Mother says, "We saw it was no use to sacrifice our home life to get a house, for when we got it we would have no home left to put into it."

This is not to say home life is always ruined when Mother works. Of course not. It is only to say that in this family it was suffering and the parents were ready to change course to keep it intact.

In another home it was new furniture and rugs, refinished floors, and freshly seeded lawn that came close to setting the family boat adrift. But these parents, too, had an eye on the beacon light of what was best for the family.

The three youngsters, 15, 13 and 10, had all had a part in the refurbishing and all had been highly pleased with the results. Then things began to happen. The 10-year-old played more and more away from home and so avoided admonitions to keep off the grass. The 15-year-old began to join his crowd elsewhere instead of bringing them home. The 13-year-old burst out one day with, "I wish we had all our old things when you could have fun." And Dad came up then with, "By golly I'd like to get my old desk out of the attic."

At that point they changed course. Mother said, "We decided to put family ahead of furniture." She said when they told the youngsters, the 15-year-old gave a whoop and rushed to the phone to round up his crowd. That night things sounded like old times. Mother said, "Kids were all over the place eating, dancing, laughing and it seemed good." She said she did have some twinges about her beautiful new things, but she added, "We are all happier this way and it is better for all of us."

Setting sights on what is best for all concerned is a good, safe way to decide whether a change of course is in order. Once decided that it is, it sometimes takes courage and fortitude to make the change, but the prospect that everyone will be happier and better for the change helps to generate the courage and provide the fortitude.

Jimmy Hoffa's Picket-Line Romance

Busy Union Officer Found Time for Dates After Meeting Girl During Laundry Strike

By Jim Bishop

Sixth of a Series.

THE Durable Laundry Co. doesn't sound romantic. But it is. In 1936, it was a sizable plant on Livernoyse street in Detroit. It was full of women sorting, bleaching, washing, drying, packaging and billing. James R. Hoffa had no time for women. He had no time for liquor or smoking either. But women slowed a man down.

At 23, a man is very wise. His world is full of black blacks and white whites — there are no grays. James R. Hoffa was born positive. He now knew his goal—the top of the labor hierarchy—and he knew that he was going to have to fight his union superiors as well as employers to make the climb. When a man is super-ambitious, romance is a weakness.

The ladies at Durable tired of abuse from the boss. One day they just sat down in the plant and refused to work. The boss had a short fuse. He ran out and got a shotgun and aimed it at the girls and told them to get out. They got out.

The Durable drivers belonged to the Teamsters. Young Hoffa heard about the strike and hurried to Durable laundry and began to walk the picket line. He was introduced to some of the girls. They smiled. He was so little; his hair was falling over his forehead; his tie was crooked. He smiled briefly, like a kid who is afraid of being caught at it; his suit looked as though it had been slept in—which it had.

One of the girls was a slender, quiet blonde. Her name was Josephine Poszywak. Her job at Durable was to sort and package. She was serious about her work, and she saw at once that young Hoffa was serious about his. She walked her part of the picket line; he walked his. After the second day, he did something highly irregular: James Hoffa asked Josephine Poszywak for a date.

She thought about it, and said yes. They went to a movie. It is possible Miss Poszywak had dancing in mind, but Hoffa had never learned to dance. That, to his way of thinking, was another weakness. They sat in the balcony. He didn't hold hands. He bought candy bars and passed half to her.

There were two movie dates. Suddenly, Jimmy felt miserable. He day-dreamed about Jo; he made excuses to hurry to the Durable laundry picket line. He had a sickening feeling that, overnight, he had fallen in love. On the picket line, he looked at Jo. She looked at him, still marching, and she smiled. Hoffa felt he could take the Durable laundry apart with his bare hands.

The workers won this strike, and Josephine took Hoffa to her home to meet her parents. These were Poles who understood the hard facts of life. Also, they were religious. Mass and the sacraments were important to them. To young Hoffa, this was a side of life he could not comprehend. Nor could he fake it. Then and now, he cannot force the word "father" out of his mouth in the presence of a priest.

Jo too was in love. And love is an exciting compromise. She may have wanted to marry in the Roman Catholic church, but Jimmy did not. He won. They were married by a justice of the peace in Bowling Green, Ohio. There was no honeymoon, as such. Jo kept her job. Jim kept his.

That was in 1936. The next year, the bridegroom was elected president of Teamsters Local 299. He had spent two years on a project of organizing the drivers who haul new automobiles out of Michigan. The company owners hired strikebreakers, and the strikebreakers spun Hoffa into the dirt with their fists. Often he came home to the little flat with blood and lumps on his face.

DAVE BECK with HOFFA.

The young man brought his Kroger cronies into 299 with him. Owen (Bert) Brennan, a young fellow with charm to spare, became Hoffa's personal friend. These two walked the picket lines together, talked labor together, and their wives became friends.

They lost a Bakers' strike in 1938. It was a cold winter and Hoffa, the unemotional, could not stand to see the men, heads low against the driving snow, walking around the plant in shoes which lacked integrity. Hoffa borrowed $700 at Christmas time and stood beside the picket line with Brennan, passing the money to the men.

He gave $5 to each man; $10 to married men; $15 to hardship cases. Brennan watched. "Jimmy," he said, "my wife is working for a lousy $10 a week and we owe three months rent." Hoffa kept passing the bills. "Hey," said Bert Brennan, "save a couple of those for us." Hoffa kept passing the money, snapped the final bill in his hands, and gave it to a ragged looking man.

"What the hell are you crying about?" Hoffa said. "We don't need any money." Brennan did not realize then what he knows now: in a choice between money and power, Hoffa will always choose power.

At times he lost strikes; at times he lost members. But these were the temporary setbacks of a man who is climbing fast in stone. Day by day, Hoffa was growing stronger, bigger. In 1939, when his first child, Barbara Ann, was a year old, he bought a small house with brick facing on Trumbull street in Detroit.

It cost $6800 and it was heavily mortgaged. He lives in it now and it isn't much more pretentious than a bungalow on a lake. Mrs. Hoffa has decorated the small living room tastefully, but conservatively. There is a front picture window and flowered drawn draperies. The dining room is barely large enough to seat six.

Mrs. Hoffa did her own cooking and cleaning then. She does it now. This woman never knew when her husband was coming home—or even whether he was coming home at all. He sat to dinner with his legs wide apart, as though he might have to get to his feet quickly and defend himself; he slid the meat cakes and potatoes off the platters and he ate as he talked, swiftly and without formality.

The year before his son, Jim Jr., was born, Hoffa came to the notice of Dan Tobin, president of the Teamsters International. That was the year—1940—when the little man was elected as negotiating chairman of the Central States Drivers Council. This was an amalgamation of unions in 12 midwestern states. A truck, he preached, does not stand still like a factory. It moves. It moves far. What good is it if a Detroit driver has a good contract running his truck to Milwaukee, if a Milwaukee driver running to Detroit has a poor one?

This was the birth of the area-wide contract. The young man was 27. Two years later, he organized the Michigan Conference of Teamsters. In a modest way, he was on the employers' side in this. Jimmy Hoffa felt that a trucker with non-union drivers had an unfair advantage over a trucker who paid union scale. The Michigan conference was designed to bring all non-union truckers into the Teamster fold—happily or unhappily.

Almost by accident, James R. Hoffa became one of the great contract negotiators of this era. After a little practice at table debate, he found that he liked it. His grammar wasn't professional, but he always knew in advance the compromises he would make and the points beyond which he would not go.

He had no labor philosophy, and did not understand the term. He listened to high-blown speeches by his superiors, and he came away shaking his head. "The men want bread and butter," he said. "It's our job to get it for them. They don't want to know nothing about philosophy. We just gotta get the best contract we can for our guys, and that's all there is to it. I don't believe we should hit a trucker if he's against a wall. If he can't pay, why force him? That way everybody ends up out of work. But if he can pay, I don't care what kind of big words he uses, he's going to pay or he's in trouble."

Throughout the war years, Hoffa grew bigger and bigger, first in Detroit, then in Michigan, then in the Midwest, and finally throughout the country. A lot of people were disturbed, including some vice presidents of the Teamsters international.

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

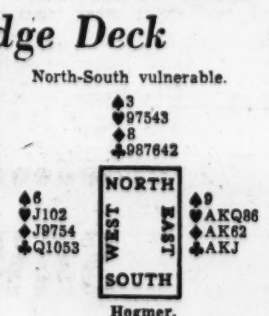
"THIS HAND is a real 'weirdie' in every sense of the word. The distribution and bidding were weird, the play even more so and the less said about the post-mortem, the better," writes D. S. Hogmer in presenting today's freak deal.

There was a swing of 2860 points on the hand. Our contributor played four spades, redoubled, and with his 150 honors, two overtricks and rubber bonus he scored 2180 points. East could have made a small slam at hearts for 680 points.

"I sat South and gasped when I picked up this hand," writes Mr. Hogmer. "While I was debating whether to open with a two or four-bid, I heard a voice say, 'Pass.' When I looked around in amazement, I discovered that the voice was my own! East opened with two hearts and when I jumped to four spades, he doubled and I redoubled, closing the bidding. When my partner later congratulated me on my nerve in passing originally, I winked and kept my mouth shut. There are times when silence is golden."

At four spades declarer should take only his 10 solid trumps, losing three diamond tricks, but the defense failed to remove dummy's lone trump, giving South a diamond ruff, and when East threw away a high diamond at the end, South took the queen of diamonds for his twelfth trick.

North-South vulnerable.



South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass	2♥
Redble.	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the jack of hearts, East overtook with the queen and South trumped and led the three of diamonds, hoping to set up a ruff. West went in with the nine of diamonds, but East overtook with the king and laid down the king of clubs.

But South trumped the first club, ruffed the ten of diamonds in dummy, returned to his hand with a club ruff and ran off his remaining spades. On the lead of the last spade East for some reason discarded the ace of diamonds, setting up South's queen.

Finishes for An Interior Woodwork

By Hubbard Cobb

FLAT WALL PAINTS are attractive and they are easy to apply but by and large they become soiled more easily and are more difficult to clean than other kinds of finishes. That's why most people do not use a flat wall paint on the interior woodwork—doors and window frames as well as baseboards.

One of the best finishes for woodwork if you wish color is an interior enamel. You can get this sort of finish in just about any color you wish—the same as a flat wall if you want.

Once it has been applied it produces a smooth surface which does not catch dirt and which can be easily wiped clean often with just a damp cloth.

If the existing woodwork is finished with varnish and you wish to apply enamel, it's not necessary to remove the old varnish unless it's in very poor condition and badly cracked. All you have to do is wash it down with water and washing soda, rinse and when dry apply the paint. You can also roughen the surface by sanding instead of using the washing soda.

If you wish to give woodwork a natural finish then you use either varnish or floor and trim seal. Varnish will give the wood a rather high gloss and also give it a slight yellowish cast. It is somewhat more difficult to apply and more costly than a trim seal.

Trim seals are easily applied and when dry can be given a rubdown with wax to produce a very durable surface.

Of course, if you wish a natural finish you must start off with bare wood. If the wood has previously been painted, the paint must first be removed before the varnish or trim seal goes on.

MAKING A HOUSE A HOME
by Betty Grayson

There's something about spring and special Sunday breakfasts that go together. Maybe, it's the flowers on the table, or the way the sun catches on silver or china. Whatever it is, food tastes better when family and friends gather for a spring breakfast.

March Better Homes & Gardens has some new ideas in breakfast treats that just breathe spring. It all begins with fresh strawberry and orange salad . . . goes on to hearty eggs in toast cups and hot cross buns.

Nothing goes quite so well with salad as Italian bread . . . but always be sure to serve it fresh. Because these breads are made with water and have little or no fat, they dry out fast.

Speaking of salads, don't miss the delicious "make-ahead" salad recipes in March Better Homes & Gardens. Easy-to-make gelatin salads, you can stir up beforehand to get a head start on your lunch or dinner. Just slip them from the refrigerator to a chilled plate and serve. They're all colorfully pictured in March Better Homes & Gardens.

An Idealist Totters

I THINK that Dore Schary as writer and producer of "LONELYHEARTS," at the ESQUIRE THEATER has gotten at the meat of the novel, "Miss Lonelyhearts," by Nathanial West. It is a showdown between a devastating, enervating total cynicism, as represented by Robert Ryan as the embittered, sadistic feature editor, and an idealism, a hope and a compassion for humanity, as represented by Montgomery Clift as the naive young man assigned as his first newspaper task to write a column for the lovelorn.

I won't say this is profound, because no great truths emerge. But it has a corrosive realism, and is deep and penetrating and somewhat disturbing. It expresses its ideas in striking and literate fashion.

The feature editor, rather appropriately named Shrike, is articulate. He can give eloquent expression to the venom that eats him. Disappointed repeatedly in life—as a high school football hero forced to quit because of an injury, as a managing editor who was fired, in his wife whom he caught in an adulterous affair 10 years before—he has never been able to conquer his disappointments philosophically, but is at war with life. His special sitting duck targets are the young, bright-eyed and bushy-tailed idealists, such as Adam White, played by Clift, and Shrike gloats as he sees them broken by disillusion.

Adam White takes his job home with him. He is at first amused by the problems of some of the people who write to him, tossing them off as morons and fools. But the tide of human misery as revealed in a lot of the letters gets to him and depresses him. He wants to help, but very often he can offer very little actual help. As Shrike says, what can you do in the way of bright advice for a girl whose nose has been burned away?

White's nemesis comes in the form of a sex-starved housewife (Maureen Stapleton) who takes him in with a sad story, then seduces him and turns out to be gross and predatory. His subsequent disgust, remorse (he has a girl he loves and wants to marry) and bout with a bottle for which he's had no training are what would be expected, and so is Shrike's delight in having won again. The ending, on an upbeat, is cogent, touching and impressive, if a trifle too sentimental—I don't think a pickled in brine cynic like Shrike could be won over by anything short of a personally witnessed miracle. Mr. Schary, realistic and objective as he tries to be, has to bow to the convention of films that righteousness invariably wins out.

Ryan may be a one-level actor, but the level of Shrike is one he can handle strikingly. He delivers a biting performance. His eyes sneer in every jibe thinly disguised as a jest. His meanness is like acid. Clift, on the other hand, does nothing for his character. The dialogue carries him, rather than he the dialogue. He handles White in a sort of a daze. It is sufficient, if you want to consider White a sort of a dopey young man, but with more expressiveness, more subtlety, Clift could have made White a much stronger, deeper and more sensitive character. I think his reputation as a fine actor is a myth.

As the fiancee, Dolores Hart emerges, in her fourth picture, as an actress of sympathy and insight. Maureen Stapleton does a hard, brilliant bit as the cunning letter-writer who takes in White and Frank Maxwell is effective as her betrayed husband. Myrna Loy returns after a long absence as Shrike's browbeaten wife.

Bewitched and Bewildered Jimmy.

THE LATE JOHN VAN DRUTEN'S stage comedy, "BELL, BOOK AND CANDLE," turns out to be just as delightful and amusing in the screen version adapted by Daniel Taradash and showing at the ST. LOUIS. As you may know, Mr. van Druten's quaint conceit was that the world is actually full of witches and their male species, called warlocks, and he mixed a very pretty one up in a romantic situation in New York.

Kim Novak, looking eerie and beautiful at the same time, is a member of a family of witches. Her brother (Jack Lemmon) is a warlock, playing the bongo drums at a night club frequented by the breed. Their aunt (Elsa Lanchester) is a fussy, kind-hearted witch, and a rival enchantress is Hermione Gingold. James Stewart as a book publisher living in the same apartment building is ensnared by Kim when she casts a spell on him. That is easy to believe. The situations are quietly clever and some subtle colors are used to enhance the effects when Kim is at her witchiest. Ernie Kovacs throws in a piece of deft comic underplaying as a writer on witchcraft who meets the real thing.

Frogman Adventure.

IN "UP PERISCOPE," at the FOX, James Garner, as a Navy frogman, is called upon to do a seemingly impossible thing — swim ashore from a submarine off a Japheld island, enter the Jap radio shack, find the Jap code book, photograph it with a Japanese soldier a few feet away in the same room, and get back to the boat, all undetected and in 14 hours. That's not too easy even for a heroic type like Mr. Garner, and he gives us some nervous moments; the suspense is good. But evidently Warner Brothers didn't think that enough. They threw in the bromide about the sub captain (Edmond O'Brien) hated by his crew because he sticks to the book, and a scene back home with Garner necking on the beach with a beautifully stacked girl (Andra Martin) who turns out to be a Naval intelligence agent checking up on him —wow, what a war! To relieve the tedium while Garner is waiting in the jungle for night to fall to make his sneak into the radio shack, we have some more flashback to Andra as he thinks of her. No sense in making this war stuff too grim.

English Pair

There is much irony in "ESCAPADE," the English picture at the APOLLO ART and some quiet wit in the responses of Alastair Sim, as a headmaster being criticized for the pranks of some of the precocious boys at his boarding school getting out of hand. But mainly it is a serious effort, done with skill by director Philip Leacock, who turned out "The Little Kidnappers," in which three sons of a belligerent pacifist (John Mills) bring shame on the grownups of the world for not doing more to achieve peace. As what at first appears a "prank" turns out to include shooting a headmaster in the seat with a home-made miniature blunderbuss and stealing an airplane and flying with it to Vienna, this is deeper than a mere comic escapade.

The co-feature, also English and called "PANIC IN THE PARLOR," is based on a London stage comedy hit, "Sailor Beware." It is dominated by a ranting virago of a prospective mother-in-law, overwhelmingly played by Peggy Mount, a formidable woman. I suppose her yelling and yapping as she almost breaks up her daughter's wedding may seem funny to a lot of people—evidently to the English anyway—but to me it was too gruesome for comfort and I thought the piece a bit drab for a comedy.

'Cup of Kindness' for Kind St. Louisans

It's Idea of Jack Miller, Who Donated Trophy to Be Passed to Different Man Each Year

The Cup of Kindness.

By Dickson Terry
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

WHEN WE LEARNED that there is in St. Louis a large loving cup known as "The Cup of Kindness," passed along each year from one kind citizen to another, we thought we'd better look into it.

The cup is now in the hands of Theodore J. Krauss, executive vice president of Associated Industries of Missouri. It was passed to him late last year by Richard O. Rumer, general counsel for International Shoe Co., who in turn had received it a year earlier from Russell Murray, president of Murray Motor Co. And Mr. Murray, its first recipient, had received it, out of a clear sky, from a young man named Jack Miller, who thought up the idea.

We got in touch with Miller. He agreed with some misgivings to tell us about it. People, he said, are inclined to question one's motives nowadays and start looking for the angle. His only angle, he assured us, is the feeling that if a person is kind, in this rather high-strung age, he should receive some recognition.

We promised to understand. Miller turned out to be a man in his late 20s, medium-height, slender, soft-spoken, gentle in manner, diffident and, for one so young, a man of parts.

He has been, among other things, a magician and juggler. The first thing we knew we were off and talking about his present occupation, which is a Punch and Judy puppeteer, a dying branch of show business. Practitioners in this country you can just about count on your fingers.

To go back a little, Miller was born in Normandy, went to Normandy High School and later served a hitch in the Navy.

"I was protector of the peace," he explained, "guarding Norfolk, Va."

He worked as an usher and doorman at the Ambassador Theater during and after high school. One day he bought a 25-cent magic trick, mastered it, and went on to build up a considerable repertoire, which was aimed strictly at children. Then he added juggling to his act, starting out this time with a 25-cent book on how to juggle.

Ever since he saw a Punch and Judy show many years ago he had a lingering affection for and interest in this ancient form of entertainment, and he approached it from an intellectual as well as an esthetic point of view. For a good many years now he has been researching Punch, who started, as near as he can find out, in Italy around 1605.

As a doorman at the Ambassador Theater, Miller used to study people's faces, and he came to the conclusion there were two pretty clearly defined classes—people who were happy inside and people who were unhappy inside.

Later, as a salesman, he pondered the people who treated him kindly, whether they bought anything or not, and the people who didn't. There were men he wanted to know better and men he never wanted to see again.

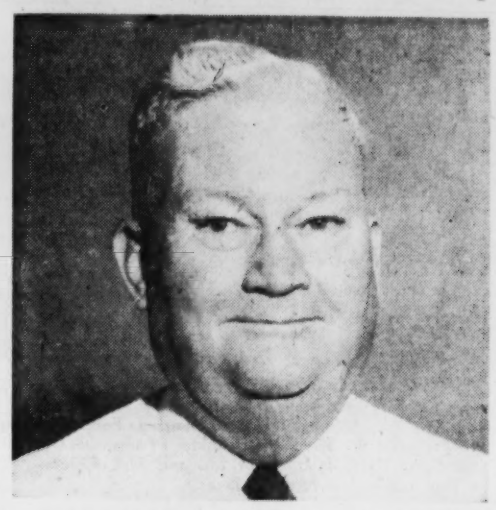
Miller came to the conclusion that kindness is something we all have to begin with, and that the loss of it has something to do with the pace of modern living—the rat race, as it is sometimes called.

"There are still a few people around who accept other people as human beings," he explains, "but nobody appreciates them. In fact, by today's philosophy they are often considered chumps.

"I felt that such people ought to have some recognition. Not being in a position to be a philanthropist, I didn't know just what to do. I have a friend who has a sporting goods store and among other things he had a lot of trophies. Then the idea came to me. I told him what I had in mind, and he gave me a cup. I had Cup of Kindness engraved on it. Then I set out to find my first man."

Miller had had some business dealings with automobile dealer Murray and had found him honest, considerate and kind, which seemed unusual in a field where there has been, to put it mildly, some criticism in recent years. Even Murray's employes think he's a nice guy, Miller said.

Miller spent two weeks composing a letter which he hoped would explain what he was up to. "In the midst of the confusion of living in the second half of the Twentieth century," it said among other things, "there are some men who stand out from the masses. They are kind, considerate and understanding to their mortal brothers, practicing the Golden Rule in everyday living. These men are not saints, but humans with the ability to practice kindness toward their fellow men. To these men I wish to express my thanks in the form of the Cup of Kindness . . ."



RUSSELL MURRAY . . . first recipient of the cup.

RICHARD O. RUMER . . . Murray passed it on to him.

THEODORE KRAUSS . . . he has it now.

"Well, Murray was pretty dumfounded when I walked in and handed him that jug with his name engraved on it. I had him read the letter, and he said, 'But I'm not the right person,' which is what they always say."

Ownership of the cup, Miller believes, exerts some kind of force. In fact, Murray later complained to Miller that he couldn't even bawl out one of his salesmen properly with that cup staring him in the face.

During the year a man has the cup he is supposed to decide who gets it next. Murray passed it to Rumer, with whom he had served on the board of the Masonic Home. "He had done so many worthy things and contributed so much to the welfare of the old folks in the home," Murray said, "I felt he ought to get it."

It came as a complete surprise to Rumer, who naturally didn't know what it was all about when Murray walked in. It was a little while, he said, before the idea soaked in, then he felt highly complimented. "I thought, with all the ornery things I've done in my life, how do I rate this?" he recalled.

During the year he thought about all the men he knew who were kind and finally settled on Krauss. "I tried to go along with Jack Miller's idea," he explained, "and I settled on Krauss because he represents a kindly attitude in everything he does, and he does things that make for good citizenship."

Krauss has the cup now, and running true to form he considers himself "very unworthy." Also, he says, it poses something of a psychological problem. "Seeing it here every day makes me feel like I've got to keep improving my manners and the way I act."

Since he started it on its way, Miller has disassociated himself from the cup. It's on its own, he says, and he just hopes it generates something. No man is an island, he says, but a lot of people are trying to be. "If we all become islands, it just isn't worth it."

WOMEN

Reporter at Large In Smart Society

By ED KOTERBA
(Copyright, 1959.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.

THE OTHER EVENING, the search for adventure lured me to Washington's other side—the capital's social circuit. That's where you go around eating fancy little finger sandwiches, fumbling napkins, spilling drinks, rubbing shoulders and dropping names.

First stop was on Massachusetts avenue, at the embassy of Texas. Well, it wasn't actually an embassy, just the house of Representative Clark Thompson and his wife, Libbie, of Galveston.

Say, those people are fine hosters, and Libbie (I'm name-dropping) may well soon take over from Perle Mesta as Washington's hostess with the mostes'. Mrs. T., daughter of the late W. L. Moody, Texas multi-millionaire, came in with the mostes' a few years ago with an $8,500,000 settlement in a family estate transaction.

What they were having was "open house," and even the size of that house wasn't enough for the 600 guests, so they divided the guests in two and served half of them one night and the other half the next night.

The party started at 6 p.m. Not wanting to appear anxious, I waited in the driveway and arrived late—at 6:01. Turned out to be embarrassingly early. The butler ushered me down to the Texas room, a basement oasis with marble floor.

Someone had preceded me—Senator Theodore Francis Green (Dem.), Rhode Island. He was alone, ruddy-cheeked and charming—the oldest member of Congress in all our history, 91 years, and he was just stopping by between parties.

For a reporter eavesdropping, you can pick up some interesting scuttlebutt at these parties. I was hanging around the hors d'oeuvre table—at the shrimp cocktail end—when Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn and a few handsome ladies walked in. And this is what I heard—one lady: "What do you do with the toothpicks after you eat the shrimp?" Sam: "I don't know. Mine didn't have any."

One of the town's social reporters came up to me and said: "I'm on my way to Libya, want to come along?" What she meant was the Libyan party. So the scene shifts to the east room of the Mayflower Hotel. I'd say it was fancy. The Libyans were celebrating the seventh anniversary of their independence, which falls on Christmas eve. But since that date conflicted, they changed the day to Jan. 24, but since their new ambassador hadn't arrived in this country yet, they put it up another month.

Milling around seven food and refreshment tables were many of the same free-loa—er, guests—from the Thompson party. Some of the snackers preferred crackers and caviar or tartlettes of chopped livers, hot cromesquis de volaille (miniature pancakes with chopped chicken), and such.

There was so much stuff here that some of it flowed pink out of a perpetual fountain in the middle of a table. And the man who sliced your roast beef wore white gloves.

Ninth Pre-Symphony Lecture Today

A BUFFET LUNCHEON from noon until 1 o'clock today in the Chase Club of the Chase Hotel preceded the ninth in a series of pre-symphony lectures sponsored by the Women's Association of the St. Louis Symphony Society. A fashion show will be presented by Boyd's during the luncheon.

Gross Bittner, assistant professor of piano at Lindenwood College and head of music in the St. Charles school system, spoke in the Chase Club. The concert was given in the Khorassan Room.

Series of Book Reviews for Church Group.

A SERIES OF THREE monthly book review luncheons, beginning Monday is being sponsored by the Women's Alliance of First Unitarian Church with Mrs. Thaddeus B. Clark, wife of the minister, as book reviewer and commentator. Theme of the series is "Welcome to Spring."

Mrs. Clark spoke Monday on "Best Sellers — What, Why and Should They Be?"; on March 17 she will speak on "Enduring Books of Our Time," and on April 21 on "Potpourri—Poetry, Prose and Fun."

Luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock before each program. Mrs. Alvin L. Spitler, chairman of the ways and means committee of the alliance, is co-ordinator for the series.

A PARENT-FACULTY TEA will be held from 4 until 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon at The Taylor School Faculty House, 228 North Central avenue, Clayton. Receiving will be the headmaster, Dr. Edgar C. Taylor, and Mrs. Taylor, while assisting at the tea table will be Mrs. George Preston Dorris Jr., Mrs. Fred E. Guth, Mrs. William L. Recker and Mrs. Charles Tanzer. Open house will be held at the main school building. Members of the student council will act as ushers.

MR. AND MRS. STANLEY L. LOPATA, 12 Dielman road, Ladue, will depart soon for an extended trip to the west coast where they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sibley, former St. Louisans. En route west they will stop in Silver City, N.M., to attend the dedication of the Alhambra Silver Mine. One of the original mines developed by the Mexicans in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries and abandoned in 1893, it recently has been re-opened After visiting California, Mr. and Mrs. Lopata will go to Sun Valley, Idaho, for several weeks of skiing.

THREE ST. LOUISANS, Miss Margaret Pauley, Miss Mary Jo Brandt and Miss Linda Osterkamp, have been named to the Dean's List at Centenary College for Women, Hackettstown, N.J., for academic records attained during the autumn semester. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald F. Pauley, 33 Ridgetop, Richmond Heights; Mr. and Mrs. Peter O. Brandt, 14 Ridgetop, and Dr. and Mrs. Roy W. Osterkamp, 47 Countryside lane, Frontenac.

MISS BETTY BETTS, who has been in Frankfurt, Germany, for the last two years on a tour of duty with the State Department, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. H. Catherine Betts, 4246 Neosho street. Several parties have been planned in her honor, including a luncheon tomorrow at the home of Miss Betts's sister, Mrs. Buel White, 7736 Blackberry lane, University City, and a cocktail party Feb. 28 to be given by Mr. and Mrs. White. Others planning parties are Mrs. Betts, Mrs. Charles C. French and her daughter, Miss Louise French, and Miss Jane Sevening. Before serving in Frankfurt, Miss Betts was stationed with consular offices in Lisbon and in Dhahran, Arabia.

St. Louisans Entertained in Florida

MR. AND MRS. SAM J. PASSEN, right, at a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., restaurant with their host and hostess, MR. and MRS. LESTER BYRON. Before the Passens' marriage Feb. 10, she was Mrs. Charles A. Garesche Jr. (Dorothy Dorr). She is the daughter of Mrs. Oliver Dorr. Mrs. Byron, her cousin, was Miss Susan Dorr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor L. Dorr, who moved to Fort Lauderdale form St. Louis.

Panhellenic Group Plans Loan Fund

THE ST. LOUIS PANHELLENIC ASSOCIATION has voted to establish a student loan fund at Harris Teachers' College following a meeting of the scholarship committee with the college president, Glynn E. Clark, to make arrangements. The fund will be for the assistance of students needing temporary financial aid. The Panhellenic Board has also voted to increase the loan fund the association maintains at Missouri University and to continue support of a foreign student aid fund at Washington University. In addition to the loan funds, Panhellenic grants a scholarship each year to the state university and to Washington University. Funds are obtained from the annual scholarship benefit bridge party which will be held this year on Saturday, March 21. President Clark will be the speaker for the board meeting to be held in the Women's Building Monday, March 2.

The national office of Phi Mu sorority in Memphis, Tenn., has announced installation of a new chapter at the University of Wisconsin in Milwaukee. This spring new chapters are to be installed at Texas Technological College in Lubbock and at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga.

Mrs. Gail Upchurch has been elected president of the St. Louis alumnae association of Phi Mu. Other new officers are: Mrs. Albert Popham, vice president; Miss Joyce Verderber, secretary; Mrs. Carl Barthold, treasurer, and Miss Joan Thym, assistant.

Zeta Tau Alpha has colonized at Wagner Lutheran College, New York, and West Texas State College in Canyon, Tex., where new chapters will be installed, bringing the sorority roster to 85 collegiate chapters.

Pi Beta Phi Mothers' Club of the University of Missouri will meet at the home of Mrs. H. F. Gruetzemacher, 10 Magnolia drive, Ladue, Thursday at 10 a.m.

St. Louis County Club to Hear Mrs. John Clark

By Fay Profilet

A DINNER MEETING will be held by the Business and Professional Women's Club of St. Louis County Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Winston Churchill tearoom. Mrs. Roy T. Hardaway is president of the group.

The program will mark the end of four self-improvement forums which were sponsored by the career advancement committee in homes of members. There will be a skit to illustrate the four topics presented at the forums—"Rise, "Speak and Be Seated;" "Parliament Procedure;" "Attitudes Attract Attention," and "Charm."

Guest speaker will be Mrs. John Clark, director of special events of Famous-Barr Co. She has had her own radio and television shows in Boston, Chicago and Juneau, Alaska. Mrs. Clark, a former music teacher, also conducts adult education classes in poise and personality for St. Louis Public Schools. Her subject for Tuesday night will be, "First Person Singular."

She will be introduced by Mrs. C. Mott Rhein, chairman of the career advancement committee. Miss Elizabeth Halpin was vice chairman of the committee.

The leaders of the forums were Miss Adeline Boggi, personnel assistant, Jewish Hospital; Mrs. Frederick Herberle, parliamentarian; Miss Fan Mattox, teacher, and Mrs. Louis Mattox, charm consultant. Patricia Stevens Modeling School.

Guest Speaker

MRS. JOHN CLARK, who will address the Business and Professional Women's Club of St. Louis County.

B'nai Amoona Sisterhood will have a fun fest tomorrow at B'nai Amoona Congregation from 7 p.m. to midnight and again Sunday from noon to midnight. Games have been planned for the children and home cooked food and gifts will be sold from attractively decorated booths. The sisterhood is affiliated with the National Women's League of the United Synagogues of America. The local group is composed of about 700 members.

The Twentieth Century Art Club will have a lenten program following a business session Monday at the College Club, 5428 Delmar boulevard, at 1:30 p.m. Mrs. Milton P. Mindel will sing a group of sacred songs, accompanied by Mrs. James O. Eadie, and Mrs. Charles H. Moran will give an illustrated lecture on, "New and Significant Church Architecture in St. Louis." Mrs. Harry Webster, president, will greet members and their guests at a tea after the program.

H. A. Woodbury Speaker for Monday Club

HARRY A. WOODBURY of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., will be the speaker at a meeting of the education and current topics section of the Monday Club of Webster Groves Monday at the clubhouse at 1:30 p.m. His subject will be, "Adventure Through Science-Communications." The speaker will be introduced by Mrs. Claborne L. Jennings. Afterward there will be a short business meeting at which the section chairman, Mrs. Harold E. Knight, will preside.

The section will be in charge of luncheon at 12:30 p.m. with the vice chairman, Mrs. Vincent R. Ameiss, presiding. She will introduce the luncheon speaker, Mrs. Leo J. Vogt, a club member.

The history and literature section of the club will meet to continue its study of the Arab world at 10 a.m. the same day. Three papers on "The Literature of the Arab World" will be read: "The Present Mood in Literature," by Mrs. Edward J. Sheppard; "Poetry," by Mrs. H. E. O. Heineman, and "The Short Story," by Mrs. Ameiss. Mrs. D. Walter Roberts is section chairman and Mrs. Harry J. O'Neill is program director.

Now—Fry Without Fat!
Amazing New Fat-free Cooking Aid
PAM DRY FRY

1 Adds no calories to food
2 You don't use oils, fats, shortenings
3 Lets you enjoy fried foods safely and Prevents foods from sticking to pans

Cutting down on calories? Cutting down on fat? Now with PAM Dry Fry, a pure vegetable product, you can even fry without adding a single drop of grease, without adding a single extra calorie . . . because you fry "dry" without oils, fats, or shortenings!

If you're a dieter and tired of monotonous menus, now you can enjoy fried foods again—eggs, meat, french toast, pancakes, even potatoes — you can fry them all without adding fat. The chart below, based on findings of a world-famous research laboratory*, shows PAM can't add a single calorie. And PAM has no taste of its own, so it can't change the natural flavor of food.

And here's an "extra"—PAM keeps food from sticking to cooking surfaces! Simply spray PAM Dry Fry not only on frying pans, but on sauce pans, pots, roasters, griddles, waffle irons—any kind of utensil. They'll actually come cleaner quicker, without hard work. Get PAM Dry Fry today for dieters in your family—for yourself!

PAM-TREATED PANS CLEAN EASY—NO MORE HARD RUBBING, SCRUBBING, SCOURING

Just spray PAM on utensil before you fry, roast, bake, broil, or cook anything which might stick. Steaks, roasts, hamburgers, eggs, potatoes, even cooked cereal won't stick fast—even a casserole dish sticky with cheese and macaroni practically rinses clean in just a few seconds. If you're not a diet-watcher, you can add your favorite shortening to a Pam-treated pan. PAM works perfectly to keep foods from sticking.

Stop adding oil, fat, shortening when you fry. Put an end to messy pans and greasy foods. When you use PAM Dry Fry you don't add a single drop of grease, not a single calorie. Foods can't stick—and pans rinse clean under water!

CALORIE CHART

FOOD	Fried in fat, oil, or other shortening	Boiled or Broiled	Fried with PAM DRY FRY
EGG	125 calories	70 calories	70 calories
HAM	175 calories	100 calories	100 calories
POTATO	157 calories	101 calories	101 calories
¼ lb. HAMBURGER	200 calories	125 calories	125 calories

PAM IS SO EASY TO USE—ECONOMICAL TOO!
Use PAM on any kind of cooking utensil, or surface. Just spray for a few seconds — then cook as you usually do. See what a difference PAM makes—food isn't greasy, pans aren't messy. A can of PAM should last the average family about 2 months.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Opposes Move to Small Town

Dear Martha:

MY PARENTS AND I are having an argument and they won't even listen to my side of the story. We have lived in St. Louis all my life and I have many friends at school. Now, my dad has been transferred to a small town near here. My girl friend wants me to stay with her at her house until the end of school but my folks say I have to go with them. Her mother is really nice and I know it would be all right with her. Don't you think that would be a good idea? Please help me, Martha.

JANE.

I'm sorry, but I can't agree it's a good idea without knowing more of the circumstances. I don't blame you for not wanting to leave your friends but, after all, your parents naturally want you with them and you are a part of their household until you are old enough to marry or to go out on your own. Unless your girl friend's mother herself urges you to stay, don't even entertain the idea. It might be fun for you and your friend, but a great deal of inconvenience and trouble for her mother. But if she should ask you, it's still a question to be considered seriously. However, what's wrong with giving the small town a try? There's not too much school left this year and three months or so in a new environment wouldn't be too hard. And if you go into a new school with a smile on your face instead of a chip on your shoulder, you'll make friends in a hurry.

Dear Martha:

I LIKE A BOY who doesn't know I'm alive. I've liked him for about a year now. He liked me last year but something happened. I don't know what it was and neither does he. We just sort of fell out as they say. Now we are friends but I still like him a lot. What can I do to get him back? He acts like he still likes me but I don't know how to make him prove it. BARB.

Don't try to force him to prove it by pinning him down and asking him point-blank what happened. Be a little more subtle in your campaign. Give him an invitation to a club party, or ask him to come over with several other couples for a record party at your house. If he likes you, he'll come. If not—well, it's hard to believe now, but I have an idea that one of these days you'll wonder what you saw in him. You see, Barb, you can't drag him back. There's no rope strong enough for that.

Why not entertain the crowd with a scavenger hunt or St. Patrick's Day party? These are among the party leaflets which will be sent to readers on request. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope when you write for your copies.

Tribute to Dulles

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.

I WANT TO JOIN with many others who have paid tribute to the great courage of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. In the face of what must have been much pain and great exhaustion he continued doing what he felt called upon to do in order to fulfill his duties. Though many of us may differ with his policies, we cannot help but admire his gallantry.

To be Secretary of State was his great ambition because it was more or less a tradition in his family and very naturally, I am sure, he wanted to go down in history as a great Secretary of State. These are legitimate and fine ambitions, and in a democracy one is always glad to see individuals who really want to serve in the difficult positions of government.

But he has sacrificed above and beyond the call of duty, for physically he must have long ago wanted to retire from these arduous public responsibilities. We can only hope that through the increased research which is daily developing something may be found to help him recover.

I must say that it is distressing to see the picture of Acting Secretary of State Christian A. Herter on crutches from arthritis. I do not suppose this handicaps his work in any way, but it certainly must be a drain of him physically. If he is one of our ministers, and I suppose he will be, to go to the meeting which has been proposed of the Big Four on Germany, it would seem an added difficulty for him to cope with.

I NOW have had an opportunity to learn more of Senator Mike Mansfield's suggestions on the solution of the Berlin situation, and I must say they make a good deal of sense to me.

To let the Secretary-General of the United Nations, who is one of our negotiators, do the negotiating would seem to be a very wise move.

I HAVE READ of Fidel Castro taking the oath as the new Premier of Cuba, and I have had some letters from Cubans saying that we in the United States do not understand Cuban efforts to get a stable government.

I think we understand their efforts very well, but we are just a little confused by the fact that stable governments so rarely remain stable in certain areas of the world. I am sure everyone in the United States wishes Mr. Castro and the Cuban people well.

The trouble that has developed in government after government in certain areas is easily understandable because it has its roots in human greed. Certain individuals who come to power make money out of their power and then when they find themselves attacked they abscond, after carefully stowing away money and other treasures in other areas.

Our hopes this will not be the history again in Cuba. But the Cubans must not feel that we lack in understanding if we wait a little while to have it demonstrated that a government is stable and is trying to be as honest as it is possible.

Even in governments that have been stable for a long time, such as our own, corruption in office ceases to be a surprise. It seems to me that all human beings must constantly strive to improve the standards of morals and ethics in government.

Behind Murrow's 'Sabbatical'

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.

THE RUMOR swept through the saloons of Manhattan that Edward R. Murrow had been fired from CBS which would be akin to the Vatican firing Bishop Sheen. The next day the letters were published: "As you know, my long term contract with CBS has for many years contained a clause permitting me to take a year's leave of absence. . . . As ever yours, Ed." And the reply: "I . . . understand completely . . . Sincerely, Frank."

"There's a rumor around that you're not coming back," I said to Murrow over the phone.

"This is untrue, my friend," said Murrow. "I am committed morally and contractually to return. This is something I've been saying for a long time; a man should take a little time off for rest and contemplation —if he's lucky enough to get away with it."

"Where are you going?"

"Round and about. The Middle East, India, Africa, Russia. I'm looking forward to it. I'm going by ship. I'll send you a postcard. I'll be working occasionally on 'Small World.' But no deadlines."

EDWARD R. MURROW

Murrow said that his widely publicized Chicago speech in which he castigated television for its almost unbroken record of escapist fare had nothing to do with the decision. Neither did the documentary on prostitution which he narrated and which also kicked up quite a storm. The fact is the word "sabbatical" is contained in his contract. Rumors about Murrow being lured to NBC are fairly thin and insubstantial, too. "Murrow is not likely to move to any other network in this lifetime," a fellow who knows said the other day. In other words, the contract is pretty binding.

Still, relations between Murrow and the top brass at CBS are not as cordial as they once were. "That's common knowledge," Murrow admitted. And there's no doubt but that the worsening relations helped speed the sabbatical. And there's no doubt—in my mind at least — that Murrow's departure, even if for one year, means that one more light has gone out. Television is getting to be a very dim chandelier indeed.

The same day that the Murrow story broke, Louis H. Cowan, president of CBS, was making a speech which amounted to an apology to the American Association of School Administrators: "Whether for selfish reasons or not, we strive to get the public to look at television — even if only by amusing them or by indulging their curiosity. If we develop an audience, we can then bring to them on occasion great works of drama, of ballet, of music. We can introduce them to a world they never knew. But we have to pace ourselves. We have to get their interest first."

Now if that isn't the last word in condescension! As if we were a bunch of children who had to have our attention diverted by bright shiny beads while they sneak in a nugget of culture now and then. It is this sort of thinking which is doing much to wreck television —this idea that anything good must be administered like castor oil and, conversely, anything lousy must automatically be popular.

Frankly, I don't believe it. Some of the best things on television have also been awfully popular and some of the worst things have laid an egg. It's hard to think that the public has any brains or any taste, but it has repeatedly been shown that it has.

One of the sore points between Murrow and CBS is the 28-man committee that now rules news policy at CBS. News by committee is no better than anything else by committee. It has a tendency to get milder and grayer and blander and hopelessly inoffensive. The hard, bright glitter of a single mind and a single personality is missing from any committee decision.

Even though he was the first to give credit to his whole team, Murrow was always a massive individualist. His programs had tremendous individuality. He'll be sorely missed, and it's not at all likely that any new figure of his stature will arise in television. The epoch for great individuals like Murrow seems to be passing. We're in the age of the committee.

TUVWXYZ

In the 66 puzzles, no letters are left out and there are no superfluous letters. All are CAPITAL LETTERS. Some of these letters will be lengthened, some shortened, some made broader and some made thinner; and they may sometimes be turned upside down or sideways. But basically, the letters will have the same characteristics as they have in the alphabet shown here. Notice that the "M's" have straight sides and the "W's" have slanted sides. Also note particularly the difference between the "N's" and the "Z's"—observe the serif, or cross stroke, at the top and bottom of the "Z."

Protection for Saws

A good way to protect the teeth of handsaws when not in use is to take a length of old rubber garden hose, slit it lengthwise and slip it over the edge of the blade. And by the way, never set a wood plane down so that the cutting edge of the blade touches anything. Either retract the blade so it is inside the body of the plane or set the blade down on its side.

Now! ADMIRAL STEREO Console Ensemble Complete from $199.95

Announcing the world's first stereo phonographs especially created to give perfectly balanced stereo sound! Music reaches you not just from left and right alone but also from the center. This phantom third channel—possible only through Admiral's custom balance controls—lets you hear as an orchestra leader does...completely surrounded by moving, dimensional sound.

Admiral Stereo sound system gives you complete control of bass, treble, loudness and balance. All these new Admiral Stereo high fidelity instruments play the new stereo records and make your present records sound better than ever before!

Choose from space-saving all-in-one consoles or matching 2-cabinet ensembles. Award winning furniture styling in modern, traditional, provincial, Italiana, Americana, and portables. All now especially priced for Admiral's Silver Anniversary! Limited time only!

MARK OF QUALITY THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

Admiral.

THE CONTINENTAL MODEL 619. Stereophonic High Fidelity. Space Saving all-in-one Provincial Console! Truly balanced stereo sound! 2 matched sound systems. 4 speakers. 20 watt dual channel amplifiers. 4 speed changer. Custom loudness, tone, balance controls.
Mahogany $239.95 Cherry Veneer $249.95

THE SOPHISTICATE MODEL 722. Stereophonic High Fidelity. Matched cabinets can be placed together for space-saving all-in-one stereo. 2 matched and balanced sound systems. 4 speakers. 20 watt dual channel amplifiers. 4 speed changer. Jeweled Stereo and 78 rpm needles. Only $199.95

Admiral Portable Stereo Prices Start at $89.95

THE DIPLOMAT MODEL 771, with exclusive STOWAWAY speakers. World's finest portable with truly balanced stereophonic sound! Plays new stereo records and makes your present hi-fi records sound better too!

Two matched, balanced speaker systems. One in the case. The other stows under lid and snaps out to play as second stereo channel.

4 matched and balanced speakers, 20 watt dual channel amplifiers. 4 speed changer with new balanced motor that eliminates hum, rumble and wows. Custom balance, tone, loudness controls. Jeweled Stereo and 78 rpm needles. Only $139.95

TV Notes and Gossip

THE ABC-TV Tuesday night "Cheyenne" show will retitled "Bronco" next fall and Ty Hardin will continue as its star. The "Cheyenne" title will be used as the name of a new hour-long Monday night show starring Clint Walker, the original star of the series.

HENRY HULL . . . as he will appear in "The Last Gray Man" on KSD-TV's "Restless Gun" program Monday Night.

WHEN MARY MARTIN does two specials for NBC-TV on Easter Sunday, she will be assisted by dancer Dick Sanders and guitarist Luiz Bonfa.

ERSCHEL BERNARDI, who plays Lt. Jacoby on the "Peter Gunn" series, will be lost to the series for at least two months as the result of an automobile accident.

ABC-TV's "Dr. I.Q." will be dropped early in March and will be replaced by "This Is Music."

THE METROPOLITAN OPERA'S production of "Macbeth," to be heard on KMOX radio tomorrow afternoon, will mark the first broadcast of the opera by the Met, which never before this season has staged "Macbeth."

"THE LAWLESS YEARS," a series based on the career of Barney Ruditsky, a New York detective in the 1920s, will start on NBC-TV April 5. James Gregory will portray Ruditsky.

Mackenzie's Journeys

By Ramon Coffman

THE Mackenzie river ranks second in length among the rivers of North America. It is surpassed only by the Missouri river, or by the Mississippi-Missouri if we count the two together.

The Mississippi river, when considered to run from Minnesota to the Gulf of Mexico, falls short of the Mackenzie by more than a hundred miles.

Alexander Mackenzie explored the mighty stream to its mouth, and saw that it flows into the Artic ocean, by way of Beaufort sea. Then he made the hard return journey to his trading post on the shore of Lake Athabasca.

Not content with that great success, the Scottish-born explorer started another journey. This time he headed westward, toward the Rocky mountains, with several picked men. An upstream trip in a large canoe was made on the Peace river.

The going proved rough, and often the explorers had to wade in the river while pushing their canoe past rapids. After months of hard struggles, they found the water too shallow, and lifted the canoe to their shoulders. An old Indian told them how they could reach a headstream of another river, and they did this after three days of carrying the canoe.

Going down the headstream (dubbed the Parsnip river) they reached a junction with the Bad river. Here Mackenzie left most of his companions. With a white man, and an Indian guide, he paddled down the Bad river.

Further portages took place, but the little group crossed British Columbia and reached the Pacific ocean. Mackenzie was the first white man to lead a party across the Rockies to the coast. He saw the Pacific 166 years ago—12 years before it was viewed by Lewis and Clark.
